JAPAN'S NAVAL AIM POINTS U.S., BRITISH ACCORD

Hull Advances Stand on Parity.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 23.—[Special.]—An announcement of Ambassador Saito of Japan in Philadelphia tonight that his government will denounce the Washington naval treaty regardless of developments in London was interpreted here as pointing to the termination of British efforts for a compromise on naval questions in the London conversations.

The ambassador's announcement not only followed the agreement reported today among the British and American delegations in London not to grant Japan parity but it also was paralleled by a statement from Secretary Hull designed to encourage Anglo-American coöperation in the London discussions.

Parity Seen as Lost Hope.

Officials did not doubt that Ambassador Saito's pronouncement was authorized by the Tokio government, and they viewed it as an admission that Japan no longer hopes for the granting of her parity demands.

The hope now is that, whatever measures are considered in the light of the new circumstances, Great Britain and the United States will emerge from the London conversations in step as to broad policies in the Pacific. Actual alliances or even rapprochements are considered improbable in view of the traditional American policies against "entanglements."

Secretary Hull's statement today in encouraging understanding between the United States and Great Britain was calculated to appease Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, who has resented criticism here and in his own country for what appeared to be an unsympathetic attitude toward this country.

Hull Praises Simon's Speech.

"I read the newspaper accounts of Sir John Simon's speech in the house of commons yesterday with particular interest," Secretary Hull said. "His statement on the naval conference is a lucid exposition of the difficulties facing the conference at the London naval talks. One of the bright spots of the negotiations has been the close and friendly relationship existing between the delegations, and I should like to pay tribute to the fair coöperative attitude which has been shown by the British delegation throughout.

"I should like also in passing to mention my gratification at the general tenor of Sir John's speech on the armaments industry, a speech which was both friendly and courageous."

In commenting upon a speech by Prime Minister MacDonald, Hull said:

"When Mr. MacDonald states that 'the British government always attaches the highest value to close friendship and coöperation between Great Britain and the United States' I can assure him that this government wholeheartedly reciprocates."

Saito Scorns Present Ratio.

In his Philadelphia address before the American Academy of Political and Social Science Ambassador Saito indicated that the Japanese sense of honor and concern for national dignity and prestige "would make it impossible for his nation to consent to a continuance of the present 'ratio' system governing the size of the British, American, and Japanese navies."

He reiterated that regardless of the developments at the preliminary naval conference at London, Japan was "going to give notice of her intention to terminate the Washington treaty of 1922, according to the method foreseen in the stipulation of article 23 of the same treaty."

Japan desires, he said, "that there will be a new formula of limitation other than the ratio system. She is hoping to have a new deal on a more reasonable basis than before."

Discusses Ratio System.

In his discussion of the ratio system the ambassador charged that there was a tendency to "look down upon Japan as a nation which may run amuck at any moment."

"The argument," he went on, "too

SALTER LASHES DEFENDANTS IN DRAMATIC PLEA

Samuel Sr. Sobs as Own Lawyer Talks.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

The $100,000,000 mail fraud case against Samuel Insull and 16 co-defendants will go to the jury about 1 o'clock this afternoon, according to plans announced last night by United States Attorney Dwight H. Green.

Mr. Green and his special assistant prosecutor, Leslie E. Salter, who delivered the major part of his closing argument to the jury yesterday afternoon, have decided to curtail further arguments sharply this morning, bringing the case to a close at 11 o'clock. Mr. Green will talk about half an hour in final statement of the government's view of this case.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson said last night that in this event he would begin his oral instructions to the jury at once.

Expect Unhurried Verdict.

As the instructions are expected to contain some comment on the evidence heard during the eight weeks of this big financial trial, as well as giving the jurors the law they must follow, it will be at least two hours before the jurors retire to their room to consider the verdict.

With 17 defendants to consider and much evidence of a documentary nature, this verdict is not expected to be a hurried one, although the jurors may be anxious to get home for Sunday dinner.

The indictment contains 25 counts, with possible punishment of five years in prison and a fine of $5,000 on each count. The jurors, however, have only to say guilty or not guilty as to each defendant on each count. The court fixes the punishment.

List Each Offense Separately.

Each count of the indictment alleges a separate offense in mailing information said to be false and misleading to prospective buyers of Corporation Securities common stock in 1929 and 1930.

From every aspect this has been one of the most important financial-criminal trials ever held in this country. Regardless of the personal outcome to the defendants the results to flow from it may change many aspects and practices of directorships, stock selling campaigns, investment company setups, and methods of accounting.

It has dealt in billions and in giant reputations in the utilities and financial world. Men will be careful before they put their heads in that sort of a noose again. The phrase "Let the buyer beware" may have a different meaning in this country.

Trial Closes Dramatically.

The closing scenes of the trial yesterday held moments of great human drama. If the latest dictum of science is true, that the human brain gives forth rays of light, then the color of that coming from the ranks of the defendants must have been blue or ultra-violet. They listened to one of the most terrific tongue lashings ever given a group of men of their standing in the community.

The aura from the prosecution table would be red as Mr. Salter churned up an almost evangelical fury against the practices of these men of wealth, treating them as money changers that should be whipped from the temple they had desecrated. In the direction of the jury box the atmosphere was foggy. And the white nimbus of truth—where was it?

Floyd E. Thompson, attorney for Samuel Insull and his son, Samuel Jr., said the last word for the defense before noon. It was a moving plea which had defendants and their relatives and some of the lawyers weeping.

Defense Lawyer in Tears.

Mr. Thompson wiped the tears from his own eyes as he marshaled his last bit of evidence and then besought the jurors to "send this old man, Insull, back to his home and send his son back to a motherless boy." The younger Insull has a 3 year old son; his wife died last February.]

Mr. Salter at times had the courtroom in a strange quiet, like that before the arrival of a hurricane. They did not know what he might say next, where he would strike. He summed up the government's evidence in a way that struck the defendants with horror

HIGHLY COMBUSTIBLE

Cleveland, O., Nov. 23.—[Special.]—More than 100 beneficiaries under the will of the late Henry C. Richman, who died Feb. 16, today were receiving a large portion of his 3 million dollar estate through distribution made by executors.

Mr. Richman, secretary-treasurer of Richman Brothers, clothing manufacturers, included Jewish, Catholic, and Protestant educational and charitable institutions in his will. Both white and colored organizations shared in the gifts.

Employés of the Richman concern received 4,000 shares of company stock from the estate through the Richman Brothers Foundation which will have an income of $30,000 annually for sick and death benefits. The employés do not have to pay into the foundation to receive its aid.

Distribution of shares of stock, cash dividends was also made to many individual beneficiaries under the will, including many who are employés of the company.

Executors also sent each institution a check for $2.25 a share, which is the amount of the dividends paid on the shares from the day of Mr. Richman's death until now.

Dead Woman's Home Gives Up Half Million

New York, Nov. 23.—[Special.]—The Herle family house in 12th street, Brooklyn, gave up $517,575.77 in cash, bonds, mortgages, checks, and bank pass books today.

Ever since Miss Louisa Herle, 79 year old recluse, died nearly a month ago workmen have been searching the building for her wealth.

First they cleared out her living quarters in the basement. This brought $143,000 to light. All week a crew progressed slowly through the house, but found no further trace of the fortune. Only the cellar remained untouched.

Dust Blankets Hall.

The outlook was forbidding. The steep stairs leading down from the basement hallway were cluttered with plaster and virtually impassable. Junk, smashed furniture, piles of lumber, a discarded stove, and innumerable odds and ends littered the floor and in places reached up to the ceiling. Over all was a blanket of dust and plaster. It was the foundation of the home Jacob Herle built for himself about 1860.

Today workmen found a large safe deposit box wrapped in a newspaper hidden under a pile of ashes. Within the box were seventy-nine pass books for New York City banks with balances totaling $489,933.12, and three mortgages—two for $5,500 and one for $3,000.

Uncashed checks for $1,192.65 and $6,225 worth of bonds likewise were stowed among the rubbish. They were carefully packed with paper, but no outward sign of their whereabouts guided the searchers.

Find Cache of Money.

Workers finally cleared the cellar. Fresh air began to circulate where it had not for fifty years. Then a workman happened to strike the wall beside the cellar stair. It sounded hollow.

Picking away the plaster, workmen exposed a cache of tobacco tins. Each tin was stuffed with cash, the total amount being $6,225. Most of the cash was in bills, but $282.50 was in gold—several pieces were for $2.50.

Shortly after Miss Herle died, Oct. 27, investigators found about $100,000 in mortgages in her safe. Last Monday an additional $4,300 cash was drawn out from under the kitchen linoleum. To date, therefore, the Herle fortune found in the residence is estimated at $660,575. It is believed that Miss Herle possessed $1,500,000 at the time of her death.

ROBBER PHONES POLICE STATION TO FREE VICTIM

A new era of coöperation between robber and victim was ushered in yesterday by the gunman who took $30 from Joseph H. Wiemold, 4756 Drexel avenue, truck driver for the Mickelberry Sausage company, 801 West 49th place.

Wiemold was making a delivery at Dakin street and Sheridan road when the robber, with drawn pistol, forced him into the refrigerator on the truck. Wiemold asked the robber not to lock the door of the truck for fear he would freeze to death before help arrived.

"I'll lock it," the robber said, "but if you promise not to make an outcry before I get away I'll send the police to let you out." Wiemold promised and the man departed. A few minutes later the robber telephoned the Central police about the robbery and Sergt. Michael Ahern and his squad of the Town Hall station freed the truck driver.

BAD WINDSHIELD WIPER AIDS IN BANDITS' ESCAPE

A faulty windshield wiper provided the means of escape for four bandits early this morning after they had been unable to elude a pursuing Berwyn police car in a speeding gun battle through sleepy west side suburbs.

Within a few minutes the robbers had held up thirty customers at the Elmwood Gardens, 6434 West Ogden avenue, Berwyn, and another tavern at 6838 Cermak road, Berwyn, obtaining nearly $2,000 in cash and jewelry.

As they were leaving the second place the police car containing Sergt. Joseph Pilot and Policeman Charles Rudderham took up the chase.

Finally the robbers drove through a huge mud puddle at 55th street and Cicero avenue. Dirty water splashed onto the police car's windshield. The wiper failed to work and the policemen, blinded, abandoned the chase.

CROWD WATCHES FIREMEN RESCUE 3 FROM BLAZE

In view of more than a thousand spectators, firemen rescued two women and a child from a burning apartment building at 538-40 Wrightwood avenue last night. No one was injured.

Trapped on the fourth floor when the stairway caught fire were Mrs. Dorothy McClelland, 35 years old, and Mrs. Ann Godman, 32 years old, and her daughter, Doris, 13 years old. Firemen lifted the child and the women down a ladder while hoses sprayed water on the side of the building. The loss was estimated at $5,000.

Judge Orders Girl in 'Badger' Trial Released

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Federal Judge William H. Holly late yesterday indicated he would enter an order discharging Mrs. Mary Coates, 25 year old blonde manicurist of Cincinnati, on trial with her ex-convict husband, Lloyd Coates, and his ex-convict friend, Edward Gladstone, alias Grady, for conspiracy to impersonate a federal officer and aiding and abetting in the impersonation.

Assistant United States Attorney Edward A. Fisher had completed the first of the prosecution's closing arguments outlining the part the defendants played in what he indicated was a version of the "old badger game," with Charles P. Morton, wealthy 65 year old Cincinnati shoe manufacturer, as the victim.

Fisher sketched Morton's story of how Morton met Mary on a train bound for Chicago, how they both registered at the Congress hotel, and how Lloyd in the rôle of outraged husband confronted them in Morton's room and, introducing Grady as a federal agent, demanded $100,000.

Judge Indicates Discharge.

Attorney Henry Freeman, who had prepared a 15 minute argument in defense of blue eyed Mary, who he previously had said was "a little country girl from Alabama," arose to present his oration.

"I don't think I need listen to it," Judge Holly said. "I'm going to discharge her.

"There possibly may have been evidence presented to support a charge of conspiracy to extort, but there is not enough evidence to convince beyond a reasonable doubt that she was implicated in a conspiracy to aid Grady in impersonating a federal officer," Judge Holly continued.

Prosecutor Fisher protested vigorously.

"She allowed herself to be the lure. It was the first time she got Morton out of the state," he said.

"There's nothing to indicate she had an agreement with her husband," said Judge Holly, "and she did nothing to aid them. She simply sits by mute. She just lies there on the bed in the hotel room——"

"That's just the trouble," said Mr. Fisher. "That's where she aided them. Instead of being a crushed woman, she lies there nonchalantly."

Discharge Order Monday.

Before court adjourned Judge Holly released Mrs. Coates on her own bond, returnable Monday, when, he said, he would enter the order discharging her. This action, he said, was taken in order that she would not be confined over the week-end in the Bridewell, where she has been since shortly after the trio's arrest last month.

Arguments on both sides completed, Judge Holly indicated he would like to hear more from the prosecution on the wording of the statute, which makes it a crime to impersonate a federal officer "with intent to defraud," and that of the indictment.

The indictment charges the defendants with impersonating an officer and, as such, demanding $100,000 from Morton.

Mr. Morton, a white haired man who testified the previous day, was not in court as the session closed.

Judge Bars Reading of Diary.

The day's session held its disappointments for defense attorneys despite Mary's first victory. An effort had been made by Leo Klein, attorney for Coates, to introduce the little green diary which Mary had identified as hers. Judge Holly declared that it was inadmissible as evidence.

Attorney Klein wanted to present it in support of Lloyd's testimony that he came to Chicago to trap his wife with Morton after secretly reading her diary and finding a memorandum on the proposed trip. Attorney Freeman

BALK INSURANCE COMPANY THEFT BY BANK LOOTER

A vast fraud, in which the goal of the plotters was millions of dollars, has been exposed through investigation by the state's attorney's office of a $54,000 theft from the Amalgamated Trust and Savings bank, 111 West Jackson boulevard.

The bank theft was made known last Tuesday when Otto Van Derck, 23 year old ledger clerk, confessed his share in the stealing and named three others as being involved in it. They are Dave [Long Count] Barry, prize fight referee; Joseph Baiata, alias Marcino, notorious ex-convict who was Barry's partner in several business enterprises, and Abraham Karatz, formerly an attorney in St. Paul.

Bare Vast Looting Scheme.

Yesterday, after a confession had been made by Hayden Sanders, a cat's-paw of Baiata, recently appointed treasurer of the Abraham Lincoln Life Insurance company of Springfield, Ill., the state's attorney's office disclosed that the thefts from the bank were only a part of a scheme to take over two financial institutions and to loot them of their assets.

Orders were given by First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert Crowley to arrest Gustav Lindquist, who was appointed president of the Abraham Lincoln company at the time Sanders was made treasurer. Lindquist was questioned Thursday and promised to return to the state's attorney's office yesterday, but failed to do so.

Ousted from New Jobs.

He and Sanders were removed as officers of the insurance company at a meeting of the directors in Springfield yesterday.

Frank E. McAllister, attorney for Lindquist, said last night that his client, who always had been a man of the highest reputation and was formerly state insurance commissioner of Minnesota, was a dupe in the plot.

"He has worried himself into what might be described as a half demented state," said the attorney. "I am looking everywhere for him, and if he can be located I will advise him to coöperate with the authorities to the fullest extent."

Stolen Bond Market Goal.

From the confessions of Van Derck and Sanders, who was a dice shaker in a loop café before Baiata made him treasurer of the Abraham Lincoln company, the state's attorney's office learned that:

1. The Baiata group planned to steal enough money from the Amalgamated bank to pay for control of the insurance company and a bank in Indianapolis.

2. That once in control of these institutions they proposed to flood them with quantities of stolen bonds, which could be bought cheaply from criminals and turned over at face value to the institutions.

So far as could be learned last night no part of the program except the bank theft, and that partially, has been accomplished.

State Inspector on Job.

State Insurance Director Ernest Palmer has had an inspector in the Abraham Lincoln offices ever since Lindquist and Sanders took over, and all disbursements, even the salary list, have been under strict supervision.

"The insurance company, which has admitted assets of more than $13,000,000 and insurance of $60,000,000 in force, is in good shape," said Mr. Palmer. "The policyholders need have no fears. It is probable that the whole company will be taken over by another Illinois company in a short time."

This announcement was corroborated by new officials of the company elected yesterday.

"Master Mind" Notorious.

Baiata is regarded as the master mind and the dominant figure in the plot. He has had a reputation as a swindler for more than ten years. He was convicted in 1924 of looting the First National bank of Warren, Mass., of $213,000, and was sentenced to the Atlanta federal penitentiary. He remained there three years and then served three years more in the Massachusetts prison.

A former Halsted street barber, Baiata wrecked half a dozen banks and an insurance company in Buffalo, N. Y., before he was convicted in Massachusetts. A short, fat man under 40 years old, he seems to have been able to impress his personality on all his associates. None of them, except Sanders, was ever rewarded by anything more than promises.

About a year ago Baiata came to Chicago and became Barry's partner. Under the names Dave Barry, Inc., and Barry Enterprises, a saloon at 112 West Madison street and two World's Fair concessions, the Garden of Champions and the Chinese show on the Bowery, were operated. The two companies had accounts in the Amalgamated and in other banks in the loop.

Young Van Derck, who confessed because the pace was getting too hot for him, said that Baiata persuaded him to put through overdrafts signed by Barry and countersigned by Baiata for the entire $54,000.

Only $200 for Bank Clerk.

"They gave me no more than $200," Van Derck said. "When I protested about the huge checks coming in, Baiata told me he was buying an insurance company and a bank and that I'd have a good job out of it and also that he'd let me repay the Amalgamated the entire shortage. He could do this by floating hot bonds into the bank and insurance company, he said."

Baiata and Karatz purchased control of the Abraham Lincoln company stock early in October. They paid $25,000 down—according to Van Derck and Sanders, getting it from the stolen bank money—and were to pay the balance in instalments until the full purchase price of $400,000 had been completed.

The second payment was due Nov. 15, but was not met. An extension of five days was granted, and the Baiata group was desperately in need of money by Tuesday. Not only was the insurance stock payment due but they had also contracted to purchase control of the Indianapolis bank, and to pay $25,000. Investigators have refused to divulge the name of this bank.

Picks Assistant Casually.

Sanders, who was casually picked up by Baiata in the café a few weeks before his elevation to high financial position, and Lindquist wrote a check for $25,000 on the insurance company's account in the Amalgamated. It was made out to W. W. Ehlers, who had been set up in a broker's office by Baiata. Ehlers was unable to cash the check because the bank officers could not identify him sufficiently.

Both Van Derck and Sanders said that this money was to be used in buying the insurance company stock, had it been obtained. To care for the capital needed in the bank deal, according to the two confessing members of the band, four checks on the Barry, Inc., account were put through. They totaled $26,000. But while they were in the process of clearing young Van Derck made his admissions and payment was stopped. So was the plot as a whole.

Baiata, Karatz Pose as Brokers.

In the purchase of the insurance company stock, Baiata and Karatz appeared not as principals but as brokers. Lindquist alone was the purchaser and his failure to tell the state insurance director who his backers were resulted in the strict supervision of the company.

State's attorney's investigators and Lieut. Charles Welling of the detective bureau, however, found a contract in Karatz's effects showing that Lindquist was to get 15 per cent of the stock and Baiata and Karatz 42½ per cent each. Lindquist's salary as president was to be $15,000, but $5,000 of this was to be turned over to the others.

Sanders said he was given $300 a month as company treasurer. Had the Indianapolis bank been purchased, he was to have the post of president, Ehlers was to be made vice president.

Admits Taking Company Bonds.

Sanders confessed that, to impress the stockholders of the bank of his financial responsibility, he took $85,000 of the Abraham Lincoln's bonds to the Indiana metropolis and displayed them. These were in a safe deposit vault in Indianapolis when the Van Derck story broke and he hurried there to retrieve the securities and place them in the insurance company portfolio again.

The insurance company's $25,000 check, Sanders admitted, was written on a specially printed blank and not on the check book of the office. Ostensibly it was to represent a purchase of bonds, but the only assurance there would be any bonds was Baiata's casual promise of some—later. It was the vigilance of the Amalgamated bank officers that prevented the cashing of this check. They issued a draft for it, but Ehlers was unable to get it through any bank and the draft finally returned to the bank with the request that it be put back to the Abraham Lincoln's credit.

Others Duped, They Say.

Barry and Ehlers claim to have been dupes of Baiata. The former said he signed checks in blank and had no idea now much money there was in the bank. Ehlers declared that he worked for Baiata only because the swindler offered him a good job while he was out of work. Lindquist, according to his attorney, also was unaware that anything was wrong until the last days of the plot.

Young Van Derck painted Baiata as the Napoleon of the whole financial dream and Karatz has made no statement.

Barry, Baiata and Karatz have been formally charged with the larceny of the bank's $54,000. Of the trio, only Barry was able to furnish bonds of $10,000 and gain his liberty. The other two are held in the county jail.

PROPOSES NEW TESTS TO FIND SUCCESS ROAD

Psychologist Puts Stress on Substitute Ability.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 23.—(AP)—A new psychological solution for one of life's biggest puzzles, how to find the job for which you are best fitted, was proposed tonight at Yale colloquium.

The tests psychology has been developing for 30 years are wrong, the conference was told by Dr. H. M. Johnson, professor of psychology at the American university, Washington, D. C.

Proposes to Rate Success.

The old tests rate the ability. Dr. Johnson's new formula proposes to rate success. The old rule, he said, is to grade a persons's skill. Under that, if a job required five different types of skill, a test of each would be made on the person wishing to qualify.

This applicant might possess four of the skills in high degree, but lack the fifth. He would get a high rating because of high standing in four-fifths of the requirements.

But on the job, Dr. Johnson said, this person would be a failure—must as a tenor singer who was perfect in everything except reaching high notes.

Seeks Substitute Abilities.

Dr. Johnson's new technique would first rate the abilities required for the vocation sought. It would note the deficiencies. Then it would seek, by methods well established already in psychology, for substitute abilities which might be employed for the deficiencies.

"One forgets," he said, "that some of these skills are interchangeable."

This explains the one or two talent persons who makes a big success. His limited talents happen to be exchangeable. They cover more than one kind of work, so that they will bridge his deficiencies.

"While the new method has not been previously definitly formulated," Dr. Johnson said, "certain practical men have been definitly groping toward it. They have been hindered in their efforts by the propaganda of certain groups of psychologists."

MRS. VANDERBILT REOPENS FIGHT TO REGAIN CHILD

Acts to Clear Way for Appeal in Case.

The order was served upon Justice Carew in his chambers by Louis D. Frohlich, associate of Nathan Burkan, Mrs. Vanderbilt's counsel. The order directed the justice to show cause on Nov. 30 why he should not be required either to sustain or dismiss the writ of habeas corpus sought by Mrs. Vanderbilt in the Supreme court case.

This was done, it was explained, to clear the way for an appeal from the ruling placing Gloria in the custody of Mrs. Whitney for five and a half days a week and to her mother for a day and a half. Justice Carew did not rule on the writ as such, but instead declared the child a ward of the Supreme court, and gave directions as to custody by Mrs. Whitney and visits to the mother on Saturdays and Sundays.

Appeal Might Be Thrown Out.

Lack of conclusive disposal of the writ might lead to an appeal being thrown out, after Mrs. Vanderbilt had spent from $7,500 to $15,000 in printing the record of the hearings before Justice Carew and in otherwise preparing her case, her attorneys said.

Justice Carew will not be required to appear in court, the procedure being to submit briefs in such cases. It was regarded as likely that the brief upholding his decision will be presented by Herbert C. Smyth, attorney for Mrs. Whitney, since her interests are affected.

"I think my order was a final order, and that it is all right," said Justice Carew. "So far as I am concerned, however, the appellate division can do whatever it likes with it. If they think I should amend it, I shall amend it."

Regards It as Final Order.

It previously had been made known that the justice regarded a phrase in the order to the effect that it was a final disposing, as making the case appealable.

Justice Carew's decision placing the daughter in custody of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, her paternal aunt, for five days a week, was followed in Surrogate's court by action bearing on the child's $2,800,000 estate. George W. Wickersham and Thomas B. Gilchrist, as co-guardians, opposed the plea of Mrs. Vanderbilt that she be made a guardian, also, of the estate.

The action in Surrogate's court grew out of an application by Mrs. Vanderbilt, made some months ago but held in abeyance because of the pending habeas corpus action to determine the custody of Gloria. Mr. Wickersham and Mr. Gilchrist's opposition to Mrs. Vanderbilt's petition that she be made a co-guardian was in the form of an answer laid before Surrogate Foley.

Review History of Appointment.

In their answer, made through the legal firm of Cadwelader, Wickersham & Taft, the co-guardians denied Mrs. Vanderbilt's allegation that appointment of "some proper person" was necessary to safeguard Gloria's legal rights. They reviewed the history of their appointments, and declared upon information and belief that Mrs. Vanderbilt is not qualified by experience or training to perform the duties of guardian.

She has, in addition, frequently been absent from the United States, which would hinder "the consultation and coöperation desirable in the management of the estate," the answer declared. Appointment of an additional guardian also would add to the expenses of administration, it was stated. In conclusion, the co-guardians cited Judge Carew's decision, and declared that the guardian's belief, in view of the decree and the evidence which preceded it, that the interests of Mrs. Vanderbilt may be adverse to those of her daughter.

Mrs. Vanderbilt Ill.

At Mrs. Vanderbilt's home, Mrs. Benjamin Thaw Jr., her sister, reiterated a charge made by Mrs. Vanderbilt on Thursday that she had been offered $50,000 a year if she would give up custody of her daughter. Mrs. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Thaw explained, was ill as the result of the strain of a long interview in which she condemned Justice Carew's ruling, and announced her intention to appeal.

The offer, Mrs. Vanderbilt said, had been made in a conversation at her home last September. Others said to have been there denied, however, that such an offer had been made. Mr. Gilchrist, for one, saying that he remembered only a statement made by Mrs. Laura Kilpatrick Morgan, mother of Mrs. Vanderbilt, to the effect that Mrs. Whitney probably would make it worth Mrs. Vanderbilt's while to let Gloria remain at the Whitney home.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, according to Mr. Gilchrist, expressed surprise as a suggestion that she "should sell her child," and the matter was not carried further.

Gloria, under guard at the home of Mrs. Whitney at Roslyn, Long Island, because of threats made against her, continued to remain there today. Dispatches from Roslyn stated that she probably will become a parishioner of St. Mary's Roman Catholic church in the village, under the terms of Justice Carew's order specifying that the child be reared in the Catholic faith.

Mrs. Vanderbilt was reported as further disturbed as a result of the threats.

Defendants' Income Tax Returns Under Study.

State's Attorney Courtney announced yesterday that the T-N-T conspiracy case, declared a mistrial Thursday by Judge William V. Brothers, would be retried after the Christmas holiday season. Before its abrupt end the trial had been in hearing for nine weeks at an estimated cost of $150,000 to the county.

At the same time it was intimated that the income tax returns of some of the 15 business men and labor leaders who are defendants in the case were under investigation by the government. The intimation came yesterday during a spirited argument by defense attorneys before Judge Brothers for the return of books of the Trucking and Transportation exchange [T-N-T] and alleged affiliated companies, Associated Contractors, Inc., and Engineering Service corporation.

"These books are the property of the defendants," Defense Attorney Ben Short told Judge Brothers," and they should be returned because this income tax question has come up."

Motion for Return Denied.

He did not enlarge on the statement and government officials refused to comment on the matter. The motion for return of the books was denied by Judge Brothers on the ground that the books were held under a court impounding order and could be viewed at any time by the defendants.

The trial was ended Thursday, when Judge Brothers ruled that a remark made by Prosecutor Donald Thompson in the presence of the jury constituted a reversible error. Following testimony concerning payment of $2,000 to John M. Bransfield, contractor, and a defendant, the prosecutor had leaped to his feet and shouted that he thought the money "a graft payment."

"No one is to be criticized for what happened yesterday," Judge Brothers said. "Next time this case is tried it can be considerably shortened by stipulation of evidence already introduced. I am continuing the case until Dec. 3, while I confer with the chief justice on reassignment."

Judge Gets Gift from Jurors.

It was pointed out that only Judges Walter La Buy and Cornelius J. Harrington are eligible to hear the case as changes of venue taken before the first trial still are effective. At the conclusion of the hearing the jurors presented a wooden inlaid gavel made by Juror Hans Kollner, 3120 Cortland street, to Judge Brothers.

"Is this all over, your honor," Juror John MacMillan, 10214 South Parkway, inquired as the attorneys prepared to leave. He was assured that his service had ended.

"I'm glad of that," MacMillan told the judge. "Now I can talk to my wife again."

Two Who Died on Desert Isle Identified by Ship Captain

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

Aboard the Tuna Clipper Northwestern, at Los Angeles Harbor, Cal., Nov. 23.—A solution of the death mystery of two men at the equator was offered today by Capt. Fred Ostrem, skipper of this ship just in from the Galapagos Islands.

From Associated Press radio descriptions of the two bodies found last Saturday on waterless Marchena Island, Capt. Ostrem identified the victims as Arthur Estampa, 34, Norwegian of Indefatigable Island, in the Archipelago, and Alfred Rudolph Lorenz, 40, of Paris, deserted companion of the Baroness Eloise Bonsquet de Wagner of Charles Island.

Believes Boat Was Wrecked.

He expressed belief their presence on the bleak volcanic beach of Marchena was due to the wrecking of Estampa's schooner Falcon on a reef jutting out from the southeast tip of the tragedy isle.

Estampa, he said, was known by Vincent Astor. The engine of Estampa's old pilot schooner, the Falcon, was sent to the island several years ago for services rendered by Estampa in hunting Galapagos turtles.

Back of the tragedy, Capt. Ostrem said, is one of the strangest stories that ever came out of this mysterious Archipelago, once the haunt of pirates and later of whalemen.

Capt. Ostrem said the description of one man as baldheaded with a tuft of light brown hair on back, and six feet in height, together with the finding of baby clothes, convinced him beyond all doubt that Estampa was the victim.

Knows All on Island.

He knows all the inhabitants of the islands.

Estampa's friendship for Lorenz grew out of one of the sensational episodes during the early part of the reign of the Baroness as "empress" of Charles Island.

Ostrem's disclosures came just as the exploration cruiser Velero III. set sail for the Galapagos Islands with a crew which hoped to unravel the equatorial mystery.

The Northwestern's skipper quoted Estampa as having told an amazing story of affairs on Charles Island, over a portion of which the baroness, a former Parisienne, ruled as "empress."

Tells Story of Baroness.

"The story he told me about the baroness was a wild one," said Ostrem.

"It was barely three years ago, just after the arrival of the baroness at the island.

"Estampa went over there in his schooner with a small crew of Ecuadoreans. They were shooting fresh meat. Suddenly, he told me, he was captured by the companions of the baroness.

"She was infuriated, he said. She locked him up. The capture, he said, was made by a big Ecuadorean, six foot three, who was with the baroness at that time.

Baroness Is Furious.

"He told the baroness that he had permission from the Ecuadorean government to hunt on Charles Island and get meat. She furiously replied that it was her property.

"On the third day of his imprisonment, just before dawn, one of the men released him. This was Lorenz. He scrambled over the volcanic rocks to the home of Dr. Griedrich Ritter, four miles away.

"The Ritters sheltered him and got word to the Ecuadorean crew to bring the Falcon from Postoffice Bay anchorage to the Black Beach Road anchorage, near the Ritter abode.

"Estampa went aboard and returned to his home in Santa Cruz island.

"He told me that he would never return to Charles Island while the baroness was there, for he was in fear of his life."

Capt. Ostrem reflected on the other characters in the island.

24 Persons on Island.

"There are 24 persons on Santa Cruz, or Indefatigable Island, 11 of whom are foreigners, the rest Ecuadoreans.

"Mr. Astor will remember Estampa well. He was Astor's guide for a week or more during a visit to the islands.

"He was a farming man from the interior of Norway. He came to the islands about eight years ago and established a plantation on Santa Cruz. His companions there were Erling Jansen and Arthur von Miller. Von Miller was married.

PAROLE CAPONE? NOT IN 11 YEARS, AVERS OFFICIAL

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 23.—(AP)—There will be no parole for Al Capone or the other Alcatraz Island prison "incorrigibles," Col. Joel Moore, chief federal probation officer, made known today.

"Al Capone and others of his like will have to serve out their entire terms in Alcatraz prison. There will be no paroles recommended by my department for them," Col. Moore declared. "Capone must serve out his 11 year sentence."

EXPECT ARREST OF HEADMASTER SLAYER SHORTLY

Boston, Mass., Nov. 23.—[Special.]—Although the 12 gauge shotgun barrel found at Northfield yesterday was eliminated today as a clew in the murder of Headmaster Elliot Speer of Mount Hermon Preparatory school, it was learned that the police expect the man they suspect of the killing will be arrested and charged with the murder at an inquest set for Dec. 3.

The shotgun barrel was eliminated as a clew today when it was identified by Fred A. Davis of Northfield as part of a worn out gun which he threw away three years ago.

ELECTION CHEAP TO CONGRESSMEN FROM ILLINOIS

Britten, Loser, Spends Most, $3,400.

Representative Allen of Galena reported to the clerk of the house today he spent not one cent throughout his campaign.

Representative Keller and Representative Elect McKeogh likewise reported their expenditures had come to nothing. Their statements were preliminary, and the enrolling clerk, Leroy D. Brandon, said there was a possibility they might have spent a few dollars not yet reported.

Brennan Spends Only $50.

The largest amount was spent by Representative Britten of Chicago, who was defeated by the former Representative James McAndrew, a Democrat. In his preliminary report Britten said he disbursed $3,400, of which $2,900 was exempt.

The campaign expenditure which caused the most interest in Brandon's office was that of Martin Adlai Brennan, Democratic incumbent representative at large.

Two years ago Brennan reported his expenditures at $3, and apologized to the federal government for getting "hooked" for that much. He explained his vanity got the better of his real nature and the $3 was spent to have a phonograph record made of his voice.

Listed as Nonexempt.

This year Brennan spent $50—for campaign cards. There was no apology.

Whatever is spent to cause people to vote in a candidate's favor is listed as nonexempt, while personal expenses for food and "ordinary" travel are listed as exempt. All contributions must be listed.

ICKES PROGRAM BRINGS PROTEST BY HOUSING HEAD

Claims It Would Wreck Home Financing.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 23.—[Special.]—James A. Moffett, federal housing administrator, declared today that a sweeping government housing program, such as Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes advocated yesterday, would refreeze 21 billion dollars in mortgages, imperil the equity of 29 million home owners and defeat the whole purpose of the national housing act.

Moffett's vehement defense of his program of building through private financing brought the conflict between him and Ickes into sharper relief and made it evident that these two potent New Dealers are working at cross purposes while their chief, President Roosevelt, is away.

There was much speculation as to whether the President had not intervened by telephone, for Secretary Ickes called Mr. Moffett during the afternoon and said there had been "misguided efforts to create a false impression" of what he said.

Ickes Issues Statement.

Mr. Ickes issued a formal statement saying he indorsed the program of the housing administration to encourage private capital and that his views were misstated after his press conference yesterday. What he said at that conference was that the government ought to compete with private capital if rates are "socially too high," and he went on to advocate a huge public works program with all kinds of housing, including individual homes.

"I have heard no complaints that building costs are excessively high and no complaints on wages," said Mr. Moffett. "After all, the purpose of the NRA from the very start has been to restore 1926 levels. A couple of months ago the wage scale was only 90 per cent of the 1926 level and freight rates and the cost of building materials were also lower."

Secretary Ickes said the treasury could finance housing at a cost of 3 per cent and sell the homes on long term contracts, possibly without down payments. Mr. Moffett said he knew of no place in the world where housing could be financed for 3 per cent.

Would Coördinate Activities.

Moffett advocated a clearing agency in which all forms of government housing activities—which are now proceeding on four fronts—would have to be approved with a view of determining whether they conflicted with the private financing program under the national housing act.

He did not think slum clearance activities would interfere because such activity has always been subsidized, but he would limit PWA to this field and subsistence homesteads, with perhaps some low cost housing in rural areas shunned by private capital.

Secretary Ickes urged a reduction in the cost of building materials and the wages of labor in the building trades, saying the workers would get less per day, but more per year.

HOLDS DOWN 2 JOBS, BUT ASKS CUT IN ALIMONY

All work and no play brought William O. Homer, 53 years old, 2221 Addison street, before Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort yesterday. He appeared to petition that the judge reduce his $30 monthly alimony payments to his second wife, Mrs. Felicity E. Homer, 4340 Drexel boulevard.

"She divorced me in 1931," Homer said. "She was granted $30 a month, and ever since then I've had to work at two jobs to make both ends meet. Right now I teach science at the Lane Technical High school by day and by night I'm an armed guard at the new postoffice."

Upon learning that Homer makes $3,300 a year at his two jobs, Judge Desort refused to reduce the alimony payments.

GETS CENT REFUND

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Anna Daley, 24 years old, 1825 Washburn avenue, was the recipient yesterday of a 1 cent refund from the Illinois Bell Telephone company as her share of the $18,000,000 which the company is returning to coin box subscribers as the result of a United States Supreme court decision. However, Mrs. Daley, whose husband is on relief, thinks there has been a mistake and will try to collect $2.25 more deducted as an unpaid telephone bill. She declares since she gave up her telephone in 1929 at 1410 South Ashland avenue, where her mother still lives, no effort was made to collect the bill, which she thinks was paid.

FIREMEN LEARN HOW TO OPERATE SPRAY FOR BURNS

Officials of the Chicago fire department gathered yesterday afternoon at the department's repair shops, 31st street and Sacramento avenue, to witness a demonstration of a spray gun used in the treatment of burns.

The gun, developed by Capt. James Hughes and his firemen of Squad No. 9, is said to mark an important advance in the method of spraying burns with tannic acid, which the medical profession recognizes as the most effective treatment for cutaneous burns. All rescue squads and truck companies are to be equipped with the device.

Among those at the demonstration were Fire Marshal Michael J. Corrigan, Deputy Marshal Anthony J. Mullaney, Dr. Harold P. Sullivan, department physician, and the Rev. William J. Gorman, chaplain of the department.

SILENT NRA STILL CARRYING $100,000 PUBLICITY STAF

Washington, D. C., Nov. 23.—(AP)—NRA, which has retreated into a clamlike silence since Hugh S. Johnson's departure, still carries the $100,000 publicity pay roll Johnson created to help sell the Blue Eagle.

In fact, it has two entirely unrelated public relations divisions. One of these divisions, with 32 employés and an annual pay roll of about $64,000, deals directly with the press, preparing official statements, covering NRA code developments and clipping NRA press notices.

The other division, headed by Charles F. Horner, has 24 employés and an annual pay roll around $60,000. This division directs distribution of the Blue Eagle. It also includes NRA's one man speaking bureau, former Gov. William Sweet of Colorado.

Gets 3 Months on Charge of Threatening Witness

Edward Quinn, 19 years old, 617 West 46th place, was sentenced to three months in the county jail by Judge Lambert K. Hayes in the Boys' court yesterday on a charge of intimidation. He was accused of having threatened violence against Roy Robinson, attendant in a filling station at 43d street and Union avenue. The threat was made, it is alleged, in an effort to prevent Robinson from testifying against James Bevans, 19 years old, 329 West 42d place, who was identified as one of a gang which robbed Robinson of $7.

AAA'S CORN-HOG PROGRAM FACES NEW TEST SOON

Farmers Divided on Virtue of Signing Contracts.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

A test of the live stock raisers' and grain farmers' belief in the revolutionary program promoted by the federal agricultural adjustment administration will come during the next few months when producers will have an opportunity to sign or reject the new AAA corn-hog contract for 1935.

Farmers are confronted with conflicting influences. On the one hand they are encouraged by the government bonus checks offered for reducing their corn acreage and hog raising quotas 10 per cent under the 1932-'33 average, according to provisions of next year's contract recently announced. They are also encouraged by promises of governmental officials who point out that reducing production should increase prices.

On the other side, 80 cent corn and empty corn cribs encourage them to be reluctant about signing the new contract. When the 1934 contracts were signed corn was only 45 cents a bushel.

Many Feel Obliged to Sign.

Many farmers feel that they are obliged to sign the contract or lose the $2.25 processing tax which is to be collected on every hundred pounds of hogs they sell up to Nov. 5, 1935, whether they are signers or not.

AAA officials, apparently realizing the difficulty of getting producers to sign the new contract, not only lowered the percentage of corn and hog reduction required of signers, but eased up on the program further by permitting farmers to rent any part of their corn fields to the government, buy feeder pigs from other contract signers, and grow any crop except corn on the rented acres.

Farmers who sign the contract also are to be allowed to reduce their corn acreage up to 30 per cent if they choose and receive additional benefits. In addition, under the 1935 contract, the government offers a benefit payment of 35 cents a bushel, or 5 cents a bushel more than this year, for corn that might have been grown on the acres taken out of production. Farmers will be allowed $15 a head for the number of hogs reduced from the base period average, while this year they received only $5 a head for the number of hogs remaining after the 25 per cent reduction was made.

Expect Majority to Sign.

After the individual farmers in Illinois weigh the good and bad points in connection with the 1935 agricultural adjustment program, it is expected that a large percentage of them will sign the new corn-hog contract as they did this year. Copies of the new contract have not yet reached the corn belt.

Earl Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural association, who expects to sign the 1935 corn-hog contract, said yesterday that he regarded the corn-hog program for next year a step in the direction of a simplified permanent grain adjustment program beginning in 1936.

He thinks the production information gathered during 1934 coupled with the removal of many restrictions in the past year's program will greatly simplify and reduce the cost of its administration next year, "while in no way modifying its effectiveness."

"I believe that farmers generally recognize the necessity for reasonable control of corn production, because without such control and a return of normal weather conditions, surpluses above the demands of the market would again result in abnormally low prices," said Mr. Smith, who was chairman of the national corn-hog committee that aided in developing the AAA adjustment program for hogs and corn.

Argument for Control.

"Farmers have not forgotten the 15 and 20 cent corn of the spring of 1933; neither will they soon forget the price improvement resulting from their first year's efforts to control production supported by the government's 45 cent corn loan program.

"This program alone made possible farmers' receiving the benefit from the recent price advances resulting from crop control, which was augmented by the drouth. In former years such benefits largely accrued to the speculators and grain merchants.

SEYFERLICH SEES MAYOR; RALLIES AFTER BAD NIGHT

Fire Commissioner Arthur R. Seyferlich, gravely ill from a diabetic infection, rallied sufficiently at Henrotin hospital yesterday to receive Mayor Kelly, with whom he talked for several minutes. Mayor Kelly reported that Commissioner Seyferlich had expressed no regrets over his decision to face death rather than allow amputation of his leg. In the afternoon the patient fell into a deep sleep, according to Dr. Ernest S. Moore, the family physician, who added the commissioner had spent a restless night.

The infection, a diabetic gangrenous condition that started in the toes of the right foot, has progressed so far that amputation now would be futile, it was said. Dr. Moore was unable to predict how long his 63 year old patient could live.

Seyferlich was taken to the hospital Oct. 27. Advised that only amputation of his leg could save his life, Seyferlich told the physician: "A one-legged fireman is no fireman. If I can't have both legs I'll have none."

BUSINESS GAINS OVER HANDICAPS, CHAMBER FINDS

Says New Deal Blocks Faster Pace.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 23.—[Special.]—Business is gradually improving, according to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and would be expanding even more substantially were it not for hampering effects of the New Deal.

Issuance of obligations aggregating hundreds of millions of dollars is being held back, the chamber finds, by these two conditions:

1. Monopoly of the long term investment market by federal government and municipal borrowings.

2. The great expense to which issuers of securities are put to comply with the requirements of the securities act.

Reviews Current Situation.

In a review of the current business situation the chamber, which last week proclaimed the intention of organized business to coöperate with the President, cautiously observes:

"Reasonable access to the money market for capital funds is one obvious form of encouragement that would undoubtedly have as good effect here as in England. While our new capital issues in October totaled 121 million dollars, with 80 per cent for account of government agencies, new capital subscriptions in London were the equivalent of 129 millions, with 76 per cent for private enterprise."

This veiled suggestion that the Roosevelt recovery expenditures are standing in the way of a more rapid recovery concludes the chamber's substantially optimistic report of the business trend.

Evidences of Improvement.

"Evidences of improving business sentiment, and a basis for it, seen in October, continue to appear in November," says the chamber's survey. "Such a broad index of national activity as the volume of payments by check in the commercial and industrial centers of the country is running 6 per cent over the level of last year and 20 per cent over the year before.

"There is an obvious tendency in these figures to even up as among the sections of the country. Retail sales keep a steady course, with such factors as signs of stability in retail prices favoring an increase in volume. Stability in wholesale prices has now been persistent over a sufficient period to suggest a leveling off in costs of production and distribution.

"Gradual strengthening of conditions has sustained carloadings of freight, which have shown less than their seasonal decline, added to the movement of bituminous coal, and brought a demand for electric power that has been rising over the seasonal rate, and proceeding at a rate not equaled in November since 1930.

Steel Output Is Better.

"Such data reflect an overcoming of some of the earlier lags in production. From early September the production of steel has advanced moderately each week, until now the level is better than for the corresponding part of any year since 1931. The textile industries continue to regain ground they lost in September.

"The statistics when compiled will undoubtedly be encouraging in their indications of maintenance of employment. In fact, much new employment may not appear on the face of the statistics. That the activities of the housing administration have stimulated employment in building trades, and employment in the manufacture of articles and materials needed for repairs, there can be no doubt. But the statistics which are gathered and published are as likely to miss more advances in these quarters than they reflect.

Satisfactory Month.

"The month, looked back upon when twelvemonth reviews are being compiled for New Year's statements, will probably seem fairly satisfactory. It has been a period of further progress in consolidation of positions from which steady advances are possible, given general conditions permitting orderly planning and execution of business operations.

"In responsible modern enterprise there is such a long interval between origination of additional undertakings and accomplishment, with so large outlays for labor and materials and so small a margin for profit or loss, that a feeling of freedom from the danger of unpredictable outside influences is necessary to release initiative. To give this feeling in many directions it will now require less in the way of reassurance than at any time since spring."

American Born Countess Seriously Shot

Countess Giovanni Cordelli, the former Jacqueline Stewart of New York, who was seriously wounded at Fontainebleau, France, while trying to take a gun apart. The mother of her husband, Count Cordelli, was the former Miss Ruth Lamson of Chicago.

Will Recover

FONTAINEBLEAU, France, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Countess Giovanni Cordelli, the former Jacqueline Stewart of New York, was accidentally shot and seriously wounded today while trying to take a gun apart at her home near Fontainebleau.

The former Miss Stewart and the count were married in 1931. She is the daughter of the Countess Raoul de Roussy de Sales of Paris and Cecil Parker Stewart of New York. Count Cordelli's mother was formerly Miss Ruth Lamson of Chicago.

WASHINGTON'S IMAGE YANKED IN ART-WHISKY ROW

New York, Nov. 23.—(AP)—After a controversy directly involving whisky drinking and George Washington, a carved wood figure of the father of his country was yanked today from the fine arts exhibition in Rockefeller center.

"A strenuous objection to the manner in which the memory of George Washington had been insulted" was lodged with the exposition officials by Messrs. Ginsburg and Levy, exhibitors of the figure.

The cause of all the rumpus was that the likeness of Washington had been placed over a cocktail bar installed for patrons.

Ginsburg and Levy objected when they discovered the benign attitude on Washington's face was being interpreted as indicating his approval of whisky drinking.

Furthermore, a scroll in the hand of Washington was declared by some to be a cocktail shaker.

ROB BLUE ISLAND MARKET OF $250.

ARMED INTRUDER BEATS AND RAPES WOMAN RECLUSE

Mrs. Mary Buhler, 60 years old, a recluse, was beaten and raped last night by an unidentified man in her home on the Tonigan road, one-half mile west of the Waukegan city limits.

The man, who was armed with a pistol, gained entrance to her home, according to Mrs. Buhler, by asking for a drink of water. He then struck her on the head with a club or piece of pipe and dragged her about 150 feet into a field. He left her there unconscious.

Mrs. Buhler, when she revived, went to the home of a neighbor, who called Sherif Lester Tiffany of Lake county. The sherif took her to the Lake County General hospital, where her condition was described as serious.

Cicero Business Man Gets NRA Notice; Puzzled.

Because he saved the United States government $216 on an order of shingles, J. M. Junge yesterday was deprived of the Blue Eagle which had decorated the window of his stained shingle business at 1630 South 47th avenue, Cicero. A telegram from Washington informed Mr. Junge that he had violated code regulations of the National Recovery administration in the money saving deal.

As he went about the business of removing his Blue Eagle from its roost, the shingle dealer expressed bewilderment over the affair. Recently he sold an order of shingles to the United States Coast guard.

Sold On Wholesale Basis.

As was his custom during five years of business dealing with the coast guard, Mr. Junge sold the shingles on a wholesale basis and the price was $484.

Several days later he received a communication from Washington announcing that a complaint had been made that he had violated the retail lumber, lumber products, building materials and building specialties code. Mr. Junge forwarded the facts of the transaction to Washington and heard no more until the eagle snatching wire arrived.

Price $700 Under Retail Code.

"I sold the shingles under the national stained shingle code," Mr. Junge said. "I made the deal under the same conditions as other deals with the coast guard during the last five years.

"I had not bothered to look up the retail lumber code and do not know under what technicality I came under its provisions. If I had sold the order under the retail lumber code the shingles would have cost the government $700."

U. S. CATHOLICS STUDY PLANS TO BOYCOTT GOODS FROM MEXICO

New York, Nov. 23.—[Special.]—Plans for organizing a campaign against Mexican goods and against American tourists traveling in Mexico are being discussed in some Catholic circles, it became known today, as a result of the Mexican government's controversy with the Catholic church.

The Tablet, a Catholic weekly published in Brooklyn, devoted space on the first page to an article revealing that Catholic and non-Catholic groups are preparing to protest against the sale of Mexican merchandise in stores, and to ask the American public not to tour in Mexico.

Recalling the protest of Jewish organizations against the sale of German goods here, the Tablet asserted that it is believed that the Jewish press and Jewish organizations will join the boycott of Mexican goods.

REHM'S DAUGHTER ADMITS SECRET WEDDING IN RENO

Reno, Nev., Nov. 23.—[Special.]—The former Mrs. Louise Rehm La Roche, daughter of the late Frank A. Rehm, Chicago capitalist, who committed suicide in 1932, admitted today she had been married since February to Allan A. Floyd, Nevada mining operator.

Mrs. Floyd refused to say where the wedding took place, but she admitted she had taken a lease on a home in Reno with her new husband.

Also in February Mrs. Floyd won a divorce from Emanuel La Roche of Berne, Switzerland, in a secret hearing before a Reno judge. La Roche, who is known as "Manon" in the sophisticated Parisian set, was charged with cruelty and incompatibility.

Raises Umbrella in Saloon; Superstitious Trio Kill Him

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 23.—Abalos Borderes, 25 years old, decided to play a joke on the frequenters of a saloon known as "La Bodega." Recalling an old Andalusian belief that an open umbrella in a closed room bodes ill luck, he "put the wind up" before the superstitious Spanish patrons of the bar. Within five minutes he was a dead man, knifed and bludgeoned by the horrified owner and two of his customers. The attackers are in jail awaiting trial for manslaughter.

WHALEY TAKES FIRM STAND FOR SOLDIERS' BONUS

Submits Report to Legion Executive Group.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 23.—[Special.]—No compromise on the demand for the immediate cash payment of the soldiers' bonus will be countenanced, Vilas H. Whaley, of Racine, Wis., chairman of the legislative committee of the American Legion, declared today.

He made the statement in submitting his report to the Legion's national executive committee in annual fall session at national headquarters here.

An extremely satisfactory response has been felt throughout the country since the passage of resolutions at the recent national convention at Miami which advocated immediate payments of the adjusted service certificates, Whaley said.

Two Offices Merged.

"There appears to be a general attitude in favor of cancelation of the 220 million dollars accrued interest on loans which already have been made to war veterans," said John Thomas Taylor of Washington, D. C., vice chairman of the legislative committee.

The executive committee voted the consolidation of the two important offices of treasurer and advocate and selected James A. Drain of Spokane, Wash., a past national commander, to assume the dual capacities.

Drain will replace two Indianapolis Legionnaires, Neal Grider, cashier of the People's State bank, who was national treasurer, and Remster Bingham, an attorney, who had been national judge advocate for the last three years.

Debate Greets Proposal.

The proposal to consolidate the two offices and appoint Drain precipitated a prolonged and bitter debate in the executive committee. Edward A. Hayes, retiring national commander, opposed the proposition and warned that difficulties would arise if it were carried out.

National Commander Frank N. Belgrano Jr., urged the consolidation and left the presiding chair to ask the appointment of Drain at a salary of $6,000 a year.

Frank E. Samuel was reappointed national adjutant on Belgrano's recommendation; Thomas M. Owen Jr. of Montgomery, Ala., national historian, and Victor McKenzie of Portland, Ore., national liaison officer.

Junior College Teachers' Tests to Be Held Dec. 27

School teachers who hold valid certificates are eligible to take tests on Dec. 27 for certificates allowing them to teach in the city junior colleges, it was announced yesterday by Henry S. Crane, secretary of the board of examiners of the board of education. Tests will be for certificates in accounting, architectural drawing, botany, economics, graphic arts, physics, political science, sociology, and zoology. They will be held in the Tilden High school.

Brain Trusters Confer with President.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 23.—[Special.]—Power was the topic of the day at the little White House today. President Roosevelt devoted the entire morning and most of the afternoon to the subject which fired his imagination in his three day tour of the Tennessee valley.

From the day's two conferences with the power brain trust is expected to come the creation of a national policy on this phase of public utility. From the President's pronouncements at Tupelo, Miss., and Birmingham, Ala., the legislative program, it is believed, will come an expansion of the TVA program throughout the country.

Those present at the conferences were David E. Lilenthal, director of the TVA; Morris L. Cook, chairman of the water resources committee of the national resources board, and Frank R. McNinch, chairman, and Basil Manly, vice chairman of the federal power commission. Rexford E. Tugwell, undersecretary of agriculture, also took a prominent part in the discussions as No. 1 brain truster.

At the conference the power experts presented a general survey of power developments and potentialities. The latter include the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway and the Colorado river.

One of the chief topics of discussion was the distribution of the benefits of the TVA throughout the country. The President at Corinth, Miss., expressed himself favoring cheaper rates throughout the country. This was considered a challenge to private interests to cut rates or face federal competition.

MULLENBACH ILL OF 'TIRED' HEART AT WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C., Nov. 23.—[Special.]—James Mullenbach, 64, of Chicago, one of President Roosevelt's chief labor arbitrators, is seriously ill at his home here, it was learned today.

Although they admitted that Mr. Mullenbach was seriously ill, physicians attending him and friends characterized as "exaggerated" all reports that his life is in danger. They expressed confidence that he will recover.

Mr. Mullenbach is suffering from a cardiac condition described as "a tired heart muscle." He is confined to his bed at his Washington home. Doctors have declared that he must rest for at least two or three months and that he is not now able to return to Chicago.

Within the last week Mr. Mullenbach has resigned from both the steel and textile labor relations boards.

FIRE CAUSES $4,000 DAMAGE.

Fire yesterday caused damage of $4,000 in the undertaking rooms of W. H. Nelles at 928 Milwaukee avenue. The blaze spread to the living quarters on the second floor, driving Nelles and his family to the street.

Jurors to Get Pay Checks for $250,000 on Monday

As part of his plan to bring all county pay rolls up to date before he is succeeded Dec. 3 by Robert M. Sweitzer, County Treasurer Nash announced yesterday that all County, Superior, Circuit, and Criminal court jurors who served from April to October, inclusive, will receive their pay checks Monday. The pay roll, amounting to about $250,000, will come from tax collections and the sale of $200,000 in 1934 tax anticipation warants, according to Michael J. O'Connor, assistant county controler.

Delay Inquest in Suicide Pact; Sister to Recover

The coroner's inquest into the death of Dr. Samuel Friedman, 55 years old, a dentist, was continued yesterday until Dec. 7 pending the outcome of the condition of Dr. Friedman's sister, Mildreth, 45 years old. The two swallowed sleeping tablets in a suicide pact in their apartment at 143 North Parkside avenue on Thursday. Miss Friedman was still in semi-conscious condition in the West Suburban hospital, but will probably recover, attendants said.

PRESIDENT WILL GET SOME MAIL FROM COBBLER

Mario Ferazzi, Lake Bluff shoe repair man whose wife called the White House Thursday night to protest against the seizure by a constable of seven repairing machines, yesterday announced that he would follow the advice of a presidential secretary and write to President Roosevelt about the matter.

"I owed $120 for royalties on the machines," he said. "I did not pay it simply because I didn't have the money. If I can get the machinery back I can earn enough to pay what I owe. If I don't get it not only will the company not get paid, but I don't see how my family can live. My wife and I are determined not to go on relief, but what can I do when my equipment is all gone?'

Ferazzi struck Constable Rowen Nelson Thursday when he appeared in the shop with a writ of replevin for the machinery. Ferazzi was arrested and Mrs. Ferazzi called Washington in the hope of getting President Roosevelt to interfere. While this conversation was going on the constable took the machinery.

and dismay. Harold L. Stuart and Stanley Field felt his merciless attack. Names meant nothing to him. It was the record of their acts only that he discussed.

In an argument seldom heard in any courtroom Mr. Salter discussed the character witnesses that the defense had called to the witness stand. One or two of the defense lawyers had made reference to this in their arguments.

Talks on Character Witnesses.

This led the prosecutor to say:

"Character is what you are; reputation is what folks think you are. When the reputation of this company fell they brought in Stanley Field and Edward J. Doyle to build up this structure which was built on crumbling sands. And this in the face of the boast that they could sell this stock to the public if it wasn't anything more than a piece of brown paper.

"Mr. Stuart brings in a former Vice President of the United States [Charles G. Dawes]. He brings in the cardinal of this district to take the stand and testify.

"I don't blame them, gentlemen. They did no more than you would expect your friends to do for you. And especially his eminence the cardinal, who had gone to the pope because Mr. Stuart had done a service for his faith and recommended that he be given the highest decoration that any non-Catholic had ever received.

Admires Cardinal's Stand.

"Why, of course, if he told the pope that Mr. Stuart had a good reputation, even though he might not like to do it, of course he would come and testify about his good reputation now. And, although I am not a Catholic, I admire him. He did no more than I would do for one who had befriended me and my faith.

"This man [Stuart] testified that he was selling this worthless stock when receiving this honor from the hands of the pope, which was a great honor, and thus prostituted that good reputation. This is going a little strong from the standpoint of character witnesses.

"Counsel said that these good people [including Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal church] came here and testified about the reputation of the defendants as an act of mercy and friendship; that they came here and put their stamp of approval upon the acts and conduct of these defendants.

Limitation on Testimony.

"But they had this limitation. They were testifying about reputation prior to this indictment. I don't criticize these good people for coming, but when counsel would argue that way, he is wrong.

"I have friends who would take the stand for me. And no one dare criticize them. They are testifying prior to the time you got into trouble and the time the inherent weakness came out.

"Here is the analogy of a banker who has a good reputation. He cultivates a good reputation so that people will be induced to have confidence in his bank. Many of them do that. Now, supposing he systematically betrayed that confidence and the trust put in him by the good citizens.

"Wouldn't you say he was more guilty than the bank robber who holds up a bank in broad daylight with a gun? At least he gives people a chance to shoot him down. But here is a man, a snake in the grass, violating his trust. No good citizen can put a stamp on that kind of double dealing."

"Doesn't Embarrass Friends."

Mr. Salter turned toward the white haired Samuel Insull, who sat with his chin cupped in his hand, a few feet away.

"But I'll have to say this about Samuel Insull. He sits here and takes it on the chin. You've got to admire him for it. He could have brought in millions to testify for him. Don't you think he couldn't have brought them here. But he doesn't embarrass any one by bringing them in."

Mr. Salter's explanation of the heavy investments made by so many of the defendants in Corporation Securities stock was that they thought they were going to put over something big. To those who had sold part of this stock he had a particular word.

Turns Guns on Sills.

To Clarence W. Sills, who got back $67,000 in 1931, explaining that he was in ill health and was retiring from business, the prosecutor turned and said:

"He ought to be sick in mind, body, and soul for this fraud perpetrated. I don't blame him for being sick. He thought he was going to put it over. He knew the genius of Insull and the Stuarts in Insull Utility Investments stock. This was not a business suicide. Halsey, Stuart & Co. are still at the same old stand, aren't they? There are plenty more suckers. They boast they are still in business.

"Field sold his stock in 1931. Do you want to believe that Field and Doyle were honest in what they pretended to be on the stand; that they didn't know they were invited on this board to lend their names, to support this sinking ship? If they didn't know the scheme and didn't find out about it, they must be found not guilty.

Field and Doyle: "Not So Dumb."

"They are not so dumb. All they did was to lend their prestige at a time when the company certainly needed it. They were a form of window dressing. If you want to believe they were too dumb to know what was going on you can't find them guilty. Our position is that they lent support and became a party.

"You ought to at least recommend that the court appoint a guardian for them, if at a time when the company was on its last legs they came in for a year and a half, approved everything, learned nothing."

The prosecutor argued from the evidence that Corporation Securities was a speculative venture from the first, with the dice loaded in favor of the organizers, who never let the investing public in on the actual facts of the company's assets or prospects.

"These defendants can never say the government didn't give them a fair trial," Salter declared, "and I have an abiding faith that you jurors will come to a fair conclusion.

"The big issue in this case is intent. Defense counsel have gone far back for their comparisons, so permit me to go farther back—to the golden rule as Jesus of Nazareth gave it: 'Do unto others as you would have others do unto you' and we come to the greatest sermon in all history—Jesus speaking on the Mount."

Quotes Sermon on Mount.

The prosecutor then read parts of the sermon from the Bible:

"Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves. Ye shall know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes of thorns or figs of thistles?

"Even so every good tree bringeth forth good fruit; but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit. A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit.

"And everyone that hearth these sayings of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, which built his house upon the sand. And the rains descended and the floods came and the winds blew and beat upon that house; and it fell and great was the fall of it."

Turns to Law of Newton.

This thesis is found again in Sir Isaac Newton's law that for every action there is an equal and opposite reaction and in the law of compensation propounded by Emerson, Prosecutor Salter said.

"These things hold the ring of eternal truth," he shouted, "and they almost exactly define the issues in this case. These defendants had a right to build on sand if they told the public, but they represented that they were building Insull Utility Investments and Corporation Securities on rock. The depression didn't relieve these men of the necessity of telling the public of their speculative venture."

Salter declared that the defense lawyers had built their arguments on isolated facts, failing to tie them together into the scheme to defraud which the government charges. The defense lawyers clouded the issue, he said, by ridiculing the idea that their clients would have perpetrated a fraud and stolen from themselves and the public.

Assails Defense "Straw Man."

"We do not charge theft in the indictment," Salter said. "That is just a straw man the defense attorneys put up to knock down. Their witnesses are contradicted by the records of the Insull companies, by the tracks the defendants left behind. If they had told the truth on the stand, they might as well have pleaded guilty.

"Mr. Insull was a crafty old man on the stand. When I questioned him about the Middle West Utilities stocks he turned into Utility Investments in 1928 and tried to draw a red herring across the scent. The original cost to him of the holdings he turned in was $5,400,000.

"We showed that he got $4,498,000 in cash from Halsey, Stuart & Co. in the deal, so that his real contribution was less than a million dollars, for which he received 764,000 shares of Utilities Investments stock. But he said that again his Middle West holdings were bank loans. He denied a flat payment from Halsey-Stuart.

"These defendants say they were amazed at the rise in the market value of Utility Investments in 1928 and 1929. They point out that Insull warned the public the stock was going too high. But we see that the stock was cleverly manipulated by the men; that they deliberately shoved it up. They wanted it to rise so they could make their inflated holdings in it the cornerstone of Corporation Securities. And all this was before the depression."

Closes Speech Dramatically.

The closing of Attorney Thompson's argument, which he began on Thursday, was dramatic. His voice dropped to a low intimate tone as he lauded the defendants and pleaded for their release.

"The government must show these men are guilty," he said. "We have shown they are innocent. If you jurors see two hypotheses—honesty and dishonesty—it is your obligation to acquit the men, for they have been honest."

Attorney Thompson's voice broke. Tears rolled down his cheeks. Insull and the other defendants and their lawyers were beginning to sob. Attorney James G. Condon hid his face in his handkerchief. Mrs. Samuel Insull Sr. and other relatives of the men on trial, seated about the courtroom, wept openly as they leaned forward to hear Thompson's last words.

"Are we to take these men away from their families, their positions, their world?" he pleaded to the jurors. "I have said my last. The government is to reply. But I beg you by your verdict to remove the stain from these men. Send this old man back to his home. Send his son back to the companies he works for and back to his motherless boy."

Weeps as Plea Closes.

Thompson reached for a glass of water. He drank, wiped away his tears, and turned away. The defense had had its last words.

Earlier Thompson had carried the story of the defendants up to the collapse of the utility empire in April, 1932.

"President Hoover called Mr. Insull and other business leaders to Washington after the crash and told them prosperity was not ended. The President proposed a reemployment campaign. Insull's companies spent $200,000,000 for this purpose. I am not saying the President or any one else guided his action. Insull did it because he had controled his company for forty years and knew what was best for them." Then, in a lighter vein, he discussed the losses of the defendants in the collapse of the companies, referring particularly to Clarence T. MacNeille, official of Halsey, Stuart & Co.

"If this Scotchman, MacNeille, had learned his pals were taking $375,000 from him in a scheme to defraud he'd have yelled so loud you could have heard him in Scotland," Thompson declared.

12 Men from Vastly Different Walks of Life to Judge Insulls

The twelve jurors who will decide the fate of Samuel Insull and his sixteen former associates are drawn from varied walks of life. Three of them are salesmen and two of them are associated with grain companies. One is the head of an automobile sales agency. There is a farmer, a grocer, an official of a clock company, and a bookbinder. The other two were unemployed when they were selected for jury service.

Six of the jurors live in Cook county, four of whom live in Chicago, one in Oak Park, and one in Evanston. Of the other six, two are from Kendall county and two are from McHenry county, one from La Salle county, and the other from Grundy county.

All Are Married Men.

All the jurors are married men. Their average age is 43 years. The domestic and business details and interests of the jurors follow:

Roy C. Richardson, 47 years old, 1511 Hinman avenue, Evanston, is a member of the firm of Richardson & Hanson, dealers in industrial diamonds at 310 South Michigan avenue. He is a member of the Union League club and the Medinah shrine and attends St. Luke's Episcopal church in Evanston. He is golf and riding enthusiast. He is married and has no children.

Walter J. Cassidy, 27 years old, 1743 East 71st place, is a salesman for an insurance company. He attends the St. Laurence Roman Catholic church at 1340 East 72d place. He is married and has no children.

John D. Lent, 55 years old, of Peru, La Salle county, was formerly general sales manager for the Western Clock company at Peru and is now a member of the board of directors of the company. He is president of the Peru school board, chairman of the court of honor of the Boy Scouts council of Starved Rock, and is a member of St. Paul's Episcopal church at La Salle. He is the father of eight children.

Walter R. Valters, 25 years old, 5044 North Menard avenue, Chicago, is an employé of the Brabandt & Valters Bookbinding company, 3827 Ravenswood avenue, of which his father, Walter F. Valters, is an official. He is a past master builder of the Lincoln park chapter of the Boy Builders and is a member of the Church of Our Saviour, Episcopal, at Belmont avenue near Lake Michigan. Hunting is his hobby. He is married and has no children.

Edward W. Hawkins, 35 years old, 942 South Home avenue, Oak Park, was formerly employed as telephone engineer for the Western Electric company but was unemployed when he became a juror. He is a member of the Lilymoor Golf club near McHenry, a Mason and an Episcopalian. He is married and has no children.

George Barkley, 45 years old, of Yorkville, Kendall county, is the owner of the Plymouth-Dodge sales agency at Yorkville and is a former Republican sherif of Kendall county. He is a member of the Methodist church and a Mason. He is the father of four children.

Charles H. Wilson, 48 years old, 1633 Granville avenue, is a former track coach at the University of Wisconsin and at Purdue and Princeton universities. He is now a salesman for the Crerar Clinch Coal company and is a member of the Medinah Country club and the Methodist church. He has one son, Charles H. Wilson Jr., who is attending the University of Illinois.

William Austin, 49 years old, of Richmond, McHenry county, is the owner of a 200 acre farm. He formerly was a state food inspector under a Republican administration. He is a Mason and a Methodist. He is the father of four children.

William A. Westbrook, 49 years old, of Millington, Kendall county, is head of the Westbrook Grain company, which has elevators in several Illinois cities, and is mayor of Millington, which has a population of 200. His hobby is singing and he is director of the 50 voice choir in the United Presbyterian church at Somonauk, near Millington. He is also a member of the American Legion. He is the father of five children.

Jack Schultz, 32 years old, of Minooka, Grundy county, is an employé of the Minooka Grain and Lumber company. His wife is a member of St. Mary's Roman Catholic church at Minooka. They have no children.

Philip Kitsch, 50 years old, 1444 Birchwood avenue, formerly was a salesman for an office supply firm but was not employed when he was chosen a juror. He is a member of the Chicago Caledonian society and a Mason. He is the father of one child.

Louis Bending, 49 years old, of Woodstock, McHenry county, is a partner in the grocery firm of Eckert & Bending at Woodstock. He belongs to the Elks and Moose orders. His wife and daughter, Elnora, attend St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church in Woodstock.

Two Alternates on Panel.

The first of the two alternate jurors is Charles F. Kelly, 53 years old, of 1309 Clement street, Joliet. He was formerly chief engineer at the Joliet penitentiary for ten years, and resigned ten years ago to become engineer at the Illinois Steel company at Joliet. He is a member of St. Raymond's Roman Catholic church at Joliet. His hobby is gardening. He is the father of five children.

The second alternate juror is Aaron Levy, 64 years old, 523 Newgard avenue, Chicago. He was formerly employed as a rug and carpet salesman. He attends Temple Emanuel, a Jewish synagogue at 701 Buckingham place. He is he father of three children.

The two alternates will sit in on the deliberations of the twelve jurors but will not take part in the discussion and will not have a vote unless one or more of the regular jurors is incapacitated.

U. S. RELIEF CHIEF PREDICTS POLICY WILL BE CHANGED

Hopes to Provide Job for Every Man.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

Replacement of relief for the idle by a program of work relief offering a job to every able bodied unemployed man was presented yesterday by Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, if not as a settled policy of the Roosevelt administration, at least as his own fervent hope. He spoke both in the afternoon and evening before the United States Conference of Mayors in the Congress hotel.

"There is one thing I am going always to have to regret," said Mr. Hopkins in his afternoon talk. "That is that here for the last three or four years under our relief administration we have had the only wealth in the country in our hands, namely, the willing workers and the willing hands of the unemployed. Some of us have been resourceful about it, but in the main we have shown amazing lack of resourcefulness, of courage, in the things we have permitted these people to do.

Seeks End of Present System.

"I don't see why we should continue with relief as such a day longer than is necessary. I have said to you people and others many times that the danger of getting this outdoor relief business as part of your governmental machinery is very real.

"Any influence I have I am certainly going to use to prevent that relief system being foisted on the cities of America. I wish I might tell you what the answer is. I don't know the answers any more than you do, but I am convinced—with the man in the White House and the congress that is meeting on Jan. 1—these things are going to be answered in a way satisfactory to the American people."

To critics who suggest cutting the relief budget, Mr. Hopkins replied that that could be done by a commissary system based on national purchasing, which, he asserted, would bankrupt a fourth of all the retailers in the country, or by going a step farther, and by having the unemployed produce all of their own food and clothing, which he asserted could be done, adding: "Now, who wants that?"

Gets Suggestions from Mayors.

"This depression," he said, "has lasted so long that all of us are beginning to find some reason why something is wrong with all of the unemployed; they are a bunch of bums, a bunch of tramps, won't work, never will work, always were on relief, are no good. Well, you know that is wishful thinking."

Mr. Hopkins' speech was followed by a flood of suggestions from the mayors as to how cities might spend federal funds to relieve unemployment. These included the suggestion by Col. Henry M. Waite, until recently deputy administrator of the Federal Works administration, that future PWA projects be financed by a 50 per cent grant and a 50 per cent loan, that federal funds hire additional firemen and policemen for cities, that work relief employés be used for city maintenance work, and a number of suggestions for public utilities to replace or compete with private utilities.

The only discordant note in the chorus came from Dr. J. Fulmer Bright, mayor of Richmond, Va., who said:

"It would be a very simple matter for me to sit here and by my silence give approval to the many things that have been said. But I feel that I cannot leave this convention without expressing my inmost thoughts. This is distinctly almost a radical meeting, proceeding on the assumption that the United States government presents an inexhaustible source of revenue, just as if we citizens did not pay those revenues into the treasury.

"We have had a fine program of public works, but up to this time it has not relieved the burden upon city, state, or nation of the care of the unemployed. And so in leaving this convention I simply wish to say that I don't know whether we are proceeding along the right line in urging congress to make untold billions of additional appropriations."

Hopkins Speaks Again.

In the evening Mr. Hopkins spoke again at the annual dinner of the mayors. Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York also spoke, advocating lower interest rates on city debts.

Mr. Hopkins' speech was a reply to critics who charge the relief administration with excessive administrative costs, among whom Senator William E. Borah of Idaho has recently taken the front rank.

Mr. Hopkins dwelt at length on the enormous amount of detail involved in disbursing the relief funds and defended all but a few relief employés as both competent and honest. Administrative costs of disbursing two billion dollars have been 7½ per cent, he said, adding that private agencies, including many which are wisely administered, sometimes spend 30 or 40 per cent.

Conference Closes Today.

Mr. Hopkins' train was delayed two hours in reaching Chicago, preventing a conference with Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly, and Robert J. Dunham, chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, on this state's relief situation. The conference will be held on Monday in Washington, Mr. Dunham said last night. Mr. Hopkins refused to commit himself as to whether he will grant Illinois $12,061,000 to administer relief next month, but the consensus was that he would. Howard O. Hunter, district FERA representative, announced that Gov. Horner had assured him that the legislature will be asked "in January or before" to provide $3,000,000 a month for relief.

Suggestions for improving police administration were presented at the morning session of the mayors' conference. Mayor Daniel W. Hoan of Milwaukee attributed the success of his city in crime prevention to making it more profitable for a policeman to be honest and efficient than otherwise.

The final session of the conference and election of officers will be held this morning.

ADVISES MUNICIPAL MILK DISTRIBUTION TO REDUCE PRICES

Conversion of milk distribution into a public utility was urged on the United States conference of mayors at a luncheon yesterday by Dr. Frederic C. Howe, consumers' counsel of the federal Agricultural Adjustment administration.

As an example of wasted effort in private distribution Dr. Howe cited the fact that in Milwaukee as many as 14 milkmen have been found making deliveries in a single block.

His principal point, however, was the contention that whereas in the movement for pure water cities built and operated their own filtration plants, they allowed milk pasteurization units to become a monopolized agency in private hands. This factor, with expensive distribution methods, Dr. Howe blamed for the price spread on milk, which he says averages throughout the country about 4 cents a quart to the farmer and 11.7 cents a quart to the consumer.

Municipal distribution would make possible the sale of milk at from 5 to 8 cents a quart, he maintained.

CIVIC FEDERATION WARNS AGAINST TAX INCREASES

The annual report of the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency, presented yesterday by Alfred Cowles, president, at the annual meeting of the organization in the Palmer house, warned local governments to make no efforts to levy additional real estate taxes just because of recent reductions in valuations and 1933 tax rates.

"Efforts to secure added property tax revenues should not be lightly agreed to by taxpayers' groups without careful study of actual necessities," the report said. "If recent reductions in valuations have not succeeded in reducing deficiency in tax collections, it seems certain that further increases in taxes will not encourage prompt tax payments. Efforts should be made, rather, to improve tax collections through a combination of firmer administrative policies and constructive legislation.

Mr. Cowles was reelected president for the forthcoming year, Graham Aldis, Henry P. Chandler, and George B. McKibbin were reelected vice presidents, James B. Forgan Jr., treasurer, and Douglas Sutherland, executive secretary. Walter J. Cummings, Austin T. Graves, and George G. Thorp were added to the board of trustees. Trustees reëlected were Mr. Aldis, Joseph C. Belden, Edward J. Doyle, Mr. McKibbin, John C. Mechem, Guy A. Richardson, and George G. Tunell.

Jury Refuses Divorce to Fire Capt. Barcal

A jury in the Circuit court of Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski yesterday refused to award a divorce to Fire Capt. Arthur Barcal of engine company 14. The jurors found that Capt. Barcal's wife, Minnie, was not guilty of desertion as charged by the captain in his divorce bill. The couple have been married 29 years and have two grown sons. Mrs. Barcal in a cross bill asked separate maintenance but said she was willing to return to her husband.

Faces Third Transfusion After 90 Day Hemorrhage

Irving McCormick, 26 years old, 4027 Ellis avenue, who has suffered from an intestinal hemorrhage for ninety days, is facing his third blood transfusion, but will recover within six or eight months, physicians said yesterday. His malady puzzled physicians at Augustana hospital and a month ago he was transferred to a special ward in the County hospital, where he is under surveillance of specialists and practitioners of the University of Illinois medical school.

JAPAN'S NAVAL AIM POINTS U. S., BRITISH ACCORD

Hull Encourages Stand on Parity.

often falls upon Japanese ears in this manner: 'If we have the ratio of ten, we will always behave, but if you have more than six or seven, it is highly probable that you will go astray.' Does it not sound too much like a case of asserting moral superiority? It is something which the Japanese susceptibility cannot tolerate; it is something to which no man with a sense of honor will remain reconciled."

Asserting that some of Japan's demands were being misunderstood, Saito said there was no disposition to "claim the right to possess a navy greater than she actually has."

"Prepared to Reduce Navy."

On the contrary, he indicated, Japan would like to slash her present naval tonnage of 800,000 in half, provided Great Britain and the United States would go along. His own country, the ambassador said, is "prepared to go down as far as the general situation in the world permits, in juxtaposition with the United States and Great Britain."

"If all of us make such drastic reduction," he added, "we will approach the day when we can reduce our respective navies to the police standard."

Saito surveyed in detail the fields of economics and politics, taking up the immigration, trade, and Manchurian questions and touching upon the Philippines. In this survey he found "no acute questions between Japan and the United States that would involve us in difficult situations—much less in war."

Assails Japanese Exclusion.

The ambassador asserted that Japan had "no covetous designs" upon the Philippines and was "always prepared to conclude any agreement to safeguard their immunity from outside molestation." He mentioned the present terms of Japanese exclusion from America as "a needless affront to the Japanese sense of honor."

When Japan formally files her denunciation of the Washington treaty is now considered only a detail, since it now appears that after 1936 there probably will be no naval limitation treaties in force. There is even doubt whether the naval conference scheduled for next year will be held.

Should further conversations in London develop the improbability of any new naval agreement, the chances are the naval powers will agree that it would be better not to hold the conference.

Others May Reach Accord.

There would remain, however, the possibility of some sort of naval understanding among the other powers—namely, the United States, Great Britain, France, and Italy.

In addition to commenting on the Japanese ambassador's statement, Secretary Hull informally discussed the prospects for acceptance at the Geneva disarmament conference of the draft treaty for control of the munitions industry. He said it was hoped the nations would come together and make the proposal the basis of a comprehensive agreement which would have a beneficial effect in promoting peace conditions.

DENY JAPS PARITY

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 23.—A dose of strong medicine was injected into the moribund naval conversations today at a meeting between Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon on one side, and Norman H. Davis, American ambassador-at-large, and Ray Atherton, counselor of the American embassy, on the other. The patient was assured another month of life.

Just what the medicine was is not clear from statements available. It is quite definite that the Japanese have not moved one inch from their demand for naval equality and have rejected British suggestions for both quantitative and qualitative restrictions.

Both the Americans and the British are equally insistent upon the maintenance of the 5-5-3 ratio or some other ratio which definitly limits Japan to a smaller navy than those of the other two powers.

The Japanese have also announced their intention of denouncing the Washington naval treaty in time to have it expire simultaneously with the London treaty at the end of 1936. They need not do that until the end of next month.

The flame colored pajamas introduced the day before again were placed on the railing in front of the witness box by Attorney Freeman. Mary looked at them and said she had worn them when her husband and Grady burst into Morton's room in the Congress hotel the morning of last Aug. 26.

Pajamas in Picture Again.

Morton, she added, wore light green pajamas and a tan silk lounging robe. She had had two drinks, she said, and was pouring a third when Morton refused to let her drink another. Her husband then entered with Grady, she said, opened the bathroom door where she was hiding, dragged her out, tearing her pajamas, and hit and shoved her, saying, "I've caught you at last!"

"Mr. Morton said, 'Let's all go back to Cincinnati together,'" Mary testified. "'We'll just be one happy family. You take Mary back, and I'll do a lot for you. I can't stand any scandal.' But my husband said, 'Nothing doing.' I came back to Cincinnati alone."

She said she and Morton had planned the trip together to Chicago as she gave him a manicure in the Gibson hotel in Cincinnati, that she later had met him and he had given her $25, "and promised me I'd get more after we got here if I was a good girl."

Married in Jail, She Says.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Fisher, the manicurist was asked where she was married to Coates in 1930. Previously she had been married when 16 years old and divorced in 1928.

"We were married in a jail in Frankfort, Ky.," she said, her blue eyes hard as she glared at Mr. Fisher. "I didn't live with him until 1932. I lived with his parents in Norwood, just outside Cincinnati."

She was asked if she had ever accepted "gratuities" from Morton. She did not understand the question until it was explained this meant "money." She replied airily that she had, "every month or so."

Coates spoke in wrathful accents when he assumed the witness chair. He denied he had introduced Grady as a federal officer, and said he acted in good faith when he sent Grady "after the federal men."

Tells of Morton Offer.

"Morton said, 'We're all intelligent men,'" Coates testified. "'I'm a business man myself. We'll handle this in a business way. I'm prominent, and this would ruin me if it got out. You're young, you forget it, and I'll reimburse you, $500 now, and $500 when we get to Cincinnati.' But I said, 'No, your money stole my wife. I'll drag you through the gutter.'"

Grady, who has a formidable record as a pickpocket, with arrests in various cities over the country, testified that when Coates first approached him as to making the Chicago trip with him "to get evidence against his wife to use in a divorce suit" he had demurred. "I told him I would make a very poor witness on account of my record," he said.

Coates and Grady both were in jail in Frankfort, Ky., at the same time. Coates also had been imprisoned in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., for violation of the Dyer act and has a robbery record. He is 28 years old. Since the closing in June of a night club and saloon he owned, he said, he has made his living gambling.

Youth Killed in Stolen Car Cleared at Inquest

A coroner's jury determined yesterday that William Russell, 18 years old, 2239 Lewis street, killed Wednesday in the crash of a stolen automobile, was not aware that the car was stolen. The car had been taken shortly before the crash in the robbery of James Adams, 4320 Washington boulevard, who testified Russell was not one of the robbers. William Creighton, 19 years old, 853 Lill avenue, who has a police record, and four other youths are under arrest in the case. The jurors returned a verdict of accidental death.

VIVISECTION FOES URGE REPEAL OF CITY ORDINANCE

Vivisection of dogs for medical research purposes was attacked and defended before the city council judiciary committee yesterday.

A large delegation of anti-vivisectionists, headed by Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin, attended the committee meeting to ask repeal of the ordinance passed in 1931 which authorizes universities and medical institutions to use impounded dogs in experiments.

Dr. A. J. Carlson, as spokesman for the vivisectionists, defended the ordinance. "Medical workers," he said, "experiment only on animals that would otherwise be destroyed. The research work, which has for its object the saving of human life, is well regulated and is carried on as humanely as possible."

When Ald. James J. McDermott [14th], chairman of the committee, said his group could not act except on a definite proposal, Attorney Robert E. Cantwell Jr. said he would draft a repeal ordinance for introduction at next Wednesday's council meeting.

TOYLAND OPENS TODAY IN 3,200 CHICAGO STORES

Week Set Aside for the Children.

Toyland opens today in Chicago. For a week the stores of the city will cater to the younger generation and merchants will forget their troubles, if any, and devote a week to pleasing their youngest customers with an exhibition of the delights of childhood.

For the girls, doll beds, buggies, doll clothes, and walking, talking, smiling, sleeping, waking, and dancing dolls; also toy cooking and housekeeping sets. For the boys, miniature railroads, fire chief autos, pool tables, tool chests, coasters, sleds, drums, Indian suits, and a miscellaneous collection of things to furnish opportunities for play. For both, and their elders, those mechanical appliances that create fun and diversion.

Parades to Be Held Today.

All these toys and more are to be seen today in every section of the city. More than 3,200 stores will have them on display as a result of the Association of Commerce designating this as Toy week.

Toy parades have been organized for many sections of the city today. Twenty-one associations have arranged for special displays such as a Mother Goose parade sponsored by the Milwaukee Avenue Business Men's association which will celebrate the opening of all toy departments on the street. The line of march will be up Milwaukee avenue to Logan Square and through Humboldt park.

Collect Toys for Needy.

Many motion picture theaters have arranged to accept toys as admission from children, new toys or old. The toys so collected will be turned over to Mayor Kelly's Christmas fund for distribution to children who will know no other Santa Claus. The toys needing repairs will be sent to expert repairmen at the park field houses and they will be in working order when given to youngsters on Christmas day.

The stores are launching Toy week as a move to start early Christmas shopping and thereby furnish employment for many additional salespersons. Every loop department store will have a special program, while the outlying stores will act through district organizations to interest and entertain children.

BUSINESS MEN BUY OLD FACTORY TO GIVE EMPLOYMENT TO IDLE

Haverstraw, N. Y., Nov. 23.—[Special.]—A business man's plan to dispel the gloom of depression in the home territory of Postmaster General James A. Farley has been put into effect here.

Confronted by growing relief demands and with industries departing for other fields, business men of the locality have banded together and purchased an unused industrial plant which they have rented to diversified industrial units which they hope soon will absorb all the unemployed in the locality.

Postmaster General Farley has been working in coöperation with the directors of the project and in a letter made public during the day stressed the value of the plan not only for Haverstraw but for similar communities through the country.

BALDWIN AVERS U. S. HOLDS KEY TO WORLD PEACE

GLASGOW, Scotland, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Vice Premier Stanley Baldwin, speaking here tonight, emphasized the vital part the United States would have to play in any collective peace system for the world.

Noting regretfully that both Japan and Germany have withdrawn from the league of nations, Baldwin said no such peace system would ever be undertaken without those two nations and the United States. He added:

"So long as I have any responsibility in a government for deciding whether or not this country shall join in a collective peace system, I will say this: Never as an individual will I sanction the British navy being used for the armed blockade of any country in the world until I know what the United States is going to do.

"What we've got to do is to go on working—largely by faith, I admit—to try to get back into the league those who have belonged to it, and trust that the day may come when the world circle is complete by the admission of the United States."

10 Die, 18 Hurt by Fall of Scaffold in Belgian Exhibit

BRUSSELS, Nov. 23.—(AP)—At least ten persons were killed and 18 others injured today in the collapse of a metal scaffolding on one of the halls of the Belgian section of the Brussels international exhibition under construction here. Authorities are investigating the crash to ascertain if there are any grounds for suspicion of foul play.

Gunmen Seize Expensive Town Car from Salesman

A. C. THOMPSON, ON STAND, DENIES BOND SALE FRAUD

Andrew C. Thompson, former real estate operator, took the stand before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward yesterday to deny he had floated a worthless $390,000 bond issue on an apartment house at 1718 North La Salle street. He is on trial charged with using the mails to defraud.

His plea was that his loss of the money received from the bonds' sale in the collapse of the stock market was poor business judgment but not necessarily criminal. Under questioning of his attorney, William Waugh, he had sketched his early background when Judge Woodward adjourned the trial until Monday.

Thompson pictured himself as a poor immigrant boy from Denmark who settled in Wisconsin, worked as a newsboy, and purchased a small tract of land which he traded for his first piece of Chicago real estate.

His testimony came after the government had closed its evidence.

FRANCE IS TOLD RUSSIA WILL HELP FIGHT GERMANY

Pact Bared as Deputies Pass War Budget.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 23.—Reference to a military entente between soviet Russia and France during public debate in the chamber of deputies today unleashed rumors of a France-soviet treaty alliance which, though unfounded, derive from a sinister basis of reality.

The reference came shortly before the chamber passed the army's $375,000,000 budget for 1935.

It was Deputy Leon Archimbaud, reporter of the war budget committee, who dropped the casual reference, which could easily be taken as a confession of a secret military alliance between the two countries.

Says Russia Offers Army.

"Chancellor Hitler is violating the Versailles treaty," he said. "It was Russia who revealed this to us, hence the understanding which was reached between her and us. It is this union alone which stabilizes the peace of Europe. Russia has a well equipped army, which she offers us in case of conflict between Germany and us."

While it has been known for a long time that Russia and France have been flirting with each other, this is the first time an official admission of anything like a military alliance has been made. Since secret treaties are supposed to have vanished at the time the world was made safe for democracy, and the league covenant, of which France is a signatory, forbids members to enter into them, Archimbaud's frank statement caused embarrassment in official circles.

Convention Between Armies.

The truth is, THE TRIBUNE understands, that there is no secret treaty between Russia and France, but that a convention exists between the Red army and the French army which resembles like two peas in a pod the old Franco-Russian alliance before the war.

French and soviet officers have worked out a strategic plan which in theory would be applied immediately in case of war between Germany and France. The Red air force would play the rôle of the famous "steam roller" which the late czar's cavalry was supposed to be in 1914.

While French border fortifications are holding back the first advance of the German army, the Red air fleet—which was described by Archimbaud as the strongest in Europe—would loose on Germany an avalanche of high explosive, gas, and incendiary bombs which would spread panic throughout the reich, breaking up effective mobilization.

Never Ratified by Parliament.

The difference between such a convention and the so-called secret treaty is that it has never been ratified by the French parliament and therefore is not legally binding. Either side might drop it overnight.

It was Russia's eagerness to legalize the Franco-soviet understanding which caused Maxim Litvinov, soviet foreign commissar, to push so hard his scheme for an eastern European security pact, which would be a binding military treaty duly registered at Geneva.

What is considered sinister is that a European nation has so far forgotten the lessons of the world war that nobody was shocked when Deputy Archimbaud in the mildest of apologies, said:

"No doubt it is regrettable that 20 years after the war nations have returned to the old policy of balance of power, but it is not our fault."

Army to Get More Wine.

In order to raise the morale of the French army, which has been undermined by pacifist and communist propaganda, the wine ration of France's peace time pollus is going to be increased, Minister of War Gen. Louis Philip Maurin told the chamber today.

Gen. Maurin emphatically agreed with the deputies of wine producing districts who argued that the present daily ration of a pint of Pinard is not enough to keep up the morale of the conscript.

The minister of war further promised to do his bit in using up the wheat surplus by supplying soldiers with more bread and spaghetti and fewer beans—a revolutionary policy for the French army.

JEWISH MOTHER OF 7 CHILDREN IS JAILED BY NAZIS

Court Calls Her Remarks "Dangerous."

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 23.—Frau Scayndla Wulka, the sole support of her seven children, was sentenced to three months in prison today for making the following utterance when she attempted to induce a baker woman to buy dress goods material from her:

"All dressing materials will soon be made of paper, and cards to regulate trading in goods will soon be issued."

Frau Wulka's lawyer attempted to plead that the denunciation was directed against her because she was a Polish born Jewess, but the court replied:

Nearly 1,000 persons — painters, sculptors, architects, etchers, and other members of artistic professions—have been ousted from the "National Chamber of Culture" because they have Jewish blood.

This means that nearly 1,000 families have been deprived of their means of livelihood because, only persons belonging to the chamber are allowed to earn a living as artists or to "disseminate culture."

This new blow against Jewish artists draws attention to the fact that 87 year old Max Liebermann, Germany's most famous painter, is also excluded from the guild. Only one painter, the Austrian born Oscar Kokoschka, protested against the ouster.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 23.—German official quarters received Paris reports of the Franco-Russian "understanding" announced in the French chamber of deputies today with utmost calm. A high official pointed out that "Germany's relations with France are clearly formulated in the Locarno agreement. Thought of the possibility of a German attack on France is preposterous and out of the question. As for Russia, any action on its part would concern immediate neighbors—not Germany."

Germany, he added, remains alarmed over the conflict in southeastern Europe, "the unleashing of the passions of the populace of Jugo-Slavia and Hungary."

The Berliner Tageblatt today warned against the danger of "triumphant political passions" and urged France to use its influence on Czechoslovakia and Rumania in an attempt to pacify Jugo-Slavia.

NAZIS REFUSE TO GIVE UP GOLD OF JAILED AMERICAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 23.—Richard Roiderer, naturalized citizen of the United States, who has been imprisoned at Munich since June 22 without trial, is unable to touch $180 in gold which the Germans seized when they arrested him. They dropped the charge that Roiderer was smuggling gold from Germany, but refused to let him have the money to purchase extra food.

The prisoner's 78 year old mother has sold or pawned all her possessions which had not been confiscated by the secret police. She was compelled to enter the old people's home today because she is penniless.

Roiderer, said to be a former Chicagoan, is facing espionage on high treason charges.

FRANCE IRRITATED BY U. S. REQUEST TO PAY ON ITS WAR DEBT

[Copyright; 1934; By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Nov. 23.—The Paris press greets today with a tone of surprised irritation the receipt by the French ministry of foreign affairs of Washington's notice that it expects France to pay some 20 million dollars on its war debt Dec. 15. One newspaper asks whether the state department really intends sending out such notices until June 15, 1987.

At the foreign office no surprise was expressed, but no more encouragement could be gleaned than was evident in the press. Every indication points to France not having changed its mind about the question since it is held the situation has not changed since the French first defaulted.

"Neither the Hoover moratorium, the German default, the world crisis, nor the fall of most of the world's currencies has made the United States deviate from the political stand she has taken on debts," writes Al Jeune in the Paris Midi. "This unprecedented series of international catastrophies has taught the American creditor nothing, nor has it induced him to forget anything. Nevertheless, the gesture Washington makes today is not merely formal, for it contributes to the uneasiness of international finance. It retards the solution of such urgent problems as stabilization."

SUPREMACY IN THE AIR.

Today America is unquestionably far in the lead in the race for air supremacy. The best of the transport planes now flying our airways are without an equal, as was demonstrated in the recent London to Melbourne contest. The American plane flown by the Dutch team finished a few hours behind the British, but the British entry was a racing machine of small commercial or military significance, whereas the American ship was a stock model carrying a standard pay load of mail and passengers. The time of the winner was no better than is made day after day on our transcontinental routes. The American ship, the pilots and passengers arrived at the goal in good order, ready for a return flight; the British racer had to go to the shop for engine repairs and the crew was physically exhausted.

The newer American transport planes are about as fast and maneuverable as the best pursuit planes in the army, but are vastly safer, and, of course, their carrying capacity is immensely greater. They can be adapted readily for military use as bombers. America, with experience in building these big ships and factory crews trained in their manufacture, has a distinct edge over all foreign rivals, for the present at least.

The performance of the American ships is accepted as a matter of course in this country, but it has startled foreign observers. The Dutch, with the whole world to buy from, purchased Douglas liners for their service to the East Indies. It was one of these ships which was flown to Melbourne by Parmentier and Moll. American leadership in the air was frankly conceded in the questions asked in the British parliament the other day and all but conceded in the replies of the responsible minister. Lord Londonderry said his government had considered buying a Douglas liner some nine months ago, but had determined, instead, to purchase "an equally interesting type" in this country for study in England.

America's supremacy in the air, like American supremacy in the days of sailing ships, is the product of private enterprise in construction and operation. Before the advent of Mr. Farley as postmaster general the government coöperated by encouraging the air lines to buy superior planes and engines. Fortunately Mr. Farley's hasty action in canceling the air mail contracts came too late to prevent the development of the present outstanding models.

Not much progress can be expected from direct government purchases of planes in this or any other country. The point was well, if unwittingly, demonstrated in Lord Londonderry's remarks. He and his associates in the air ministry had heard about the Douglas plane months ago, but, because of national pride, burocratic self-contentment or something else, did not make a serious attempt to discover its points of excellence. A private purchaser could not afford to take that attitude. He would go to any lengths within his means to find superior equipment for the sufficient reason that better equipment spells profit and inferior equipment spells loss. To burocrats, who in all countries spend other people's money, these are unimportant considerations.

ACADEMIC FREEDOM FROM GOVERNMENT INFLUENCE.

Among the colleges refusing the federal relief offered by Harry L. Hopkins, federal administrator, is Williams in Massachusetts. Dr. Tyler Dennett, president of the college, explaining the reasons for declining to accept aid for needy students, said that the expectable consequences of such help would be that colleges would come to look upon it as an essential part of their income. Thereupon they would be inclined to oppose "the resumption by the federal government of what I believe are its proper functions."

"Freedom has been a cherished ideal in Massachusetts," said Dr. Dennett. "Most of all, probably, it has been cherished and nurtured in our institutions of higher learning. Freedom is now in some danger. It is threatened on two sides. During the world war our people made voluntary surrenders; and our government, both state and national, made many invasions of long loved private right, not stopping short of the rights of free speech and free thought, although these privileges lie very close to the palladium of democracy. It has been a great shock to lovers of liberty to see with what content the American people, in the years since the war, have permitted the state to retain or to resume the control of public opinion. It is even more shocking to see how meekly our people and, sad to observe, some educational institutions have been willing to submit to censorship by unofficial and irresponsible groups who so often have sought to use their alleged patriotism as a cloak for the protection or extension of private privilege. [I trust that our college will always continue a bulwark against invasions of the right of free speech and free thought.]"

The president of Williams observed that it would be of considerable advantage to higher education in the United States if the enrollments were reduced rather than supported at their present level, and that as for Williams no exceptional student would be permitted to withdraw from college for financial reasons. The influence of American universities should lie entirely in the direction of freedom, and that duty, in the opinion of Dr. Dennett, would be prejudiced by government subsidies, carrying with them the danger of subsequent government intervention in the conduct of the school.

Subsidies always carry with them at least the inference that compensating advantages are to be had. The only compensating advantage the government could get out of general subsidies to the colleges would be found in the influence it could have on the instruction given. In the case of military training the return is obvious and above board. In general culture it could only be in the molding of the thought and opinion of the students.

HOODLUMS ON RELIEF.

A relief "client" was arrested the other night after his automobile had bumped into another car. The recipient of public charity owned the automobile in which he was riding and three pistols, one of which he carried in his pocket. He kept the other two in reserve at home. His companion on the evening's excursion carried two pistols which he brandished in the face of the motorist whose car had been bumped. Fortunately a couple of policemen arrived in time to prevent bloodshed.

Here is a minor incident in the day's police news, but it throws a great light on the administration of relief funds in this community. The facts should be remembered by the legislature when next the weight of the tax burden for relief to be borne by the people of Illinois is being determined. The charges of gross corruption made by Senator Borah, together with incidents such as this one, indicate all too plainly how necessary it has become to place additional safeguards around any funds which are appropriated.

This hoodlum had been living in ease and idleness, thanks to the sales tax and the 30 million dollar bond issue. Decent and hard working citizens have had to pay 2 cents for every dollar's worth of necessities purchased in order that a gunman might enjoy nocturnal jaunts in his automobile. Property owners have been saddled with a heavy debt for the same end. How many more hoodlums are on the relief lists no one not in the confidence of the relief administration can know, but the number must be large, for this is by no means the first item of the sort which has come to public attention.

Millions of dollars are being spent in supporting nearly 10,000 relief workers on the public pay roll. (The number is now being reduced by one-fourth; election day was Nov. 6.) The primary objective of this army of pay rollers is to distinguish the worthy from the unworthy poor. The ordinary citizen is left to wonder what the community is getting for the enormous drain on its resources. A man got by whose destitution was so great that he owned an automobile and had the money to buy gasoline and firearms. Are the relief investigators chosen because they are hopeless innocents and therefore easily fooled, or are they actively in league with the hoodlums and gangsters?

These are questions which the members of the legislature should ask before, not after, the next appropriation is made.

COLLEGE WORDS AND MUSIC.

Possibly when the dust of strife has blown away it will be found that Mr. Richberg's most enduring contribution to the welfare of his fellows is the song he wrote for his Alma Mater, the University of Chicago. It has just been adopted officially as the hymn of the Midway. If it's a good song, Mr. Richberg will have put his university out in the front and he will be a musical Berwanger. It probably isn't and neither is he.

About 99 per cent of the college songs contain as question number one, why do the American people send their young folks to college? Acquaintance with these young people easily disproves what their songs seem to nail down as certain. They are not as juvenile, as sentimentally dripping, as their loyalty songs would indicate. For some reason their sense of humor passes away when they provide themselves with words and music for gang singing in praise of good old Siwash.

There are three or four college songs which reflect what ought to be the mood, and which really is, of undergraduates, particularly in their sporting events. One is Yale's undertaker's song. Georgia Tech ranks well up with its "Rambling Wreck," as do Amherst with "Jeffrey Amherst" and Dartmouth with "Eleazar Wheelock," one of the best. Other college songs which are what they should be you could count on the fingers of one hand.

Editorial of the Day

[Illinois State Journal.]

The life history of Hughie Evans, who died in Detroit the other day, ought to prove something in connection with the old controversy concerning the effect of strenuous physical training. Evans was the most famous of the professional strong men of the country. He was billed as Signor Lawanda, a title bestowed upon him a half century ago by the great showman, Phineas T. Barnum.

Evans was, in his youth, a quarryman in Pennsylvania. He was a man of splendid physique and he found delight in his strength. He developed it in contests with fellow workers and, eventually, went in for showmanship. He trained constantly and for years he was the outstanding Samson of the tented lot and the vaudeville stage. He lived to be 85 years old, and shortly before his last illness exhibited his agility by standing on the flat of his feet and palming his hands on the floor.

The story of Signor Lawanda would seem to confound those who protest against strenuous physical training for youth, on the theory that the tax on their strength develops weaknesses which are fatal to longevity. However, it must be remembered that Evans was uncommonly endowed; that his training was continuous; that preparation for his great feats was gradual, with no let-downs and losing of ground, such as break into the work of the average athlete. He was a strong man when he reached the peak of his life expectancy and he conserved that strength by making allowance for his years and graduating his exhibitions as he grew older.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

IF THEY WOULD ONLY PUT THEM ON THE STAND.

Socrates, Plato, Aristotle, St. Thomas Aquinas, and Protagoras have all been invoked by the counsel for the defense in the celebrated trial of Mr. Insull. Of course, the learned counsel knows best, but a lot of people, especially the investors in Middle West Utilities, will say that if Socrates, Plato, Aristotle and the rest of 'em know so much about this case why don't they come into court like men and testify from the witness stand.

I wish they would call those birds as witnesses in Mr. Insull's trial. I've always wondered what their full names were. Suppose they got Socrates on the stand. Of course, the first thing they would ask him would be: "State your name to the jury."

"Socrates."

"Socrates what?"

"Just plain Socrates."

"What is your full name?"

"E. T. Socrates."

"What does the E. T. stand for?"

"Ephraim Thomas Socrates."

"What is your business, Mr. Socrates?"

"I am a philosopher."

"Are you employed in that trade at present?"

"No, I got laid off."

"Just when were you laid off?"

"Two thousand four hundred and three years ago."

"Didn't you use to run around in daylight with a lighted lantern looking for an honest man?"

"No, that would be Diogenes."

"Is he in the courtroom?"

"I don't see him."

"Never mind, I'll have him subpœnaed. Step down, witness."

And Plato! Oh, what a pleasure it would be to have Prof. Plato on the stand. The cross-examining lawyer would look at him after the preliminaries and say:

"Are you the man of whom Shakespeare said, 'Plato, thou reasoneth well'?

"That's me."

"Well, you're not here, Mr. Plato, to do any fine reasoning. You're here to tell what facts you happen to know."

"Reasoning is my strongest point."

"I don't care anything about that. We want cold, actual facts. You will answer yes or no."

"I have written much on the question as to whether the human soul is immortal. It is a little difficult to answer that by yes or no."

"Then step down, witness. Your testimony is of no value."

And think of putting Aristotle on the stand. The lawyer would say, "Prof. Aristotle, you invented the lever, did you not?"

"I did not."

"Well, who did, then?"

"Oh, that was Archimedes."

"Is he here in the courtroom?"

"I don't see him."

"Well, now, Prof. Aristotle, what is or was your occupation."

"I was a sort of school teacher."

"Do you remember any of your pupils?"

"Yes. There was one real smart lad called Alexander the Great."

"Never heard of him. What else did you do?"

"Oh, I lectured and wrote books."

"Did you buy any Middle West Utilities?"

"I did not."

"Then, Prof. Aristotle, I don't see why you've been brought into the case. Step down. And make it snappy!"

Yes, it would be mighty interesting now that counsel has named Socrates and the rest of 'em if they would only call them as witnesses. Especially Diogenes. I would like to get Diogenes to go hunting around the world with his lantern in this day and age looking for an honest man. I wonder if he would have any better luck than he had before?

RACHEL MACK WILSON.

JAPAN has passed a bill to give 290 million dollars immediately to build up the army and navy. It's the biggest military appropriation the country has ever made and it must mean something, but what? Is it a hint that Japan is planning to invade these United States? If so, we ought to do something about it; either increase the police force at San Francisco or give a prize of five dollars and a near-silver loving cup to the poet who writes the best rally 'round the flag song. And we'll do it, too, if Japan gets us all nervous and excited.

MUSCLE FATIGUE AND GLYCOCOLL.

We never cease to marvel at the numerous and complex chemical reactions that are occurring constantly in the body. While digestion may be considered a simple affair, yet in order to duplicate in the laboratory the chemical operations that take place within the body each hour would require delicate and expensive apparatus, scores of workers, and months or even years of time. In fact, it is perhaps not too much to say that many of the chemical processes which are occurring regularly within the living organism have never been reproduced in man-made laboratories.

One of the most interesting phases of digestion is the transformation of proteins taken in as food into simple compounds and their use in restoring muscle waste. The first steps in the digestion of proteins may be simply illustrated. A block of pine may be divided into many splinters by a few blows of a hatchet. No single splinter is the original block—it is merely a part. Whenever the digestive processes of the body attack protein the resulting splinters are amino-acids. The simplest of these is known as glycocoll or amino-acetic acid. This substance is present in many foods in small amounts, but ordinary commercial gelatin contains a fairly high percentage.

Within the last few years it has been noted that the condition known as Erb's disease [myasthenia gravis] is favorably influenced by the feeding of glycocoll. The disease is characterized by an unusual and peculiar tiring of the muscles. It is first noted in the eyelids and the result is a marked drooping of the upper lids. The muscles of the eyeball are often involved, causing the symptom of double vision. The muscles of the face, neck, and back, and those involving swallowing, are frequently affected. Peculiarly enough, there is no wasting of these muscles.

While the cause of the disease is unknown, it would seem reasonable to assume that there is some interference with the contracting power of the muscles, possibly due to some error in metabolism. In other words, there is a deficiency in some substance needed by the muscles.

In the treatment of the disease ephedrine has been used. The effective dose of the drug, however, is so large that it may cause extreme nervousness and interfere with rest. Within recent months the feeding of glycocoll has been suggested and several cases are now known to have been helped under this plan.

W. M. Boothby advises that this particular amino-acid relieves the fatigue of muscles. He states clearly that while the disease is not cured, the administration of glycocoll, either alone or in combination with ephedrine, is usually followed by improvement. Patients who have had the disease in mild form are nearly or entirely relieved of symptoms. Those in whom the disease is of moderate severity are made comfortable and many function with average physical efficiency.

When the full amount of glycocoll is given [one ounce per day] it is divided into six doses and is evenly distributed throughout the day. It has been suggested by investigators in this particular field that small doses of glycocoll taken daily about 4 or 5 o'clock in the afternoon, the so-called zero hour in alertness, will relieve the feeling of depression and fatigue. It has also been observed that those with stable nervous systems respond better to the administration of this substance than do those who are of the nervous, emotional type.

In glycocoll the physician has an assistant food that in many cases relieves fatigue. We know that the body can manufacture glycocoll, but in certain persons perhaps the body is unable to produce as much glycocoll as it needs.

Some day soon we may expect to be invited, not to 4 o'clock tea, but to a 4 o'clock glycocoll hour, where all and sundry may banish fatigue via the amino-acid route.

PUFFS UNDER EYES.

R. T. writes: Why is it that the flesh under the eyes of my sister, brother, mother, and of myself is puffed out? We are all in perfect health and get sufficient sleep. We all have good eyesight.

REPLY.

Swelling about the eyes may indicate a deficiency in either circulation or elimination. Dark circles and puffiness under the eyes at first mean fatigue—exhaustion of the body. Later, if fatigue continues, a chronic condition may develop with involvement of the heart, blood vessels, kidneys, or digestive tract.

BEATING IN EARS.

Mrs. A. L. A. writes: What is the cause of a rather loud beating in my ears while lying down on either side?

REPLY.

If the sound keeps time with your heart beat it is no doubt caused by the throb of an artery. Sometimes people with high blood pressure complain of this sound. If the heart is normal, and the blood pressure is not increased, the symptom may be disregarded.

SHINGLES.

M. P. V. writes: Has the cause of shingles been determined? What is the duration of the disease? What treatment is necessary?

REPLY.

Shingles, or herpes zoster, is a real neuritis—that is, an inflammation along the course of a sensory nerve. Treatment consists of rest, elimination of toxins from the intestinal tract, and usually some tonic to combat anemia. As a rule fatigue is a prominent factor. The condition may last weeks or even months. The cause is not known.

COURT SUMMONS.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I was to appear in court several weeks ago and [1] I did not have the room number, but I was on the wrong floor. 2. In every court they could not give me any information, so the party received a judgment against me. 3. Now I received another notice to appear a month later, which I intend to obey. Can I ask for a jury trial at that time, as the party has nothing on me and I cannot afford a lawyer? J. A.

1. If it was a Municipal court case it seems probable that the summons served upon you showed the room number. You give no excuse for failing to read it.

2. The nature of your difficulty is not clear to us.

3. It seems probable that this additional notice is either an execution writ or a citation to examine you. You would not be entitled to a new hearing on the merits unless you make a prompt motion to that effect before the judge who entered the original order. If you are unable to employ an attorney we suggest that you talk with the information clerk in the office of the clerk of the Municipal court.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MUST PAY FEES.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—[Friend of the People.]—I have been out of work for several years. I want to be a citizen before my children are "too old," but it seems like I can't afford to be one because it takes money to become a citizen. Is there any way a man could earn his citizenship by working for the city or state? I have not as yet asked for charity, because I wish to work and am hopeful of eventually securing employment. S. H.

There is no provision of law under which an alien may obtain citizenship papers except by payment of the regular fee as prescribed by the naturalization law.

"HOLOGRAPHIC WILL."

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Please advise if a holographic document, such as a will or trusteeship, is recognized as legal in Missouri. I understand it is in the state of California and others. S. B.

A holographic will is one that is in the handwriting of the testator, but which is not executed with the formalities required for an ordinary will. Since there are no such formalities for the creation of a trusteeship it seems probable that you do not understand the meaning of the word. If you will state the facts on which your question arises we will be in a better position to advise you.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

BANKRUPTCY.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A has a written contract with B, an Illinois corporation. The contract is for a number of years and states that A is to receive his salary as an officer of the company, but if he ceases to be a stockholder his contract salary ceases. B is bankrupt. 1. In the event of bankruptcy proceedings being instituted against B, either voluntarily or involuntarily, would A be a preferred creditor for his salary contract? 2. Would the bankruptcy proceedings stand as a bar against A, thereby creating a state of nonstockholder? R. W.

1. No. The statute gives the exemption only to "workmen, clerks, traveling or city salesmen, or servants."

2. In the course of the proceedings he must surrender his assets to his creditors.

A DISPUTE SETTLED.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I had an argument with a friend I would like you to settle. 1. He says any citizen can act as attorney at law in court to defend a person, providing that person gives him power of attorney. I said to practice in the court he must be a member of the bar association. 2. He says any citizen can arrest a man [or person] without having the authority of the police department. N. S.

1. He is wrong as far as representing other persons is concerned. He is right as to representing oneself is concerned.

2. It is true that any citizen can make an arrest for crime committed in his presence.

Birds do not sing their songs "just naturally," as many persons suppose, without ever practicing them. They have to be taught by older birds. Young birds hatched in the nests of other kinds of birds will take up the song of the other species and never learn the song of their own kind. Some birds have to learn their song anew each year.

CONCERNING SUBWAYS.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Chicago, you are about to receive a scolding from me because I love you. When you choose, you can do the most amazingly impossible things in the grandest style, yet in some ways you are a procrastinating and complaining simpleton, envious of your neighbor's garments and scornful of your own. For years you have been dreaming of and longing for and talking about subways as your greatest goal, and meekly accepting the jibes of the press and the public anent your slow transportation. Casual visitors to New York pour into your willing ears absurdly exaggerated tales of the speed of its subways, and usually remark about the 5 cent fare. The fare is a nickel, right enough, but there are three separate systems in New York with no transfer privileges, and if you have to ride all three —well, do your own adding! Incidentally, they're all broke.

By the way, did you ever ride much in subways? No? Well, let me tell you, I rode in them long enough to make a good elevated train seem like one of the new air conditioned Pullmans. In winter they are filthy and stuffy; in summer they are regular boiler rooms, and too noisy for conversation. As to scenery, there ain't none—not since the days of short skirts. All you see is posts and lights flitting past. And that tremendous speed—baloney! Fact is, most of Gotham's subways are slower than your own elevated.

The fastest and longest regular nonstop run in any New York subway is that made by the Washington Heights express from Columbus Circle to 125th street, rail distance 3¼ miles, time 6 to 8 minutes. The same train's best average on the 8¾ mile stretch from 42d street to 207th street is 25 minutes. All other subways are slower, as I could give you figures to prove.

By comparison: Your own Evanston express does the 6¼ mile nonstop run from Merchandise Mart to Wilson avenue in 11 to 14 minutes, and does the 10¼ miles from the Mart to Howard street in 22 to 27 minutes. Not bad! Your Jackson Park express clips off the 3¼ miles from Roosevelt to Indiana in 7 minutes, and the 8 miles from Cottage Grove to Madison in 22 to 24 minutes. And still you grumble!

However, during rush hours, when you are most on tenterhooks to get places, your "L" does suffer terribly from track congestion and the bottleneck of that antiquated loop. This is where you need scolding, Chicago. Subways must be built for the future as well as for the present, and they are terribly expensive. Why don't you stop trying to ape New York [so far behind you in many ways], get behind this fine elevated system of yours, extend aid in building additional express tracks, modernizing some of the stations and equipment, eliminating some of the sharper curves, and—most important of all—double decking or completely discarding that outworn loop? The elevated can give you just as good service as any subway and at much less cost. Besides, you can ride up in the sunlight and fresh air and keep that girlish complexion. Think it over, Chicago—and remember, I love you!

FOUR DRINKS IN THREE ACTS.

Oak Park, Ill., Nov. 14.—Even with good musical accompaniment Gertrude Stein's babble does not merit recognition, and the younger set criticized by Mr. Leigten deserved a bracer after the first act.

LINCOLN'S DEBT TO SULLIVAN.

River Forest, Ill., Nov. 19.—In THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE of Nov. 18 Lincoln's famous speech at Gettysburg was printed. The late William E. Barton, Lincoln authority, unable to substantiate the belief that Lincoln adapted it from the prolog of Wycliff's Bible, reached the conclusion Lincoln adapted the phrase, "Government of the people, by the people, etc.," from a remark by Theodore Parker during a speech in 1858.

In July, 1775, Maj. Gen. John Sullivan of revolutionary fame, in his letter to Meshech Weare wrote: "All governments are, or ought to be, instituted for the good of the people; and that form of government is the most perfect when that design is most nearly and effectually answered."

In accordance with the plan outlined by him in this letter, the state government of New Hampshire was instituted, and nearly a century later the principles thus enunciated by him were expressed by Abraham Lincoln on the Gettysburg battlefield.

While it may seem quixotic for one to controvert such a charge, I am a direct descendant of Gen. John Sullivan, and books in my possession verify the right to magnify him, although history has not done justice to him.

Assailed in his military capacity because envy could not brook his superiority, it is unfortunate for his fame that, with the exception of the brief memoir of Sparks' "American Biography," no separate account has been given of his civil or his military career, yet the whole list of revolutionary worthies does not furnish one name which, on the whole, shines more resplendently in all the great departments of public service than that of John Sullivan.

If there be such a name, declare it!

LESSON IN THE JAPANESE LANGUAGE.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Apropos the interesting little dispatch on page 5 of this morning's TRIBUNE concerning the Japanese policeman: the incident is quite possible, and no doubt occurred, but the poor man evidently did not try "hara-kiri"! The reporter has made a trifling and even forgivable mistake. No man in Japan commits "hara-kiri" when he "cuts his throat." "Hara" means abdomen, and he has to cut THAT in order to perform the ancient and honorable rite of atonement for a wrong or supposed wrong. To be brutally frank, he inserts the sharp point of the knife in the left side of the stomach, slowly draws it across, and gives it a sharp upward click on the right side. The method is meticulously prescribed in Japanese etiquet! E. J. PUGMIRE.

THE CHRYSANTHEMUM SHOW.

Cicero, Ill., Nov. 21.—Why doesn't the park board of Chicago take a moving picture scene of the interior of Garfield conservatory during the present chrysanthemum show? No doubt exhibitors would be glad to get hold of such a picture. I think it would be a very good advertisment for Chicago. The Garfield conservatory and the 1934 chrysanthemum show are worth going a long way to see, and all who possibly can should visit it. MRS. E. H. BARTON.

BIG PRODUCTION PROGRAM BEGUN BY AUTO PLANTS

Millions Spent; Thousands Return to Jobs.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 23.—[Special.]—The automobile makers, America's largest manufacturing industry, are launching another mammoth production and merchandising program. Without the benefit of government subsidies, such as have been used to bolster banking, agriculture, and railroads, these rugged individualists are fighting the depression with ingenuity and aggression and are making progress.

The success of the automotive industry, notwithstanding its burden of increased taxes, is a stimulous to the nation's economics generally. With the 1935 models going into production the car factories will spend approximately 326 million dollars for labor and materials in the next three months.

100,000 Return to Jobs.

In the next three or four weeks 100,000 workmen will be called back to their jobs in the automobile factories. Today, with many of the assembly lines idle while new tools and dies are being installed for the 1935 models, there are about 150,000 on the pay rolls.

These figures on men and money are not from any authoritative source. The Manufacturers' association is without such statistics. These are estimates, fairly reliable, based upon a canvass for information from the larger individual producers.

Statistics compiled by the code authorities on employment list 134,876 car factory wage earners on the job last September. These did not include employés of Henry Ford, who refused to sign the code. The peak of employment in 1934, as listed by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, was in May at 206,956, also exclusive of Ford's men.

As 1934 draws to a close, total production for the year is approaching 2,800,000 cars and trucks. To reach this total it will have to include many 1935 models. This would be a 42 per cent increase over the 1933 output of 1,985,909, which was a 39 per cent increase over the 1,431,494 units produced in the low year of 1932.

The automobile manufacturers are keeping a pace ahead of the nation's fight for economic recovery. The advance may be credited to the engineering genius of the industry in producing better products without increased costs.

The 1935 program, from all indications, will represent a continuation of this policy. Details of the new models are suppressed pending formal announcements but confidential previews show bigger and better automobiles.

Millions Depend on Industry.

Continued success of the automobile industry is of first significance to the general economics of the country. It is estimated that more than 4,500,000, about 10 per cent of all the gainful workers in the United States, obtain their livelihood directly or indirectly from the motor car. This includes road workers as well as producers of materials and supplies, every one from the financiers to the gasoline tank attendants.

With a 66 2/3 per cent increase in the pay rolls in the automobile plants, similar increases follow in the plants that produce parts, accessories and materials. Steel, glass, rubber and textile workers go back to their shops. The motor car industry is the nation's largest purchaser of steel, iron, rubber, plate glass, nickel, lead, mohair, and upholstery lether, not to mention gasoline and lubricating oil.

An increase of 96 per cent in 1934 automobile output over 1932 production is enjoyed to some degree in all of the allied industries. And the boost to employment will aid jobless in almost every state in the Union because parts and materials come from all parts of the country.

In Detroit, there are no jobs in the automobile factories for outsiders. This city is already suffering from an influx of hopeful on a hopeless errand. All of the plants have an abundance of labor available from lists of known and worthy former employés now idle.

GETS JAIL TERM FOR ROBBERY OF HIS SCHOOLMATE

Found guilty of the robbery of a schoolmate, Clinton Bulkley Jr., 19 years old, 1449 Highland avenue, was sentenced to a year in the Bridewell and fined $100 by Judge Lambert K. Hayes in the Boys' court yesterday. His companion, Harold Swanson, 17 years old, 2545 Coyle avenue, was also sentenced to a year in the Bridewell and Roger Kobusch, 16, of 2101 Arthur avenue, was turned over to Juvenile authorities.

Stanley Berg, 17 years old, 1350 Estes avenue, drug store messenger, who was Bulkley's classmate at the Sullivan High school, testified the three had robbed him of $2 and some liquor he was delivering on a fake order by the robbers.

Politician Is Sentenced to 99 Years for Slaying

Michael Cozzi, minor politician and former clerk in the bond department of the state's attorney's office, was denied a new trial yesterday by Judge John C. Lewe in the Criminal court and was sentenced to 99 years in the penitentiary. Cozzi was found guilty by a jury of the fatal shooting of Archie De Simone, 40 years old, 1004 Taylor street. Testimony showed that they had quarreled over alleged attentions of Cozzi to De Simone's wife.

NEW AIR LINERS FORM WARTIME AERIAL RESERVE

Rickenbacker Explains Potential Power.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 23.—[Special.]—The use of the new huge Douglas airliners in time of war was discussed today by Capt. Edward V. Rickenbacker, world war ace now engaged in commercial aviation.

While this country lags behinds others in the construction of actual fighting planes, it may eventually be in a position to claim military dominance of the air through the conversion of the big transport planes into flying battleships, he pointed out.

Europe was recently astonished by the performance of a Douglas plane in finishing second in the England-Australia air race. It lost only to a specially built speed plane. The Douglas is admittedly superior in flying ability to craft of similar size that have been built abroad.

Capt. Rickenbacker pictured what he thought the next great war would be like. He foresees aerial transportation of troops, planes carrying small cannon and dropping tanks behind enemy lines.

"Of course, the first value of these big planes in service at the moment," he said, "is that such service keeps an engineering staf busy. Factories are busy, pilots are flying, radio, weather and airport personnel are maintained in up-to-date condition."

To a suggestion that the United States might even now be in a position to repel invasion through use of the superior speed and transportation capabilities of the Douglas planes, Capt. Rickenbacker pointed out that these planes are too few in number at present.

"There are only fifty Douglases in service now," he said. "There are about seventy-five Boeing planes which might also be used. But such a number would not be a drop in the bucket in time of war."

Production Schedule Small.

About two Douglas planes are being manufactured each week at present, he said. In case of an emergency, the present manufacturing plants might be enlarged so that about 1,000 such planes could be launched in a period of six months.

"After that, production could be maintained at the rate of 300 or 400 planes a month," he continued. "If we had to start from scratch, it would be three years before a big fleet of planes could take to the air.

"Having a transport plane industry is the same as having a merchant marine or automobile or steel industry in time of peace. These industries can turn their facilities over to the production of implements of war.

"In an absolute emergency the present Douglas planes could be used as combatant planes with slight alterations. They could be used to transport machine gunners to strategic places. They, of course, could go on bombing missions. Troops could be transported quickly and landed or dropped by parachute at important points.

"The day is coming when airplanes will be equipped with artillery, small cannons, as well as machine guns. There will be thousands of them and regular infantry battles will be waged in the air."

ROBERT M. CURTIS ACTS TO SETTLE ALIMONY DISPUTE

Financial differences between Robert M. Curtis, 1444 Astor street, a broker, and his former wife, Mrs. Isabel Baker Curtis Welch of Lake Forest, sister of Mary Landon Baker, may be settled out of court, it was indicated yesterday.

Several weeks ago Curtis asked Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan to reduce the $250 monthly support money payments he was ordered to make when Mrs. Welch divorced him in August, 1929. She has since remarried. Mrs. Welch countered by asking that he be held in contempt for being $1,500 in arrears.

Yesterday both sides asked for a continuance of the hearing until Dec. 3 to allow time for the working out of an amicable settlement. Attorney Ernest S. Hodges for Mrs. Welch and Attorney Theodore Hardeen for Curtis, said Curtis has agreed to pay $1,550 in back support payments, and Mrs. Welch will consent to reduction of the payments to $150 a month with the understanding the higher payments will be restored when Curtis' salary reaches $8,000 a year. The money is for the support of two children, Isabel, 10 years old, and Priscilla, 15, who are with their mother.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Donald W. Douglas of Santa Monica, Calif., president of the Douglas Aircraft company and chief designer of the Douglas DC2, the twin motored transport monoplane which airmen and engineers unite in describing as "the finest ship of its type flying," came to Chicago yesterday. He arrived in one of his own airplanes which had just been delivered to American Airlines in Fort Worth, Tex., after being flown from the factory at Santa Monica.

A slim, wiry man with a tanned face and a pleasant grin, Mr. Douglas stepped out of the cabin to be greeted by C. R. Smith, new president of American Airlines, and a group of photographers. He posed with Smith and the airplane, fondly patting the aluminum fuselage plates several times during the process.

On Way to Washington.

Smiling he told reporters that he had not come to Chicago to gain any publicity for his airplane. A standard type Douglas DC2 took second place in the London-Melbourne air race last month while carrying passengers and mail for KLM, the Dutch Royal Air lines.

"I'm on my way to Washington to testify before the aviation commission appointed by President Roosevelt," he explained. "I just rode along on this ship until it was delivered at Fort Worth yesterday and came on up here as a guest of American Airlines today."

"I consider the DC2 an excellent airplane," he said, "but we are going to improve it a great deal. We now are planning to increase the payload and to increase the size of the cabin so that it can also be used as a sleeper plane.

Working on New Bomber.

"We also are working on a version of the DC2 which is to go to the army as a bomber. The two changes are going together because we believe the sleeper plane will have to be built practically as strong as the bomber. All these changes will have to be made without cutting down the speed."

A steady flow of foreign orders for his ships have come in since the Melbourne race, Mr. Douglas said. The orders come from private individuals and from airlines as well. KLM, he said, is considering a plan to equip their line with Douglas planes exclusively. Mr. Douglas is planning to fly to Washington today.

DIES OF HEART DISEASE.

Frank Carrigan, 41 years old, collapsed and died of heart disease yesterday in the rooming house where he lived at 6833 South Halsted street.

FARMER CONFESSES SLAYING OF GIRL, 6, YEAR AND HALF AGO

Midland, Mich., Nov. 23.—[Special.]—Charles Vermillion, 58, a farmer arrested here for molesting a young girl, has confessed to the raping and slaying of a 6 year old girl in Kansas City, Kas., a year and a half ago, it was announced today by Sherif George Venner. Vermillion is married and has two daughters.

Vermillion, a former inmate of the Kansas State hospital for the insane, was quoted by the sherif as relating that he picked the girl up in his car, took her to a spot about 20 miles west of Kansas City, and there raped and strangled her.

His victim was Nadine Love, who was abducted on April 20, 1933, while on her way home from school. Her body was found two weeks later at an isolated spot in rural Wyandotte county in Missouri.

Vermillion has lived on a small farm three miles west of here for the last six years. He said he committed the crime while he was visiting in Kansas City, near which he had previously farmed for a number of years.

PEARSONS' WIFE ASKS CITATION FOR CONTEMPT

Superior Court Judge Rudolph F. Desort was asked yesterday to cite Harry P. Pearsons of the University club of Evanston, former mayor of Evanston, to show cause why he should not be held in contempt.

The request was made by Mrs. Elizabeth Schmitt Pearsons, 360 Ridge avenue, Evanston, who alleges that her husband is $6,968 in arrears in alimony and other payments due her. Attorney Frank E. Cantwell, representing Mrs. Pearsons, set forth that his client won a separate maintenance decree July 12, 1932, and was awarded $40 a week alimony. He owes $1,780 of this money, $151 in temporary alimony before the decree was entered, $1,800 attorney's fees, and $3,227 in personal expenses, Cantwell said.

Mrs. Pearsons also asked yesterday that a new alimony order be entered, granting her solicitor's fees to contest Pearsons' appeal in the support suit which is scheduled for hearing by the Appellate court Dec. 3, and alimony payments while the appeal is under consideration.

She alleges she is now destitute, and sets forth that her husband inherited $300,000 from his father. Judge Desort continued the hearing until Nov. 27 in order that Pearsons may be represented in court.

LINCOLN AVENUE BRIDGE WORK TO START IN 10 DAYS

Maj. George Quinlan, Cook county highway superintendent, announced yesterday that construction will start within ten days on a new bridge for Lincoln avenue over the north shore channel. The existing structure, with a 24 foot roadway, has been the scene of so many accidents that the county has been closing it at night for the last four weeks.

The contract is awarded to M. J. McDermott & Co. on its low bid of $148,742.

Six Window Smashings in Same Store in 2 Months

In five successful window smashings at the Jerrems, Inc., tailors, store, 324 South Michigan avenue, in the last two months robbers got a blue serge suit, a silk scarf, an English bowler hat, kid gloves, and a pair of pearl gray spats. Last night the window was smashed again, but the intruder was frightened away by Robert Hendricksen, 6456 South Green street, the watchman. The remaining necessity of a gentleman's wardrobe, a llama overcoat, was found abandoned half way through the window.

ENVOY BINGHAM DEFENDS BIG U. S. BUDGET DEFICIT

Says America Is in Better Shape than Britain.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Robert W. Bingham, American ambassador, tonight justified the unbalanced budget of the United States government in an address to the English Speaking union at Plymouth. Bingham compared economic conditions in Great Britain and America much to the advantage of the latter.

Referring to Great Britain's progress toward recovery, the ambassador said:

"Here there is a great feeling of confidence and we believe it is soundly and firmly based. The confidence of the world in Britain's economic future is shown in many ways, especially in the fact that British government stocks are, I believe, at the highest point in the history of the country."

Tells of U. S. Progress.

Since March, 1933, however, the United States has also made great material advances, Bingham said. He insisted that this is not fully realized by the British, whose doubts are based largely on the fact that the American budget is unbalanced.

"It is balanced as far as governmental expenditures are concerned," Bingham asserted. "It is out of balance only by reason of expenditures to prevent millions of American citizens from freezing and starving and no one in the United States wants a balanced budget at such a cost."

Contrasts National Debts.

Bingham then contrasted the national debts of the two countries.

"If we take the outstanding debt of the people of the United States, national, state, and municipal, it amounts to $360 per capita, whereas in England on the same basis it amounts to $1,000 per capita," he said. "We believe Britain's economic future is assured, although the country is carrying this debt. We have no fear for the economic future of the United States."

ALFONSO REPORTED SEEKING TO ANNUL HIS SON'S WEDDING

PARIS, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Former King Alfonso of Spain is seeking to have the Vatican annul the marriage of his eldest son, the count of Covadonga, to Edelmira Sampedro y Robato, Cuban commoner. This was reported here today.

Termination of the "true love" romance, which led the erstwhile prince of Asturias to renounce his rights to the vacant Spanish throne last year, would be based on the fact that the marriage was morganatic and without the consent of his "most holy Catholic majesty," acquaintances of the couple said.

The countess, who has been living apart from her royal husband, will sail soon for New York.

DUCE MOVES FOR INVESTIGATION OF ALL TERRORISM

Would Widen Probe Into King's Assassination.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Nov. 23.—European statesmen in Rome, Paris, London and other capitals today were engaged in backyard conversations among themselves on the topic of how to keep yesterday's Jugo-Slav indictment of Hungary for responsibility in the murder of King Alexander from precipitating another war.

In Roman political circles the opinion was that the situation is easier and that much water will flow under the bridge before the examination of the Jugo-Slav charges comes up for action before the league of nations council in January.

Italy Welcomes Probe.

Italians assert that they would welcome nothing more than an investigation of terroristic activities of political emigrants. Rome takes the somewhat caustic attitude of congratulating the Jugo-Slav foreign minister, Boguljub Jeftitch, for bringing up the subject at Geneva.

"That subject is just what we want and the investigation should not be delayed until January," an Italian spokesman said.

This position is apparently aimed to broaden the scope of the investigation so that whatever the league does will not be pointedly to inquire into who inspired the assassination of King Alexander, but also into who inspired the shooting of Chancellor Dollfuss of Austria last summer, who sent assassins from France to Rome to shoot Premier Mussolini, and what Albanian groups supported the attempt to kill King Zog recently when he visited Vienna.

Congratulate Hungarian Chief.

Nearly all Italian newspapers, apparently from official inspiration, express the pious hope that investigation of the Marseilles crime will be made so broad that it will throw light on all post-war political crimes and reveal how assassination has become a method of foreign policy in European countries.

Premier Mussolini's government, apparently assured now that it will not be drawn into direct accusations by the Jugo-Slavs and that the brunt of the attack will be against Hungary, allowed the newspapers to congratulate Premier Julius Goemboes of Hungary on his spirited denial of guilt.

At the same time the Paris correspondent of these newspapers were allowed to indicate that the Hungarians are intriguing to throw a monkey wrench into the negotiations going on here between the Italians and French for a rapprochement, since an Italo-French deal would mean no more Italian support for Hungarian territorial claims.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Nov. 23.—It was ascertained late tonight that Premier Goemboes had left here quietly for Vienna. All information concerning his destination and even concerning the fact of his departure was refused in official quarters. Diplomatic circles believe he is going to Vienna for an emergency conference with Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg and Foreign Minister Berger-Waldenegg regarding a common line of action in connection with Jugo-Slavia's charges before the league of nations of Hungarian complicity in the assassination of King Alexander.

The excitement caused last night by the Jugo-Slav note to the league continued unabated today. Even in parliament wild rumors concerning the alleged crossing of the Hungarian frontier by Jugo-Slav comitadjis, who were said to have been driven back by Hungarian troops, were circulating. The rumors were proved to be without foundation, but the fact they were discussed in serious political circles is another indication of the tension prevailing.

The united bourgeois opposition parties are demanding that the foreign committee of parliament should be summoned immediately to discuss the Jugo-Slav charges. Under parliamentary procedure, these demands must be acceded to within four days.

Fear Drastic Hungarian Action.

GENEVA, Nov. 23.—Representatives of the little entente [Jugo-Slavia, Czechoslovakia, and Rumania], who yesterday joined in accusing Hungary of complicity in the murder of King Alexander, seemed bothered tonight by the possibility that Hungary might raise their bid by invoking against them paragraph 1 of article XI. of the league of nations covenant on the ground that their own invocation of the article's second paragraph against her raised a threat of war.

One object of this would be to force the council, if need be, to hear the issue of responsibility for King Alexander's assassination immediately instead of in January.

HABEAS CORPUS WRIT SOUGHT FOR BROADWAY JONES

A petition for a writ of habeas corpus for the release of Frank Lawrence, alias Broadway Jones, gambler and ex-convict whose discarded sweetheart, Lucille Louise Nolan, leaped to her death from a 17th story window of the Medinah club on Nov. 14, was filed yesterday before Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court by Attorney A. L. Marovitz. Jones was committed to the county jail on Thursday on the recommendation of a coroner's jury that he be held on a charge of manslaughter because he had been cruel to Miss Nolan.

Attorney Marovitz' petition said Jones is being held on something called a coroner's mittimus. He said the coroner is not a judicial officer and has no power of commitment. Jones could not be guilty of manslaughter, the petition states.

The attorney had $2,500 in cash ready for Jones' bail but decided to ask the writ which, if granted, would obviate the necessity of a grand jury hearing. In the event the writ is not issued, the story of the girl's death would again be told to the grand jury, and Miss Dorothy Lawler, the "preferred" sweetheart of Jones, would be required to testify. A hearing will be granted on the petition today.

Business Gains Under New System.

The old costly way in which the fifty Chicago public school lunchrooms were run has been replaced by methods of such efficiency that profits are being made where deficits formerly prevailed. This became known yesterday when Frank O. Washam, director appointed last May to institute changes, made his first report to a committee of restaurant officials named in an advisory capacity by James B. McCahey, president of the board of education.

Mr. Washam reported that for the first time in three years a profit has been shown, that the volume of lunchroom business has been increased from 27.3 per cent of the pupils in 1933 to 37 per cent for 1934, that better food has been purchased at 20 per cent less cost, and that overhead has been reduced to 6 per cent.

More Variation in Menu.

These improvements have come about, the director emphasized, with better and more varied menus at unchanged prices, more palatable cooking, and increased wages to the 452 full time employés. The changes have been effected in scarcely two months of operation, he said.

He predicted to the advisory committee, made up of Chairman Martin J. Harding of the Harding restaurants, Albert J. Pixley of Pixley & Ehlers, Dario Toffenetti of the Triangle chain, Paul Moore of the B-G Sandwich shops, Nicholas D. Gianoulis of Raklios, and Henry Heibel of the Heibel restaurant, that further improvements will be effected in 1935.

Replaces Old Equipment.

Citing examples of changes made, Mr. Washam told how conditions were quickly improved at the Hyde Park High school. Noting that the volume of business constituted only 15 per cent of the pupils, he investigated and found that the lunchroom was on the fourth floor and that its equipment was eighteen years old.

The equipment was modernized, other changes were made, and now the sales volume is up to 26 per cent, he told the committee.

Wages have been raised for employés, resulting in increased efficiency, he said. The minimum formerly was 21 cents an hour. Now it is 35 cents an hour. Food is now being purchased on a competitive basis through a central bureau, as contrasted to the former method, under which each lunchroom manager purchased personally and independently.

CHICAGO RECORD AS A LAW ABIDING CITY IS IMPROVED

Are Chicagoans becoming more law abiding? Figures made public yesterday by Clerk Joseph L. Gill of the Municipal court indicate they are.

In October only 799 felony cases were filed with the clerk, as compared with 1,098 such cases in October last year. Misdemeanor cases for the month likewise declined, only 4,682 being filed as compared with 5,712 for October, 1933.

Recent campaigns against criminals waged by law enforcement officials were credited by Gill for the decrease. However, due largely to efforts to reduce the automobile death toll, arrests for city ordinance violations, chiefly trafic regulations, totaled 13,022, an increase of 1,258 over the 11,764 arrests for the same period a year ago.

Increased diligence of Municipal court judges is indicated in the announcement that 34,249 criminal and quasi-criminal cases were disposed of by them last October, which compares with 20,696 dispositions for the previous October.

COOKING SCHOOL SESSIONS CLOSE IN FESTIVE MOOD

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

THE TRIBUNE'S fourth annual school of cookery came to a close in the Aragon ballroom yesterday, having completed its mission of bringing the newest methods of cooking to 60,000 women of Chicago. The school was in session for three weeks, a week each in the south, west, and north parts of the city. The sessions of the first two weeks were conducted at the Trianon ballroom, 6201 Cottage Grove avenue, and Guyon's Paradise ballroom, 128 North Pulaski road.

The Aragon was crowded to the last available inch and hundreds of women remained outside, hoping for vacated seats. At no time during the entire school were there empty seats.

"L. J. K." Is Located.

The final program was a gay occasion with music, speaking and last minute recipes demonstrated by Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, home economics expert in charge of the school. Because it was the last day, extra numbers were obtained for the entertainment program by Phil Maxwell of THE TRIBUNE staf, who was master of ceremonies.

And quite unexpectedly the "L. J. K." who wrote recently to THE TRIBUNE'S "Voice of the People" demanding good buckwheat cakes, was located, and given a sample right up on the stage as Mrs. Chitwood cooked some cakes to prove that the art is not a lost one, as "L. J. K." lamented. "L. J. K." is L. J. Keller, who lives at the Broadview hotel, 5540 Hyde Park boulevard.

"Lost Art Revived."

"Mrs. Chitwood has found the lost art and restored it to its old time glory," Mr. Keller told the women. "Her buckwheat cakes are actually of the edible variety."

Two little Negro entertainers nearly stole the show from their teammate, Ted Lewis, who is playing at the Uptown theater. Then there was Joe Rardin, radio's one-man band; Sara Corinne Mason, selected as the best woman singer of the 1934 Chicagoland Music Festival; Lawrence Salerno, W-G-N baritone; Pat Kennedy, tenor, and Capt. Tim Healy, Ivory Stamp Club of the Air.

Students from the Gladys Hight School of Dancing performed. Community singing was led by Hugh Dickerson, with Allan Grant at the piano, and Kathleen McLaughlin and Irene Steyskal of THE TRIBUNE staf spoke.

Grand Prizes Awarded.

Mary Meade, TRIBUNE cook editor, thanked the women for attending the school and invited them to use the services offered through THE TRIBUNE cooking department throughout the year.

An electric refrigerator, Mrs. Anna Bulin, 1917 South East avenue, Berwyn; gas range, Mrs. Emily Thompson, 3257 North Hoyne avenue; washing machine, Jane E. Brenner, 331 South Mozart street; food mixer, Catherine Crowe, 1241 North La Salle street; toaster tray, Mrs. Harry C. Jackson, 3749 North Sayre avenue; set of aluminum kitchenware, Mrs. F. A. Petersen, 3610 Irving Park boulevard; electric toaster, Teddy Szczypula, 3702 South Hermitage avenue; electric coffee pot, Mrs. W. Schmidtke, 3425 Sunnyside avenue.

LONDON'S MAYOR GIVES WEDDING GIFT TO ROYALTY

LONDON, Nov. 23.—(AP)—The lord mayor of London and his retinue turned out in all their finery today to ride to Buckingham palace in four horse drawn carriages and 15 automobiles, and present their wedding gift to the duke of Kent, fourth son of King George, and his bride-to-be, Princess Marina of Greece.

A few hours later the royal couple, who will be wed Nov. 29, were honor guests at the diplomatic corps' reception in the Brazilian embassy. There the assembled statesmen, arrayed in their finest, bestowed their collective gift, three silver soup tureens.

Sir Stephen Killik, the lord mayor, also presented costly gifts of silver on behalf of the city's highest dignitaries.

Norway's King Arrives.

NEWCASTLE, England, Nov. 23.—(AP)—King Haakon of Norway arrived today and proceeded by motor to London, where he will attend the wedding of Princess Marina and the duke of Kent.

True Bill Accuses Five Youths of 23 Robberies

A true bill charging twenty-three robberies and nine automobile thefts was reported voted yesterday by the Cook county grand jury against five youths alleged to have operated for several months on the south and southwest sides. Those reported named are David Fulford, 19 years old, 6329 Woodlawn avenue; Earl Suchy, 16, of 5020 South Marshfield avenue; Arthur Breiter, 24, of 6329 Woodlawn avenue; August Belestri, 17, of 6753 South Paulina street, and Joseph Siso, 17, of 7006 South Honore street. Fulford and Suchy are suspects in the slaying of George Mayes of Mount Vernon, a World's Fair visitor, on Oct. 27.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Mr. Tarkington Sets a Record for Laughs Here

"Little Orvie" Is Going on Eight as Book Opens.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Little Orvie," by Booth Tarkington. [Doubleday Doran.] Published on Wednesday.

TO complete an incomparable triptych, the two previous panels of which were "Penrod" and "Seventeen," Booth Tarkington offers us this week "Little Orvie." "Little Orvie" is "going on eight" when the story opens at the beginning of summer. He is what they used to call a limb of Satan and his satanic qualities shine gloriously on page nineteen and never cease their effulgence for nearly four hundred pages.

Despite, or perhaps because of, his satanic qualities not only Little Orvie but the reader is in the seventh heaven of bliss as the season and the book end—little Orvie because, after a lifetime of longing for a dog, he finds himself with THREE, and the reader because, after a lifetime of longing to meet a little Orvie—in print, not in person—the reader finds him there alive and real and himself, and yet in one way a synthesis of ALL little boys of almost eight.

There is no conceivable mischief at which Little Orvie does not show a master's hand, no situation to be met in life or literature in which he does not find himself. In fact, he is a compendium of all the vices of his years. But so warmly has Booth Tarkington breathed upon the synthetic figure his own humorous understanding that Little Orvie is as alive as the little fiend who broke YOUR window yesterday. Perhaps no one little boy has ever had such a continuous career of side-splitting adventures, but the reader, having been hypnotized by the genius of Mr. Tarkington, never questions Little Orvie's reality.

I, for one, think that "Little Orvie" is one of the funniest books I have read for years. You, for another and another, thousands, and maybe a hundred or more of thousands of you, will feel the same way about it. But perhaps you will find yourselves, as I did, suddenly wondering where the tragic pathos of Booth Tarkington has gone that made "Seventeen" something to weep real tears as well as tears of almost hysteric laughter over. And "Penrod" wasn't merely a comic character. His world's lack of understanding of him and the world at large's inability to give him justice gave the book an underlay of tragedy for its hilarity. But "Little Orvie" is comedy through and through, with no implications of tragedy other than the frustration of a boy in his major passion for a dog.

Although Little Orvie is the main character in Mr. Tarkington's drama of family life, and his creator treats him with a sort of loving satire, the adults around him come in for Mr. Tarkington's most skilful caricaturing and not a small part of the glee which the reader finds in the book is in its author's keen scalpeling of his fellow men.

Shows World Effort to Rule Public Opinion

BY GEORGE J. SCHARSCHUG.
[Cable Editor of The Chicago Tribune.]

"Mobilizing for Chaos," by O. W. Riegel. [Yale University Press.]

O. W. RIEGEL presents many interesting and some startling facts on one of the world's biggest and perhaps most menacing of problems—the enslavement of the human mind. As the text of his story of the battle of nations to control communications systems, stifle the free press and the free flow of news, and by radio broadcasts and other propaganda, bend the masses to the will of the political tycoons, he has chosen Dictator Adolf Hitler's words:

"We have strengthened the power of the state as an expression of our common will and have exalted it above everything else."

He might have chosen equally well the words of any one of a half dozen other dictators or those of some other rulers who pose as the "people's choice." Because, as he points out vividly, they are all doing it—str[illegible] day in and day out, to regiment public opinion.

"Nationalism," Mr. Riegel writes, "is the religion of the twentieth century, and save for a small number of exceptions, it is universally more potent in determining the average man's thought and behavior than Christianity."

He traces the growth of this dictatorial-made nationalism, and government control of telegraph, telephone, cable and radio services upon which the masses must depend for information and opinion. And he finds "In the name of nationalism, the fetish of the decade, freedom of speech and the press has already been denied to approximately nine-tenths of the world's population, including the populations of Russia, China, Japan, Germany, Italy, Austria, most colonial possessions, and smaller states in the Balkans and South America."

Of the insidious, invidious and o[illegible] methods of the censors to prevent the free flow of unbiased news in their own countries and to the outer world, he has only scratched the surface. And perhaps that is all that should be expected because in addition to tampering, intimidation, and terrorism, the censor is constantly inventing new tricks to prevent the honest foreign correspondent and the editor, at home, who handles the stories, from giving the reader real facts.

While declaring the United States "has so far resisted the tendencies which have already produced an intellectual medievalism in certain European countries," Mr. Riegel sounds a warning cry to which thinking Americans should take heed.

Mr. Riegel is director of journalism at Washington and Lee university at Lexington, Va. He worked for a short time on the staf of the Paris edition of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

IN YEARS GONE BY

Twenty years ago this week two English authors whose books have become classics were praised by the book critic. The Countess Russell, then known only as "the author of 'Elizabeth and Her German Garden,'" had just written the incomparable "The Pastor's Wife," and H. G. Wells had startled the world with "The Wife of Sir Isaac Harmon." Elizabeth's latest novel, "The Jasmine Farm," was promised for this week but postponed, and Mr. Wells' "An Experiment in Autobiography" is one of the best sellers. And speaking of best sellers, those of ten years ago this week, you remember, were:

Fiction.

"The White Monkey," by John Galsworthy.
"The Green Hat," by Michael Arlen.
"The Old Ladies," by Hugh Walpole.

Nonfiction.

"Francis Wilson's Life of Himself."
"Mark Twain's Autobiography."
"Prejudices," Henry L. Mencken.

NONFICTION.

"While Rome Burns," by Alexander Woollcott.
"Diamond Jim," by Parker Morell.
"Forty-Two Years in the White House," by Irwin H. Hoover.

Those Who Like Old London Will Like This Book

Grosvenor Square Subject of Arthur Dasent.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—Lovers of old London will be interested in a book published here by Macmillan & Co., called "A History of Grosvenor Square." The author is Arthur Dasent, who wrote some years ago a similar history of St. James square, now known to most of us as the home of the London library as well as the home of Lady Astor. This is a very interesting notion indeed, for these old squares are characteristic London, and they contain in themselves a whole social history.

Grosvenor square, for example, was built in the reign of King George I., and much of the fashion of the last two hundred years has passed across its face, nor is it yet in any kind of decay.

Good news for lovers of W. B. Yeats as a dramatist comes also from Macmillans, for they will publish before Christmas in one large volume the Collected Plays. The book, which will be a substantial one, will range with the Collected Poems published last year. Presumably this book will include the recently published "Wheels and Butterflies," which contained four new plays, but, whether it will do so or not, the book will provide fascinating material for the study of Mr. Yeats in one of his chosen styles.

A curious and interesting work, edited by H. R. Westwood, which may already have appeared in the United States, is to be published here very shortly by Allen & Unwin. It is called "Tendencies of the Modern Novel," and the contributors include Pirandello, Jacob Wassermann, Hugh Walpole, Prince Mirsky, V. S. Pritchett, and Hamish Miles. The book is international in scope, and it will make known to all something of the work and ideas of the youngest novelists of note in many European countries, as well as in America.

Some years ago I read a striking little novel called "Tantalus," the author of which was quite unknown to me. I discovered by chance that she was related to John Galsworthy to whose work her own bore little resemblance, although it was marked by extraordinary sensitiveness. As far as I can tell, Miss Easton has not since "Tantalus" published another novel, but she is at last to do so.

The book is of considerable length and Martin Secker will be the publisher. The explanation of Miss Easton's silence is that after "Tantalus" was published she married and went to live in the heart of the country. She has worked so hard at home making and gardening—serious gardening, and not merely the pleasant pastime of idle ladies—that she has only lately found time to write another book.

I am told that, as I should have expected, the new novel, to which no title had been given when I heard of it, is a highly interesting and original work, and I shall look forward to it with eager anticipation. It may not appear until the early spring.

Charnley Writes Life of Lafitte, Gentleman Smuggler

Mitchell Charnley has done a good piece of work in his "Jean Lafitte, Gentleman Smuggler" [Viking Press], a well written, straightforward biography of one of the picturesque figures of the early years of the nineteenth century. Lafitte, always a man of mystery, was a privateer, slave trader, polished man of the world, diplomat, and the ruthless leader of as tough a gang of freebooters as ever ranged the seas. And yet, under Gen. Jackson, he did much to save New Orleans from the British. Apparently he never was what most of us think him to have been—a pirate.

'Pleasures of Poetry' Anthology Made by Author During Illness

"The Pleasures of Poetry" [Norton] Edith Sitwell frankly calls the little three volume anthology of poems which she made to "enliven a tiresome illness of three months' duration," and, she declares in one of the three exciting introductions (which fill almost half of each volume), "the pleasures of poetry are unconfined. They are of the spirit and the mind and the heart, but not of these alone, for they are also the delights of texture, sight, and hearing. . . . In reality the pleasures of poetry are like the joys of nature."

The joys of nature are not alone for geologists or botanists or biologists, or even for artists. They are so full that every man can find in them something to nourish his spirit. Just so with poetry. Edith Sitwell offers us some of the poems which were food for her fertile mind. The selection is rather from the lesser than the better known joys of poetry—which gives many of them the charm of a spring suddenly come upon in a wood.

Morley to Talk.

Christopher Morley, author and raconteur, will speak at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Union League club. His subject will be "Fifty Golden Florins."

Mystery of the Week

BY MORTIMER QUICK.

Mignon G. Eberhart specializes in ladies whose native element is murder. They are buffeted through life to carom from one body to the next, glance off, and run spang into the murderer. It is, perhaps, an unenviable gift, but Mrs. Eberhart's ability to present their fervid adventures every writer of mystery stories must surely envy.

Her new book is "The Cases of Susan Dare" [Crime Club], and it recounts the experiences of a young woman who, like Mrs. Eberhart, writes murder stories. One day a murder is committed under her very nose, and from that moment they dog her footsteps, so she takes on their solution as a side line. She's good at it, too; has one of those intuitive natures which are always open to hunches (though she never once calls them that).

There are six stories in the book, each with its own involved plot, each fast and easy reading. Dare is the very name for our Susan; for, though terror grips her about the middle of each grisly case, she always emerges limp but triumphant. When that scared feeling comes on she steps to the telephone and summons her young friend Jim Byrne, one of those breezy crime reporters. And does he turn up in the nick of time with the crime squad at his heels? He does, and when the shouting dies Susan unmasks the criminal. He blames himself for drawing her into some of her most dangerous cases, but he wouldn't know how to get on without her, and she furnishes him with many a scoop. At the end of this book their relations are still strictly platonic, but when another is written about them something in the way of love interest is bound to crop up.

If you like to be up to date with your murders, "The Gentle Art of Murder, 1934" [Vanguard], by Alexander L. Schlosser, is the very book you need. It extracts the meat from such widely heralded exploits as those of Dillinger. The facts, without frills, are collected and set before you in an interesting fashion.

Jane Dunham Is Engaged to Mr. Remisoff

WAYNE, that pleasant community west of Chicago which reminds all who visit it of the countryside of England, is supplying us with more romantic news this morning. Yesterday announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Louise Stanton of Wayne to John Dudley Clemens of Chicago and Erie, Pa. And this morning we are announcing the engagement of Miss Jane Dunham, great-granddaughter of the founder of Wayne, to Leonid Remisoff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicolas Remisoff of Wayne.

Miss Dunham's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Dole, are making the announcement because their mother, Mrs. Wirth S. Dunham, is on a trip around the world, just now somewhere en route from China to Capri, where she will spend the winter.

Miss Dunham went to the Ethel Walker school in Simsbury, Conn., and then to Bryn Mawr. Since making her debut and finishing college she has traveled abroad extensively and has spent much time with her aunt, Countess Adimari-Morelli, in Florence, Italy.

Becomes Student of Wayne History.

Mrs. Dunham and Miss Dunham spent some months abroad after the death of Mr. Dunham and since returning home several years ago Miss Dunham has become much interested in developing matters of historical interest to residents of the Fox river valley. Last summer she wrote a pageant depicting the founding of the township by her great grandfather, Solomon Dunham, and other occasions of moment in the century that followed. It was presented on the evening of June 30 to celebrate Wayne's centennial and every one of the hundreds who attended it was enthusiastic in his praise of the author, who also was the director.

Mr. Remisoff was educated abroad, finishing his studies at the Sorbonne in Paris, for he and his parents did not come to this country until about ten or twelve years ago. The senior Remisoff was the designer of many of the settings and costumes in the "Chauve Souris" which took this country by storm when Balieff brought it here from Paris. The Remisoffs built a charming house in Wayne several years ago and all three of them are very popular members of that community. There are no plans for the wedding.

Tell Engagement of Madeline Tripp.

Another interesting engagement being announced today is that of Miss Madeline Burton Tripp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester D. Tripp of Evanston, to Edward M. Tourtelot Jr., son of Edward M. Tourtelot of Chicago.

Miss Tripp attended the Roycemore school in Evanston and the Shipley school at Bryn Mawr. Last year she was a freshman at Smith college. Mr. Tourtelot was graduated from the architectural school at Cornell university in 1931.

The wedding will take place Easter week. Miss Tripp is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Burton Hanson of Chicago and has one sister, Mrs. Albert C. Nelson [Lois Hanson Tripp], who now lives in Berkeley, Cal.

SQUIRREL stories from Maywood, too. Mrs. H. L. Franzen was in a hurry to cool a grape pie, so she put it on the bannister of the back porch. When she went to get it she found a mother squirrel and her babies consuming it.

Last winter she fed the squirrels raisin and nut bread, but not content with this fare they had the habit of lying in wait for the milkman and trailing him up the stairs. As soon as he had put down the milk and disappeared they would remove the cap and drink—down to the cream line. . . . Well, it's Mrs. Franzen's story.

EUGENIE LEONTOVICH has arrived in town to reherse her part in "Romance," to open at the Blackstone next Monday evening, and one of the first things she did was to go to a fashionable male couturier. She ordered three suits, one brown trimmed with sable, with a brown hat to accompany it; a green suit and a red hat, and a third suit and hat. But wait—the clothes were not for her; they were for her pet monkey. He has his first fitting this morning.

Writing with Spaces Between Letters Is Sign of Intuition

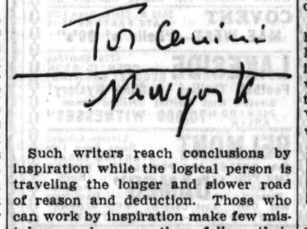
BY MURIEL STAFFORD.

[Copyright: 1934: By Muriel Stafford.]

Have you ever felt that a thing would happen before it occurred? Have you ever known things for no logical reason or found yourself almost reading the mind of others? Sometimes the accuracy of your deduction may frighten you.

This gift is called "intuition" and is defined as "instinctive knowledge or feeling." Authors, poets, artists and musicians usually show much of this trait in their handwriting. I am using the handwriting of Toscanini to illustrate.

The letters or syllables are separated by means of little spaces. Instead of writing his name as a solid word, he has broken it up. A separation of a word in this way is an unfailing sign of an intuitive mind.



Such writers reach conclusions by inspiration while the logical person is traveling the longer and slower road of reason and deduction. Those who can work by inspiration make few mistakes so long as they follow their "hunches."

You are lucky if you are intuitive. Your perceptions are sharpened and you have the ability to say the right thing at the right time. If you should happen to blunder you realize your mistake instantly and usually manage to straighten things out.

This is one of the very few qualities in handwriting analysis that does not require many indications. Breaks in the words, such as I have described and such as are illustrated in today's specimen of handwriting, are the only indications necessary.

The more the letters of the words are disconnected the more intuitive the writer shows himself to be. When practically all the connecting strokes of the words are broken as in Toscanini's signature, the writer is supersensitive. He may even appear to be unreasonable, since he is guided almost entirely by an inner conviction and "feeling." When some of the connecting strokes are broken, but all are not, there is a good combination of logic and intuition.

Usually, as here, you'll find the handwriting that contains intuition a highly intelligent one. Some persons insist that intuition is nothing but a very highly developed logic that flies to its destination instead of plodding. Whatever it is, be glad if your handwriting shows you have it.

Gadgets Take High Place on Yuletide Lists

BY RHEA SEEGER.

There's a lot of pre-Christmas spirit around the shops and stores. Gift courts have sprung up like mushrooms over night, handkerchief sections are bulging with new collections, as well as all the rest of the departments that lure the early shopper.

Gadgets seem to be more plentiful than ever before. Have you seen the trick new pencil and magnifying glass combine, a slick find for the person who has everything. The lower half is pencil, the upper half a hunk of glass that will, for just one of its many uses, make a telephone number in a dark telephone booth as readable as in daylight.

Perpetual calendars are going fast, especially the small desk variety packed into a silver gold metal frame with a very lifelike small dog in colored enamel decorating the top of the frame. These small calendars are about two and one-half inches square with a choice of any breed of pup you may fancy.

In the same shop you'll find the enamel and metal sets that include cigaret case, vanity, lighter and comb in every imaginable color combine, and if any of the many contacts do not suit, you can order any other get-together and just wait a few days for the set to be made.

Colorful boudoir extras are the enamel service buttons, dainty floral designs on pale pink, blue, mauve and yellow backgrounds to match the color scheme of a room. Silk covered cord, sufficient for the connection is also supplied. All these new items are luxuries, but good finds for the particular people on your list, and the price tags are exceptionally interesting for such unusual finds.

Among the best loot of the year are the thousands of different looking boudoir slippers from the flat infinitely comfortable kind with fuzzy feathers and soft velvets to the frivolous heeled models that glitter and gleam with silver kid, gold kid, metallic brocades and the like.

Some pajama sandals of suede that are just a matter of criscross straps and lowish heels will delight the most jaded soul. See these slippers before the rush. They will step out swiftly.

President Angell Will Address Yale Dinner on Tuesday

The annual dinner of the Yale Club of Chicago will be held at 7 o'clock next Tuesday evening in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. President James R. Angell of Yale will be the guest of honor. At the speakers' table with him will be Fred L. McNally, Robert A. Gardner, Edward L. Ryerson Jr., Fred A. Preston, William McCormick Blair, Henry A. Gardner and others.

Among the innovations planned for the dinner will be a real brass band which will play Yale songs and marches. Dr. Angell will deliver the principal talk and will report to the alumni latest university news from New Haven. The committee in charge urges the attendance of all Yale men in this area.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Right here is where we sound the Christmas bell and begin to round up beguiling gifties for you. Ordinarily the holiday spirit doesn't strike us until we get much closer to the chilling realization that those signs are right and there ARE only a few days left, but some perfumes have put us on the path to righteousness. Part of this reform wave is due to the fact that the scents themselves come nestled beneath Christmasy silver [well, almost] bells that you can hang on our tree any Yuletide.

Both are creations of a French couturier and we don't know which we like the better. The one you'll choose will depend entirely on the sort of woman you are or, perhaps, would like to be.

Neither would fit in what is loosely termed the "exotic" class. That is, they don't just knock you down with the consciousness that they've striven frantically to be too wicked for words. But they could hold their own in any sophisticated group, since they've suavely seductive bouquets.

One, which we'd consider appropriate for the woman rather than the very youthful damsel, is dramatic in a subtle, almost calm fashion—the way bright stars are as they stand out in a coal black, wise sky that's looked down on a frenzied world for a long, long time. It has a clarity about it that we find attractive after a long procession of murky perfumes.

The other, by name and by nature is suggestive of a golden, limpid dawn, rather exuberantly and youthfully pungent. This is the one the blithe young girls will like the better, we imagine, because it's a bit more sprightly and a bit more along the life-is-just-a-lark lines.

It doesn't matter in the least, but we can't get our mind off those bells in which the bottles are set on black bases. They're awfully cute, with real ding-dongers suspended inside. One is tied with blue and one with salmon ribbon.

Straws are flat and smooth or slightly roughened.

New spring toques appeared in a modified pillbox shape, shallow in front, rising slightly in back and extending well down over the curls at the back of the head. Airplane wings of straw perched on each side of the crown or a mother of pearl flower tucked into left front were the favorite trims.

Many were worn with sheer black veils which filmed the eyes and nose and hung loose. All were worn well pitched over the right eye.

Off the face hats, however, were worn well back of the forehead, sometimes even far enough to reveal the hairline. They were generally designed with three inch brims rolling up in the front and shallow turned-down brims in the back.

Bretons, too, stepped out on the style stage. One was trimmed with tiny green and white feathers thrust through the upturned brim, another banded with ribbons of a contrasting color.

Reject M. T. Mellon Offer of German Scholarship

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 23.—(AP)—Harvard university officials said today that a $1,500 scholarship proffered by Matthew T. Mellon, nephew of Andrew W. Mellon, had been declined. The money would have financed a year's study by a student in Germany. The position taken by the university was similar to its attitude in turning down a $1,000 scholarship offered last June by Dr. Ernst F. S. Hanfstaengl aid to Adolf Hitler. Mellon's conditions were similar to those of Hanfstaengl.

Episcopal Club Plans Yule Party for 1,000 Children

Plans were laid yesterday for the seventh annual children's Christmas benefit for Episcopal welfare institutions of the city at a meeting of the Church Club of Chicago [Episcopal]. John D. Allen, president, announced that the benefit will be held at the Hotel Sherman on Thursday, Dec. 20, with nearly 1,000 children as guests.

At Grandmother's

Miss Mary Macdonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Macdonald of Winnetka was introduced to Chicago society yesterday afternoon by her grandmother, Mrs. Robert Stuart, who invited all of her old friends to a tea in her Woodlawn avenue home to meet this attractive debutante.

Miss Macdonald wore a gown of black velvet with a chic silver metal cloth top and lavendar orchids. She and Mrs. Stuart, who wore black velvet and orchids, received. Four close friends of the debutante assisted: Miss Patsy Keith, who is engaged to the debutante's brother, Robert; Miss Margaret Talbot, Miss Betty Brawley, and Miss Martha Borland. The Macdonald family moved here from Peterborough, Ont., Can., recently.

Famous European Philologist Will Teach at U. of C.

Prof. Walther von Wartburg, eminent European philologist in the field of the Romance languages, will lecture and offer graduate instruction at the University of Chicago during January, February, and March, it is announced by Prof. William A. Nitze, chairman of the Romance languages department of the university.

Prof. von Warburg, who heads the linguistics seminar at the University of Leipzig, is the leader in a new approach to the study of language, which might be called linguistic geography or linguistic sociology, according to Prof. Nitze. His major opus, called the "Few," which is a French etymological dictionary, has just been awarded the Prix Volney by the Institute of France, despite the fact that it is written in German.

Evangeline Booth Calls on World for 'Revolution of Love'

New York, Nov. 23.—[Special.]—"What the world needs more than anything else is a revolution—but it must be a revolution of love," Gen. Evangeline Booth said before sailing tonight on the steamer Majestic for London. There she will take up her duties for a four-year term as head of the International Salvation Army with 300,000 uniformed workers under her command in all parts of the world.

"The revolution of love," she continued, "must be for our fellow men in all countries of the world. It is not the politicians, the bankers, the industrial magnates, the dictators who finally will lead the world out of its misery, entanglements and blind alleys into established justice and peace, but great sacrificial lovers like St. Paul, St. Augustine, St. Francis of Assisi, Wesley, and William Booth.

The Forgotten Honeymoon

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

Rhoda Cornboise's engagement to Maj. Ralph Stornack is arranged by her ambitious mother. Rhoda is in love with Colin Briarley, who is in jail for the murder of a Canadian solicitor in a London night club. Colin was alone at the table with the Canadian when the lights went out and he was struck in the throat by a tableknife. Chief witness against Colin was Maj. Stornack, who was the solicitor's host. Rhoda met Stornack when he called to express his regret for the testimony he had to give at her lover's trial. Jack Caermaen, an old pal of Colin's, is his warder. He plots Colin's escape by taking Colin's place as prisoner, allowing Colin to use his week's vacation. Nobody looks closely at prisoners, he explains, and warders are frequently changed. Rhoda elopes with Colin on the eve of her marriage to Stornack. They spend a brief honeymoon in Wales. Then Colin returns to prison. Rhoda returns home and feigns a lapse of memory. Her mother besieges her to marry Stornack, who is still willing. He and his confederates know she has inherited the fortune of a Canadian relative. The solicitor had come to London to tell her of it. Stornack calls on Caermaen and they quarrel. Jack suspects Stornack of the crime for which Colin was convicted. Rhoda, who is expecting a baby, leaves home and stays with friends of Caermaen's, the Rawlings, in London. Her mother follows with a court order, placing Rhoda under her charge. Caermaen and his solicitor plan to investigate Stornack. Mrs. Cornboise takes Rhoda to France, where her son is born. Her mother sends the baby away. Rhoda arranges to see him and have him properly cared for. She and her mother return to London. Caermaen arranges to get Colin out of prison again for a few days to have him identify a confederate of Stornack's. Thinking Rhoda is still in France he plans to fly there. Rhoda, with her mother, calls on Mrs. Rawlings. Colin had just left there for the aerodrome. Mrs. Rawlings gets word secretly to Rhoda, who evades her mother and taxies to the aerodrome in time to meet Colin. Her mother learns from the taxi driver where she had gone. Rhoda flies with Colin to see their son. Jarroman meets them in Paris. He is on the trail of an uncle of Rhoda's who had settled in Canada. Rhoda and Colin fly back to London. Her mother is waiting at the aerodrome and sees Colin. She threatens to turn him over to the police, but her fear of scandal keeps her from doing so. Colin goes back to prison.

INSTALMENT XXX.

SIFTING THE MYSTERY.

"Mother," Rhoda cried impulsively, "won't you stop worrying about me? I know I've spoilt all your plans and been a failure. Let me just slip away and earn my own living in London? I can keep in touch with you and—and, if you felt inclined—we could meet sometimes."

This constant desire to cut adrift! It meant, thought Mrs. Cornboise, that the girl had some scheme for joining her lover. But if Briarley had been her lover from the first—which scarcely seemed possible—how could she hope to link up with a man who was serving a sentence of twenty years? There was a mystery somewhere and she determined to fathom it. But evidently she would not be able to drag it out of Rhoda.

"It would be a very hard life for you, dear. You haven't been brought up to that kind of thing. There's a much more sensible way out of the difficulty. Why not work with me instead of always pulling against me?"

At midnight, Colin had told her, he changed back into his cell. After midnight Jack Caermaen would be safe. In the meantime she must agree to anything.

Instantly Mrs. Cornboise jumped at the offer.

"O, darling, I'm so glad!" Rhoda felt herself gripped and kissed on the cheek. "Now we're going to be real comrades; we'll drop all this horrible business of your being incapable of looking after yourself. I'll book you a separate room at the hotel. And I won't interfere with your movements or anything else. You'll come and go as you please, and you needn't even tell me where you're going. I don't suppose you care for me much, after all that's happened, but I shall try as hard as I can to make you care just a little."

Well, there was a simple way of sifting the mystery: "Who is the supreme head of prisons?" she asked.

And so it came about that because one innocent man had been perjured into prison, mother and daughter—both at heart honest and moral women—lied to each other and made promises that neither had the least intention of keeping.

At the Dangerfield hotel, duly in possession of a room to herself, Rhoda lay down and at once fell into an exhausted sleep. Reaction had come upon her, for she believed now that Jack Caermaen was safe from her mother's vengeance.

As soon as she had seen Rhoda to her room Mrs. Cornboise rang up her husband.

"You can leave the club, William, and come here. In fact, I would be glad if you would come as soon as you possibly can. . . . Yes, Rhoda has come back—she's all right. But I'm in a difficulty and I want your advice."

"I'll come at once, my dear."

"Thank you, William! I shall be in the drawing room."

Mrs. Cornboise promptly put through another call—this time to Major Stornack.

"O, Major Stornack! My husband has just come back with Rhoda. . . . No, it was a false alarm. His aunt didn't die—in fact, she's a troublesome old lady who's always gathering relatives round her deathbed. Poor Rhoda has been fearfully bored, and, to make matters worse, we've got one of William's cronies coming tonight to talk science. If you aren't doing anything, I wonder whether you could take Rhoda to a theater? I know she'd be delighted, but I haven't said anything to her, in case you're otherwise occupied. . . . Excellent! Then we'll expect you here to dinner at half-past seven."

When her husband arrived she took him to a secluded corner of the big drawing room and told him what had happened.

When she mentioned Colin Briarley's name "the professor" laughed.

"Obviously an optical illusion!" he exclaimed. "I remember young Briarley—a very presentable and highly intelligent young man. But he murdered a solicitor and was sent to prison for twenty years. That is little more than a year ago. Therefore——"

"But he has broken out of prison! Convicts escape sometimes. Do be practical."

"When you ask me to be practical you mean that you wish me to concern myself with trifles. Very well! You tell me that he hired a private aeroplane and took Rhoda for three days to Paris. You tell me also that he is an escaped convict. How did he manage to pay for the aeroplane? Such things, I believe, are costly."

"An escaped convict would be rearrested the moment he tried to draw money from his bank. His chances of earning any considerable sum are remote. Therefore——"

"The real point is, William, has he been Rhoda's lover from the first?"

"On the premise that an escaped convict is able to earn comparatively large sums of money——"

"William! Will you please find out how long that man has been out of prison?"

"Certainly, my dear," said Mr. Cornboise, and to her astonishment got up and left her, to return within two or three minutes, beaming with satisfaction.

"As I suspected—an optical illusion!" he told her. "Colin Briarley has never escaped from prison."

"How can you possibly know that, William? I tell you, I saw him with my own eyes."

"The invariable remark of the victim of an optical illusion," asserted "the professor." "You may be aware, my dear, that we are shareholders in a newspaper called the Sunday Record. On the telephone I have just spoken to a junior editor. The paper specializes in criminal records. It is impossible that a man should escape from prison without their knowing it. The young man assured me first that Colin Briarley had been sent to Mardlehurst prison three months after his sentence; secondly, that neither he nor any other convict has ever escaped from Mardlehurst prison."

Yet there was not the slightest doubt that she had spoken to Colin Briarley that afternoon at Croydon aerodrome. There was not the slightest doubt that he had admitted his identity. Something funny must have happened somewhere—an impression that was at once linked on to Rhoda's strange reluctance that any inquiry should be made.

Well, there was a simple way of sifting the mystery!

"Who is the supreme head of prisons?" she asked.

"What! Sir Andrew Barcester! The man who asked you to stay the summer before last, after your address to the Royal Society?"

"Yes, I believe he was a leading politician, though, of course, we did not talk politics."

"You must go and see him, William, and ask him to give you permission for me to see Colin Briarley in prison. I simply want to see him face to face for a moment. I don't need to speak to him at all. How long do you think it will take you to do all that?"

"Probably an hour, my dear."

"But—do you know where he is?"

"Yes. Playing cards at the club."

There was something almost exasperating in the quickness with which her husband could get to work when he understood what was required of him. She went contentedly upstairs, knowing that he would succeed.

invitations for a supper party next Friday night for Paul D. Cravath, chairman of the board of the Metropolitan Opera company. The party will be in the Electric club immediately following the ballet performance that Ruth Page is arranging.

Mr. Cravath and his daughter, Mrs. Francis Gibbs, are coming to Chicago especially to see the American première of Miss Page's ballet "Hear Ye! Hear Ye!" the music for which is by Aaron Copeland.

Busy Week-end for Young People.

There's hardly a thing for the young people to do over this week-end . . . in the mornings! Tonight there is the Bruce Borlands' dinner-dance at the Casino, to which the debutantes and their beaux have been invited with Miss Martha Borland, the host and hostess' debutante niece, as the special guest at the party. At the same time a group of post-debutantes and young married people will dance at the Belden-Stratford hotel, where the almost defunct Junior club is having a revival of the old days when it used to have a dance each fortnight.

Out in Evanston at the Country club the first dance of the North Shore Fortnightly club will be held.

Not the least of the week-end's festivities are the parties being given for four brides-to-be. Miss Isabel Gordon and Miss Eleanor McNally have invited two dozen guests to dine tonight at the Frank M. Gordons' and then to dance in the Urban room in the Congress hotel at a party for Miss Barbara Graf and Charles S. Connell, who will be married next Saturday at the Fortnightly.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Fellowes [Jean McVoy] are inviting another small group to a buffet supper in their apartment on Judson avenue in Evanston tonight for Miss Nancy Traylor and Nathan B. Swift who will be married Thanksgiving day at Mrs. Melvin Traylor's home on Barry avenue.

Tomorrow there is a luncheon in Lake Forest with John E. Baker Jr. as host, and the Joseph E. Nolans' [Jane Fortune] buffet supper in town for Miss Graf and Mr. Connell, and Miss Susan Badgerow's cocktail party in Winnetka for Miss Traylor and Mr. Swift before the hocky game. Mr. and Mrs. George Henry Schulz [Mary Dawes] are giving a cocktail party tomorrow afternoon in Evanston for Miss Jane Lawrence and Otto Schulz who will be married Tuesday at St. James'.

Cocktail Party for Miss Wheeler.

Miss Dorothy Dewes is giving a cocktail party tomorrow afternoon for Miss Winifred Wheeler and Henry McIntyre, who will be married Dec. 21 at St. Chrysostom's.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Graham have invited a few of their friends to supper tomorrow evening to eat spaghetti, prepared especially by Mme. Jeritza, Paul Longone, and Gennaro Papi, who will have the run of the Graham kitchen.

For older people there is Mr. and Mrs. Vernon D. Beatty's tea tomorrow afternoon in their Flossmoor home for Dr. Rowena Morse Mann, author, orator, and publicist, who will relate her recent experiences in Germany. Dr. Mann, who for several years was pastor of the Third Unitarian church here, has been rated among the ten most brilliantly educated women in America. She is a granddaughter of Samuel F. B. Morse of telegraph fame. She was educated at Cornell university and the University of Chicago, where she received degrees of bachelor of science and bachelor of divinity. Later she studied abroad at the University of Jena, where she was the first woman ever to receive a doctor of philosophy degree, and at the University of Berlin and at the Sorbonne in Paris. Dr. Mann also was the first woman ever to preach from the pulpit of the Harvard Divinity school at Cambridge.

Other Chicagoans will be motoring north to Highland Park tomorrow to drop in on Mr. and Mrs. Erastus Root Phelps, who will be at home informally, afternoon and evening, so their friends can welcome home Lieut. and Mrs. Grant Eugene Hill [Betty Phelps], who have just returned from three years in the Philippines, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Phelps [Wilma Ruoblock], who were married recently.

Gertrude Stein Lectures Tomorrow.

The more serious-minded will have a busy week-end, too, for there are several lectures scheduled. Tomorrow night at the Arts club, following a supper party for members only, Gertrude Stein will speak on "The History of English Literature as I See It."

Prof. Bernard Fay, who is a friend and translator of Gertrude Stein, will talk at 12 o'clock today in the library of the Alliance Française in the Fine Arts building on "The Literary Aspects of the Political Battle," after which he will meet about fifty alliance members at a luncheon for him at the Arts club. Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick will preside at the luncheon, of which Mrs. Moise Dreyfus, as chairman of the distinguished guest committee, is in charge.

There will be 650 in Cathedral hall of the University club tonight to dine and then to hear Dr. William Beebe lecture on "3,000 Fathoms Down," at the first ladies' night of the season.

Mrs. Francis Sheed, English writer and lecturer, will talk at 3 o'clock today to the Alumnæ of the Sacred Heart. Mrs. Sheed is a cousin of the duke of Norfolk and a niece of Lord Lyons, British ambassador in Paris.

Arthur Meeker, president, announces that any one who cast a covetous eye on the furnishings of the Century club, at A Century of Progress, will be able to bid on his favorite pieces between noon and 2 o'clock today at the Federal Storage storehouse, 871 North State street. The club's furnishings, with the exception of the dining room tables and chairs, and the china and glassware, have been carted there from the club to be sold today.

All-Illinois Art.

The ninth annual exhibition of the All-Illinois Society of Fine Arts will open at 12:30 o'clock today in the Stevens hotel. Mrs. Edwin N. Johnson is exhibit director.

Tunic Frock Holds Limelight

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

Isn't this a pretty tunic dress? It can be carried out in almost any pliable woolen weave, although the original was made of a silk crêpe, with a new weave with a surface just like wool. It is taking the place of thin wool crêpes. The draped scarf collar of this dress is flattering, and a smart detail is the slashed front hem of the tunic. It permits freedom of movement, too.

The pattern, No. 2560, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure.

Independence, Activity Fine Traits in Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A few days ago I found this in my mail:

"Dear Gladys Bevans: My baby of 16 months is beginning to be quite a problem. She's always been an active child, but now that we are in the country she is even more so. To illustrate I will tell you some of the things she is capable of doing:

"She can walk up and down the steps by holding on to the banister, climbs along the railing of the porch, goes up and slides down the sliding part, climbs chairs, benches, and so forth. What I'm worried about is, what will I do with her when I get home to my three room apartment?

"And here's another thing. She just doesn't want me to feed her. She makes a holy mess of herself trying to eat alone. She throws the spoon out of my hand or clamps her lips tight shut or turns her head away every time I try to give her a spoonful.

"She really is a good natured child. She seldom cries. She is also self-reliant. I really don't have to watch her constantly. Most of the time she plays nicely with the other children, or by herself, and one never hears her cry."

Here's a "problem as isn't a problem." My first thought on finishing this letter was, "What a perfect child!" There's no problem here at all.

How fine to have her so full of life and strong. Provide her with some of the playthings for active play indoors and out—and get her out to the nearby parks as much as possible.

As to eating—how splendidly independent. Let her have her meals alone if she's too "messy"—fix her up at a little low table with the right utensils and let her work her way to mastery of the eating craft. She's on the right road if ever a child was. Congratulate yourself on being a successful mother.

Both Mental and Bodily Relaxation Build for Charm

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Yesterday we were talking about relaxing, learning to relax, in the interest of greater charm of person.

It isn't only for the physical graces that relaxation practice is recommended, but for mental, as well. You must think without brain cells stiffened, tied up in knots, so that you may talk with fluid ease and charm. You must think with grace. And this last named is of vital importance to one who would make the most favorable impression. Think more evenly, more kindly, more patiently and, consequently, more gracefully in your relations with people.

You can cultivate the habit of relaxing completely, letting go completely, going limp all over. You can do this frequently during the day. In the midmorning, just before you eat, in midafternoon, again before you eat. Just slump every nerve and fiber in your being. It's a grand practice. Many of you wamen can find time to get behind a closed door for ten minutes a day and throw yourself down on bed or couch, close your eyes and lie there as limp and helpless as a rag doll. It's a marvelous treatment for "bad moods," and peeve, irritibility, blues, or just plain cussedness. Moods of the kind are quick and sure charm destroyers.

That tension, under which most of us suffer more or less, has to be fought. There's no better way to tackle it than this I have just mentioned. It will be easier to say the pleasant thing, to do the pleasant thing, to be the charming thing. You won't be around with a chip on your shoulder, ready for an argument, for a stinging word. That's not the picture of a charming person, anyway.

"Candies That Are Fun to Make," a booklet containing 28 candy recipes, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

Questions all over the desk today—oodles of 'em. So here come answers:

"Some folks were made ill by eating chicken at a church supper and a friend said that if cooked chicken were left to cool with the cover on in the vessel in which it was cooked it would cause illness. If the cover were removed the food would be safe. Is this true?"

Yes and no. It makes no difference, of course, whether the cooling happens in the dish in which it was cooked or in some other dish—in fact, the cooking dish would be more likely to be sterile and safe than another dish to which the food might be transferred. The cover is another matter. The more speedily perishable, cooked food, such as chicken, can be cooled the less chance there is for harmful bacteria which thrive in warmth to grow and taint the food. There's another angle to the matter, too. Both raw and cooked foods "breathe," that is, give off gases which when tightly held in against the food tend to cause spoilage. This is the reason that unless there is extreme drying in your refrigerator or a danger of odors and flavors or wandering bacteria dropping in it is actually safer to store food without covers than to cover them tightly.

In a recent story on the subject of exploded ideas concerning milk we mentioned and denied the old fable accepted by so many that milk is constipating. Today comes a letter from a disturbed reader assuring me that milk is constipating to most people. I'm afraid I can only repeat, my friend, that you'll have to look further than milk for the cause. Constipation is caused by lack of exercise and lack of bulk food or roughage, among other things. Milk, it is true, does not supply roughage and must be balanced by an adequate diet of other bulky and nutritious foods to give a well rounded diet. If you supply yourself with a sufficient daily quantity of bulky foods such as fruits, vegetables, and whole grains—and are certain also that numerous cups of water are included each day—milk (which itself contains 87 per cent water) may be drunk as freely as you desire without danger of constipation.

Something else spicy for your kitchen shelf! Are you quite satisfied with your pumpkin pies or are they one day flat and uninteresting, the next overly spiced with too much cinnamon or ginger? The answer comes in a new blended pumpkin pie spice just arrived on the market. We may substitute it for the spices in our usual recipe or make use of the pumpkin pie recipe on the can.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

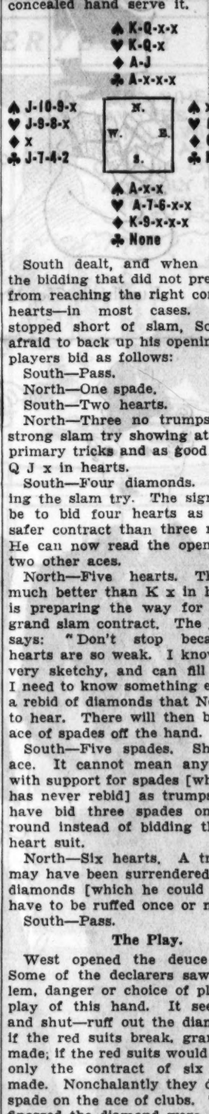
TODAY IS A HALF HOLIDAY—LET US HAVE SOME FUN WITH A HAND.

I have made you work pretty hard the last few days in following some of the more advanced and delicate points of the system. Today let us talk over the following hand. It is not a tricky or freak hand in any way; it came up in a recent duplicate game; several pairs got the best result. It is easy to bid, yet the bidding inferences are highly instructive. It was easy to play for those who are not reluctant to "make dummy the declarer"—namely, treat it as the dominant hand in the play and make the concealed hand serve it.



South dealt, and when he opened the bidding that did not prevent them from reaching the right contract—six hearts—in most cases. One pair stopped short of slam, South being afraid to back up his opening bid. Our players bid as follows:

South—Pass.
North—One spade.
South—Two hearts.
North—Three no trumps. A very strong slam try showing at least four primary tricks and as good as K x or Q J x in hearts.
South—Four diamonds. Encouraging the slam try. The sign-off would be to bid four hearts as seeking a safer contract than three no trumps. He can now read the opener for the two other aces.
North—Five hearts. This shows much better than K x in hearts, and is preparing the way for a possible grand slam contract. The jump raise says: "Don't stop because your hearts are so weak. I know they are very sketchy, and can fill them out. I need to know something else." It is a rebid of diamonds that North wants to hear. There will then be only the ace of spades off the hand.
South—Five spades. Showing the ace. It cannot mean anything else; with support for spades [which opener has never rebid] as trumps, he could have bid three spades on the first round instead of bidding the sketchy heart suit.
North—Six hearts. A trump trick may have been surrendered if South's diamonds [which he could not rebid] have to be ruffed once or more.
South—Pass.

The Play.

West opened the deuce of clubs. Some of the declarers saw the problem, danger or choice of plans in the play of this hand. It seemed open and shut—ruff out the diamonds, and if the red suits break, grand slam is made; if the red suits would not break, only the contract of six would be made. Nonchalantly they discarded a spade on the ace of clubs. Those that finessed the diamond were immediately set—East could count, and remembered the bidding. Those that played out two high diamonds were trumped on the second play by West, and now found themselves without sufficient entries to ruff all North's clubs. They could only discard one of their two losing diamonds, and so could not ruff them both without giving West another trump trick. A sweet hand destroyed by thoughtless play on the first trick.

How the Wise Ones Played the Hand.

Those who have learned to be prepared for the worst realize that in view of the club void there might well be an uneven distribution of the red suits. They played the exposed North hand as the master hand, realizing that South's small trumps could best be utilized to trump off North's losers. This would not interfere with making seven odd if after all the red suits were split, hearts 3-2 and diamonds no worse than 2-4. For this line of play North needs every re-entry possible. Therefore, on the club ace they discarded a diamond, a club is ruffed, a small spade to the king, another club ruff; another small spade to the queen, a ruff of the last club. Now South lays down the ace of trumps, having only one more black card to ruff. East plays the ten and declarer now assumes that [1 West's lead was regular, from four clubs in a 4-4-4-1 hand, and [2] East's ten is his only trump. He therefore, lays down the ace of spades, gets in dummy with the ace of diamonds, ruffs the last spade and concedes the second round of diamonds to one of West's trumps. The safe play was the right one—"making dummy the declarer" is my term for campaigns conducted on these lines.

Good Morning!

"Into each life some rain must fall; Some days must be dark and dreary" . . .

The rain, the darkness and the dreariness that made deponent sing the blues yesterday [no, I don't sing] were Wheeler and Woolsey. They are worse than usual in "Kentucky Kernels"—a silly ass opus which takes them down south and makes them participants in a feud between the Wakefields and the Milfords.

BUT—

"Every cloud has a silver lining" . . .

"Kentucky Kernels" has wee "Spanky" McFarland, being his own, adorable baby self and singing "One More Kiss" ["kith"] in the little voice with a lisp that makes you want to eat him. It has Noah Beery intoning the same song in deep, papa bear fashion that doesn't make you want to eat HIM, but inspires chuckles.

It has a dark boy, called "Sleep 'n' Eat," who's enough like Stepin Fetchit to BE Stepin Fetchit. It has a fairly amusing wholesale knock 'em down and shoot 'em up finale with a cross country race à la Mack Sennett.

And so—

It might have been worse.

Display Work of Szukalski Pupils in City

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Stanislaw Szukalski has a dynamic personality. He has an arrogant genius and magnificent ability. He is a sculptor; he is also draftsman, architect, designer, what you will—nearly every branch of art has become a facile tool in his hands.

A number of years ago he was a figure among the younger set in Chicago and married Helen Walker, the daughter of Dr. Samuel J. Walker. Recently a divorce was obtained by Mrs. Szukalski, and Stanislaw Szukalski, engaged in Hollywood upon movie affairs for some time, married again.

This personal history comes up in connection with an exhibit in the Robert Breckenridge galleries of drawings by pupils of Szukalski. The pupils are students in the school in Poland which the sculptor instigated and personally directed for some years. The group call themselves in romantic fashion Szczep Rogate Serce—Tribe of the Horned Heart.

During the last three years these young men have been exhibiting in the leading cities of Poland with marked success, and now they are trying out audiences on this side of the Atlantic. The basis of their instruction is that of individual creativeness; each must express the dictates of his own heart.

The result is rather interesting, for there is not as much difference between the individual drawings as one might suppose. All the artists are imbued with the sculptural sense; their drawing is massive. This obviously derives straight from Szukalski.

The drawings are well done. Some of them are weird in subject, some of them commonplace. Now and again there is a touch of beauty or grandeur, almost invariably there is a classical definiteness of line.

This is not slipshod work; it is conscientious and skillful. It is alien to our civilization and to our immediate surroundings, but as a picture of Polish aspirations and conditions it is of interest. If the young artists of Poland are in tune with this group, their art will be of solid value in this generation.

Many Patches, Delicate Colors Distinguish Quilt

BY NANCY CABOT.

Quilters interested in piecing a block of many patches would do well to consider this attractive "Pickle Dish." It is an unusually lovely block and not difficult to make. The colors combined to create added beauty are rose, yellow, two shades of blue, soft mauve, and white. The history of the block is rather amusing. The idea for the block was first conceived at a church social 65 years ago in a small Ohio town. One of the women present, a trifle more expert with a needle than her friends, so admired an imported, English china relish dish that she immediately announced her intention to copy it in materials.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

'Singing Steel' Is Folklore of Negro Toilers

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

A program of entertainment based on the folk songs and customs of the Negro of the deep south, bearing the title of "Singing Steel," was given in the Chicago Woman's Club theater last night under the direction of Zora Neale Hurston. She is a folk-lorist and anthropologist who has specialized in the Afro-American field, and this stage arrangement of songs and dances represents intensive research and a contribution to scholarship. Incidentally, although performed by amateurs, it contains a certain amount of theatrical amusement.

The songs themselves, unknown outside of the labor camps and humble Negro settlements of the south, and therefore untainted by Tin Pan Alley influences, are railroad workers' chants, domestic singing games, dance floor jigs, gambling conjurations, and, of course, "spirituals." The program also contains a one-act play called "The Fiery Chariot," written by Miss Hurston, which has decided racial humor.

Andrew Dobson is the leading player of a large company, in which the author also participates. The performance will be repeated this afternoon and evening.

The stage entertainments in the leading downtown cinema houses flared up yesterday into an outburst of star comedians. Joe Penner, whose vein of half-witted juvenile nonsense is having an enormous vogue on radio programs, appears at the Chicago theater. Ole Olson and Chic Johnson of the easily remembered "Take a Chance" frolic during the summer of 1933, have brought a new revue into the Oriental theater.

Eugenie Leontovich will return to the Chicago stage next Monday night as the star of "Romance," the drama by Edward Sheldon, in which Doris Keane became famous. This production will be staged at the Blackstone theater under the auspices of Playgoers, Inc., a new firm of Chicago impresarios.

Not all of them but a very special few we have are made on the order of the wrap-around coat that the polo-playing gentry of England took to the early part of the year. It takes more material and some careful tailoring for this type of robe, but it's worth the trouble. For good lazy lounging, they're hard to beat—shawl collar, three pockets, hand-knotted fringed sash that, incidentally, stays put by a simple but ingenious arrangement at the belt loop. Navy and royal blues, maroon, tan, and brown.

a new English custom

This new English custom last brogue that we had made over here is of an imported Scotch grain leather. For a town shoe that has, at this time of year, both foul and fair weather to look forward to, this new last and brawny leather are ideally fitted. The flexible waterproofed soles and the hand-worked leather uppers take care of the "breaking in" so you won't have that to put up with.

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

Illinois and Chicago, whose gridiron rivalry dates back to the founding of the Midway university in 1892, will meet at Stagg field this afternoon before an anticipated crowd of 30,000 in the 39th contest between their football representatives.

Records of the past show victories even at 17 each, three ties, and one game disputed. Since the Zuppke coaching régime, beginning in 1913, however, the margin is widely with the Illini, 13 victories, 4 defeats, and 2 ties, balancing statistically former Maroon supremacy.

Not of the sentimental past, however, will today's crowd, about evenly divided in sympathy between Maroons and Illini because of undergraduate attendance from Champaign-Urbana and a large Illinois local alumni, be thinking or basing its friendly wagers. It will be whether Jack Beynon, Les Lindberg, and their teammates will mount their flying trapeze and from its gyrations confuse Jay Berwanger, Capt. Ell Patterson, and their associates; whether Berwanger, one of the greatest backs in the country, will break loose or pass for touchdowns and Maroon victory.

Weight Edge for Maroons.

Those names of large type carry the attack, the open attack so interesting to spectators. Yet the issue in reality will be decided by the less publicized linemen, whose charging and blocking, seldom receiving individual mention, make possible first page mention for the ball carrier. In this respect both elevens are about equal so far as may be judged in advance. The Maroons have a slight weight advantage; the Illini are more highly proved against opponents.

Before Illinois' mishap at Madison, the Illini were top heavy choices. Now Maroon adherents have visions of victory. They argue that Illinois, a light eleven battling on its nerve to maintain its tie with Minnesota and Purdue for the Big Ten title, finally cracked physically under its burden, that reaction from that Badger defeat may be an adverse factor. That is reckoning, perhaps, without the spirit which earned the nickname Fighting Illini.

Berwanger Ready to Go.

Chicago took a severe buffeting against Ohio State and Minnesota. Yet Berwanger was saved from the Buckeyes, played only part time against the Gophers. Perhaps Illinois was his objective. At any rate, the Chicago ace again is said to be in good physical condition.

Comparative scores add little to the problem which has dopesters and rival partisans guessing. Illinois handed Ohio State its only defeat, 14 to 13, gaining an early lead the Buckeyes could not overcome. The Buckeyes administered a decisive and conclusive licking to the Maroons, 33 to 0. On the other hand, Illinois beat Michigan only 7 to 6, although the Illini perhaps were a touchdown better than the score indicated, while Chicago downed the hapless Wolverines, 27 to 0. Those were the only two joint opponents. Illinois has won 3, lost 1, conference games. Chicago has 2 victories, 3 defeats.

So by comparative scores, apparent strength, and traditional rivalry, the issue this afternoon is up to the spirit, aggressiveness of these opposing elevens with breaks and generalship likely to determine the result.

Open Game Likely.

Hoping for favorable weather, Maroon athletic officials added 1,700 temporary seats to increase capacity to 33,000. Reserved seats at the end are still available. Spectators under fair skies may expect a great open game exhibition between pupils of two coaches of the open tactics school, Bob Zuppke, present veteran of Big Ten coaches, and Clark Shaughnessy, serving his second season at the Midway.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Kingfish Levinsky, great man of Chicago's Ghetto, still was clinging to the ledge of fistic fame after he had fought ten furious rounds with Art Lasky of Minneapolis in the Chicago Stadium last night.

The verdict at the end of a struggle that had 13,872 customers running a high fever was to the effect that the Kingfish and his Jewish rival had run a dead heat. The official decision was a draw.

Judge Ed Klein's score card read 51 to 49 in favor of Levinsky. Referee Davie Miller's record was 51 to 49 for Lasky. F. L. Jackson, the other judge, gave 50 points to Levinsky and 50 points to Lasky.

Levinsky Followers Hoot.

A dead heat sure enough as far as the officials were concerned and that's just about the way everybody in the crowd sized it up except those loyal Levinsky backers from Maxwell street. They hooted and howled at the verdict, for they thought the Kingfish had won every round.

But he didn't and from the way the Kingfish slowed up in the tenth round he appeared to be rather lucky to get a draw, for Lasky carried the fight to the Kingfish almost from the beginning to the end.

Lasky scored in every round with a powerful right to the ribs and also rolled up many points with a vicious left hook which now and then landed on Levinsky's head and chin, but most of the time peppered into the Kingfish's body. Lasky had centered his attack on Levinsky's midsection at the start and kept whaling away in that direction for the duration of the scrap.

Kingfish Lands Punches.

That was about the extent of the damage done by either of the heavy punchers. There wasn't a scar or a bruise anywhere about the Kingfish's head or body when it ended. Still he was a tired fish merchant. During the eighth and the ninth rounds he had motioned Lasky to "come on in and fight." But he appeared to be very happy that it was all over when the final gong sounded.

Receipts are $30,570.

The 13,872 spectators paid $30,570.75 to see the show, the first conducted under a new Chicago Stadium régime which is headed by James Norris, who came into prominence as a heavy trader on the Board of Trade. Norris and his two lieutenants, Nate Lewis and James Mullins, matchmakers, demonstrated great showmanship in their initial effort.

Maxie Baer, world's champion, was there to smile and wave out at the crowd while he served as chief second to his brother, Buddy Baer, who appeared in what was scheduled to be a four round preliminary match.

After Max had patted him on the back and had whispered into his ear it took the gigantic kid brother—he weighs 240 pounds—only 25 seconds to blast the frightened looking Frank Ketter of Chicago into slumberland.

Kingfish Is Wary.

The Kingfish, usually a fast beginner, was a bit cautious when he faced Lasky. The real fireworks didn't start until the fourth round. As the session opened the Kingfish landed a terrific right to Lasky's body while they were in a clinch. Then Lasky launched a vicious assault at the Kingfish's stomach which the King halted with a hard right uppercut to Lasky's chin. Lasky started back pedaling and Levinsky waved at him to come on and fight. Lasky did it and they were slugging at the bell with Lasky appearing to hold a slight edge in the exciting session.

The seventh, eighth and ninth rounds found the Kingfish at his best. He went through the ninth as though he might finish Lasky at any instant.

Lasky Comes Back.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 23.—"Eighty to nothing."

So help me, this is the score that the advance guard of Minnesota's thousands predicted this afternoon for the annual fight tomorrow at Camp Randall gridiron between Minnesota's undefeated eleven and Wisconsin's Badgers.

Now, any bunch of football fans which arrives 24 hours in advance of the game probably is not rational. But even discounting the effect that seven Minnesota victories may have had, the fact remains that 80 points represent something like 11 or 12 touchdowns.

When this forecast reached the ears of Dr. Clarence W. Spears, astute coach of the Badgers, he replied emphatically and quite seriously, although we did think there was a twinkle in his eyes:

"Wisconsin expects every man to do his duty. There'll be no giving up of the ship and Minnesota can have 80 points only over our dead bodies."

May Need Boats for Game.

The good doctor's reference to ship was taken to mean that such may be needed to negotiate Camp Randall if another sizeable rainstorm strikes. Four inches of water have been measured by the government this week.

In retaliation for this Minnesota slur on the Wisconsin eleven, several Badger alumni today concocted this story for the edification of the visitors: Spears has refused to drain Camp Randall. In fact, he has hired a crew of 20 men who tonight will flood the gridiron in lieu of another rainstorm. The grass always has been quite long, at least several conference coaches have reported this as a fact in other years and the late Knute Rockne once remarked facetiously that he lost a half back in the weeks along the goal line. The combination of winter hay and mud constitutes Wisconsin's allies in its fight to stop Pug Lund and Stanislaus Kostka.

Oldest Big 10 Rivalry.

From such material are wars started. However, this particular war, the oldest Big Ten football rivalry, had its inception long before Lund and Kostka were born. But tomorrow Minnesota wants a smashing victory to offset last year's skimpy 6 to 3 triumph and a smashing victory to compare with the triumphs over Iowa, Michigan, Chicago, and Indiana, games in which the Gophers have scored no fewer than 30 points.

The same Minnesotans who were predicting 80 points apologized for the low scores in other Big Ten games. They pointed out that Coach Bernie Bierman, a graduate of Minnesota, had only loving thoughts for Coach Ossie Solem of Iowa and Coach Clark Shaughnessy of Chicago, who likewise were graduated from Minnesota. Hence, Brother Bierman ordered the boys to stop at 48 to 12 against Iowa, and let Brother Shaughnessy off with a mere 35 to 7 trimming.

Michigan was beaten only 35 to 0 and the score could have been 70 to 0 had the Gophers forward passed in the first half. Indiana was whipped 30 to 0 because the Gophers had a sour Saturday.

Frank McCormick, director of athletics at Minnesota, who arrived this morning, said he wished this game was over. McCormick didn't seem worried, but maybe after all Minnesota won't win, 80 to 0.

CADETS FAVORED, BUT WHAT OF IT? THEY PLAY IRISH

80,000, Record Crowd, Can't Forget Last Year.

New York, Nov. 23.—Notre Dame's steadily improving football team, which has acquired its experience under a constant barrage of heavy fire, meets an Army eleven tomorrow that has bowled over seven of its eight opponents without working up a sweat.

Eighty thousand will be banked around the Yankee stadium gridiron to watch the 21st meeting of football's oldest intersectional rivals. Two-thirds of them, probably more, will be Notre Dame sympathizers. The game was a sellout 48 hours ago and business managers of the two schools estimated 20,000 additional tickets could have been disposed of had there been room to accommodate the purchasers.

Attendance and receipts are expected to set a record for the 1934 season. The cheapest seat in the stadium is $4.40. Box seats sell for $6.60.

Army Is Favorite.

Army is regarded by Broadway sharps as a slight favorite. Army has rested for two weeks. Coach Gar Davidson did not use his regulars last Saturday when his reserves were rolling up a point a minute over Citadel. Notre Dame, it is argued, must be somewhat frayed and worn from the strain of a terrific schedule.

Up at Briar Cliff lodge in the Westchester hills, where the Cadets are encamped today, there was no evidence of a superiority complex, however.

The Notre Dame squad arrived at Harmon this morning at 7 o'clock. It was taken in buses to Katonah where the players attended mass and had breakfast. Later they moved to the Westchester-Biltmore Country club at Rye, which has been Notre Dame's stopping place for ten years. They went through a final workout on the polo field this afternoon.

Cadet Corps Makes Trip.

The team will remain at Rye until time to leave for Yankee stadium tomorrow. After the game the players will have their first free evening of the season. Most of them will accept an invitation to see Broadway's current musical hit, "Life Begins at 8:40."

The entire West Point corps will leave for New York City tomorrow morning on two special trains. The trip will be made by way of Weehawken. Buses will transport the Cadets from the West Forty-second street ferry to the Bronx.

Army will start the same lineup that faced Illinois, except at center where Vincent has given way to Clifford. Notre Dame will present the battle front that opposed Northwestern last Saturday.

Notre Dame Seasoned.

A visit to the training camps of tomorrow's rivals today revealed a tenesness in the Army's quarters that was lacking in Notre Dame's. West Point believes it has a good team. But it seldom or never has a weak one, yet only five times in 21 years has it been able to whip Notre Dame.

While Army always is its objective game, Notre Dame can't by the nature of its schedule point for this encounter as easily as West Point. That may explain the greater calm in its last minute preparations today. Notre Dame has been playing one tough team after another while Army has had only three opponents that deserved to be on the same field with it—Harvard, Yale, and Illinois.

HERE'S ONE PUNCH LEVINSKY DIDN'T MISS

Michigan Seeks First Big Ten Victory Today Against N. U.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 23.—Those proud braggarts, the Northwestern Wildcats, who the schedule makers of the Western conference have decreed must engage in a football game with Michigan here tomorrow afternoon, today hauled off with the most unkindest cut of all, the one necessary to make the unhappy Wolverines' misery complete. This social cruelty took the form of a snub, a plain out and out snub.

The poor Wolverines underwent this ritzing early this afternoon, at which time it is an old custom for the visiting troupe to come over to Michigan's yard and run around same for the benefit of the native press, if nobody else. Seldom is this opportunity to scamper over the morrow's battleground refused.

So it was that the field and adjoining dressing chambers were readied in preparation for the guests from Northwestern.

Gives Curt Reply.

When the Wildcats failed to appear a phone call was put in to the Northwestern headquarters at the Dearborn inn at Detroit. A Wildcat spokesman, in tones dripping with ice, ventured the following information:

"Coming over to Ann Arbor to practice? Certainly not. We just got through with a swell workout in the back yard of the inn. You have a lot of crust to be asking us to waste our time at Ann Arbor. Say, we licked Wisconsin by a whole touchdown, and you couldn't even come close, not by ten points. You say you won a ball game? Georgia Tech? Never heard of them. Must be an academy team. No, we are not coming over today. You'll see us soon enough tomorrow afternoon, and plenty of us. And don't be bothering us any more today. So long."

A Bad Season.

The high hatter thereupon hung up and the crestfallen Wolverines went about their final workout for their final game of what is probably the worst season in Michigan history. In the space of a twelvemonth they have tumbled from the zenith of western football to its very nadir. Certainly no other Wolverine team, unless it be that of 1919, which lost four conference games while winning one, has ever approached the finish of a season with such a sorry record.

Beaten by Chicago, Illinois, Wisconsin, and Ohio State, Michigan has proved this year that it can take it, and loyal alumni and students have done likewise. There is a general attitude of resignation among these, the chief stoic being Coach Harry Kippe, himself a hero of Michigan's fat years.

Kipke Makes No Forecast.

Today Kipke would venture not even a timid guess as to tomorrow's outcome, contenting himself with rounding up the best team he could put on the field against the ferocious Wildcats. There will be no startling changes in the Wolverine lineup, although George Bolas, a Chicago boy, may start at quarter in place of Ferris Jennings, and John Viergever, whose back was injured in the Ohio State game, may be available for his place at left guard.

Michigan expects to look at a Northwestern team which will be at well nigh full strength. The back field will consist of Steve Toth, the Wildcats' kicking prodigy; Bob Swisher, Wally Cruice, and Hugh Duvall.

OWNERS DECIDE HELLER MUST GO BACK TO PIRATES

New York, Nov. 23.—[Special.]—Club owners of the National Professional Football league in a telegraphic vote today decided that the New York Giants must return Warren Heller to the Pittsburgh Pirates. The action overruled President Joe Carr, who last Wednesday ordered the former University of Pittsburgh half back to remain with the Giants.

The Giants obtained Heller to replace Harry Newman, who was injured in the game against the Chicago Bears last Sunday. George Marshall, owner of the Boston club, which meets the Giants Sunday, protested for obtaining the player so late in the season. Newman's place in the Giants' back field will be taken by Ed Danowski, former Fordham quarter back.

New York, Nov. 23.—[Special.]—The dates and sites of the 1935 United States amateur and open golf championship tournaments were announced today by the United States Golf association. The open will be played over the Oakmont course in Pittsburgh June 6, 7,, and 8, and the amateur meet will be held at the Cleveland Country club the week starting Sept. 9.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 23.—[Special.]—Purdue's chance to share in the Big Ten football title will be at stake here tomorrow afternoon when the Boilermakers tackle a rejuvenated Indiana eleven, whose backers are hoping for a duplication 7 to 6 upset in the 1930. A near sellout crowd of approximately 20,000 is expected.

Indiana, away to a slow start, came to life last Saturday when it defeated Maryland, 17 to 14, and is counting on shackling Purdue's touchdown twins, Duane Purvis and Jim Carter, who will be playing the final game of their collegiate career. Other senior regulars on Purdue's squad who will make their final appearance against Indiana include Capt. Carl Heldt, tackle, and Frank Haas, end.

Purdue Expects Trouble.

Purdue has no false notions regarding the strength of Indiana. It has learned that past performance means nothing when the two rivals clash in any sport. Memories of the 7 to 6 upset handed out by Indiana here in 1930 have been all too vivid to allow even an iota of overconfidence to creep into the Old Gold and Black camp.

With his squad leg weary after plodding up and down a slippery practice field for four straight days, Coach Noble Kizer gave his Boilermakers a rest today and escorted them to the quiet of the Lafayette Country club to escape the pre-game din.

"If we're not ready now, we never will be," said Kizer, "and we need the rest more than anything else."

Indiana Arrives Today.

Kizer indicated he would stand pat on the lineup that has carried Purdue to five successive victories and co-leadership in the Big Ten race, with Purvis and Carter as the mainstays of a running attack that has been averaging 4.58 yards per play all season.

HOOSIERS ALL SICK.

Suffering from a bad cold and badly in need of rest, McMillin directed secret practice in the stadium, priming the team for a last desperate attempt to win one Big Ten game this season.

Bob Keck has a leg injury, but will make the trip and may play half back. Indiana needs him almost as badly as it needs Wendel Walker, No. 1 quarter back and passer, who will see but little action because of an injured shoulder. Two other mainstays, Stevenson and Antonini, are handicaped by injuries.

SHUTE, DIEGEL REACH FINAL IN MELBOURNE GOLF

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 23.—Densmore Shute and Leo Diegel, two golf professionals of Philadelphia, Pa., today advanced to the final round of the annual Centenary professional golf tournament.

Diegel had little difficulty in triumphing over the hitch-hiking caddy, Joe Ezar, Waco, Tex., who played with clubs borrowed from a newspaper reporter. The score was 6 and 5. Shute, who won the British open championship last year, won on the 36th hole from Craig Wood, 1 up.

BROUILLARD AND DUBLINSKY WIN 10 ROUND BOUTS

New York, Nov. 23.—[Special.]—Lou Brouillard's aggressiveness and ability to take a punch enabled him to gain the decision over Al Gainer, light heavyweight from New Haven, in a ten round bout at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Harry Dublinsky, Chicago lightweight, whipped Tony Falco, Philadelphia, in then rounds, Referee Mcpartland giving him the decision after the judges disagreed. Falco held constantly as Dublinsky forced the battle. Dublinsky weighed 141; Falco 143.

PLAN TITLE BOUT FOR BAER HERE NEXT SUMMER

Max May Meet Lasky, Levinsky or Hamas.

Prospects of a world heavyweight championship fight in Chicago next summer were brighter yesterday than at any time since plans for the Gene Tunney-Jack Dempsey encounter at Soldiers' field in 1927 first were discussed.

Max Baer, Oakland, Cal., will be the defending champion, and King Levinsky, Art Lasky, or Steve Hamas will be the challenger if plans outlined by Matchmakers James C. Mullen and Nate Lewis materialize.

Baer is the closest counterpart to Dempsey since the latter hung up his gloves. The current champion has that thing called color, which helped Dempsey in his fights as titleholder, and as challenger later wrote into the record books the only million dollar gate ever recorded.

1. Manager Ancil Hoffman, shortly after his arrival yesterday with the champion, intimated he had broken with Madison Square Garden, which claims an option on Baer's services for his next title defense. Attorney General John J. Bennett Jr., New York, has informed that state athletic commission the garden's option is invalid and Baer is a free agent. The manager said the champion will battle for the promoter able to offer the most attractive purse. Soldiers' field is the tentative site and Jack Dempsey, James C. Mullen, and Nate Lewis are prospective promoters.

2. Steve Hamas, conqueror of Max Schmeling, who was awarded a decision over Lasky in September, was given until Nov. 1 by the garden to reconsider his refusal to oppose Art in a return contest or forfeit a championship chance. The ultimatum has been ignored by Charley Harvey, manager of Hamas, and Nate Lewis is confident of interesting Harvey into accepting a conflict with Levinsky or Lasky on Dec. 28, the winner to meet Baer.

Are Willing to Box Here.

3. Both Lasky and Levinsky have expressed their willingness to box Baer in Chicago in preference to New York. The fact that Hamas also refuses to string along with the Garden makes his next appearance a certainty to be here.

4. The Lewis-Mullen-Dempsey combine will be backed sufficiently. At least James Norris Sr., millionaire grain broker, has told friends he is willing to serve as financial backer for major Chicago contests.

Hoffman's and Baer's animosity toward the Garden got under way immediately after Max dethroned Primo Carnera by a knockout in the eleventh round of the scheduled fifteen round bout at New York last June. It was found that score cards of the two judges and referee had Carnera ahead on points. Another item which irked Baer and Manager Ancil was the Garden's failure to answer a request filed Oct. 1 for information on the progress being made in negotiations for a suitable opponent to clash with Max in June.

Doctors Examine Baer.

Drs. John Mohardt and N. F. McGuire, both of Chicago, yesterday afternoon were called to treat Baer's left forearm, which became infected recently during a stay in Mexico City. Dr. Mohardt said the injury would heal within a few days.

Baer's schedule calls for exhibition tours throughout the central states, during which this city will be used as his base of operations until January, when he will go to Hollywood, Cal., and start work on his second movie. After three weeks he will begin preliminary training by roughing it in the woods and mountains for about a month. He then expects to leave for the scene of the impending championship match.

Columbus, O., Nov. 23.—[Special.]—Ohio State and Iowa will battle here tomorrow in the season's finale, with the Buckeyes listed for the sixth straight time this year as favorites to win. Despite the fact that the game may develop into one of the outstanding attractions of the season, only about 25,000 are expected to attend. Fair and cool weather is predicted.

The comparative lack of interest in the game is due to Iowa's rather ordinary record after defeating Northwestern, 20 to 7, in their opening conference game.

Simmons Won't Start.

Injuries have had much to do with Iowa's misfortunes, having caused constant lineup shifts. Since the Purdue game the team has had two weeks to prepare for Ohio and again is in good condition. Iowa has two of the best ball carriers in the conference in Dick Crayne, full back, and Oze Simmons, colored half back. The Hawks also boast a dangerous passing attack. Simmons will not start tomorrow, but will play most of the game at right half, according to Coach Ossie Solem.

The Buckeyes still retain a slim hope of winning the Big Ten title. Should Purdue lose to Indiana and Minnesota fall before Wisconsin, Ohio State could win on a percentage basis if they whip Iowa.

Ohio State will go into the game with an edge in experience and man power. Coach Francis Schmidt, who expects the Hawks to develop into the toughest foe his team has met since Colgate, probably will use the back field combination of Fisch, Heekin, Boucher, and Wetzel.

In the line, the only change will find Trevor Rees back at left end in place of Sam Busich. Ohio will outweigh Iowa nearly 17 pounds per man, but this may be offset by Iowa's height, every man in the line standing better than 6 feet. Iowa's probable starting lineup, given out by Solem on the team's arrival here today, includes eight sophomores.

The game will mark the final contest for nine Buckeyes who took the traditional senior tackle at the conclusion of the last practice tonight. They are Capt. Regis Monahan and George Neal, guards; Jack Smith, Buzz Wetzel, John McAfee, and Davey Jones, backs; Lud Yards and Jim Scott, tackles; and Bud Cox, end.

'CAR WATCHERS' GO TO JAIL TO WORK OUT FINES

Two self-styled car watchers were sentenced to the House of Correction by Municipal Judge Erwin J. Hasten of the Des Plaines street court yesterday in lieu of fines of $1 plus $1 costs. They were charged with disorderly conduct.

Two other "parking assistants" were discharged on similar charges before Judge Lambert K. Hayes of the Boys' court with a warning that they must stop molesting motorists.

The four were arrested on Saturday night as the police attempted to clean the neighborhood of the Chicago Stadium of men and boys soliciting tips from intimidated motorists parking their automobiles in the streets to see the bicycle races.

The pair who were found guilty and sentenced to Bridewell to serve out their fines gave their names as Emil Olson, 52 years old, 26 South Wood street, and Clarence Newman, 22 years old, 1952 West Congress street. The pair discharged in the Boys' court gave their names as James Santo, 20 years old, 2009 West Van Burean street, and William O'Gara, 18 years old, 159 South Francisco avenue.

Wrestler Suffers Paralysis After Fall from Ring

Sweepstakes Ticket Buyer Dies in Accident

New York, Nov. 23.—[Special.]—Friends here learned by cable today that Spencer Freeman, the young Englishman who was in this country recently to buy Irish sweepstakes tickets, had been killed in an automobile accident in England.

Freeman was 24 years old and while acting as agent here he used his father's name, Sidney Freeman, who is with the firm of Duggie's, otherwise Donald Stuart, Ltd., London betting commissioners.

A few days before the running of the Cambridgeshire handicap young Freeman established offices in his suite at the Ritz-Carlton hotel and began buying up sweepstake tickets, paying prices instructed by his office. He was all business when it came to buying tickets, but wasn't interested in horses or the outcome of the race. And buy tickets he did, $300,000 worth before the race was run. The job finished, he sailed back for England on the Majestic.

Cubs and Sox Bosses Start Home Pleased

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 23.—Officials of the Chicago Cubs and White Sox took off for home tonight, feeling they had done right well at the flesh mart conducted in connection with the minor league baseball convention here.

The Cubs representatives came here four days ago holding deeds to Guy Bush, Babe Herman, Jim Weaver, Bud Tinning, and Dick Ward. They return to Chicago possessed of two classy starting pitchers, Lefty Larry French and Tex Carleton, and one of baseball's best known players, Third Baseman Freddy Lindstrom.

Braves Are Unreasonable.

Manager Charley Grimm of the Cubs had expected to land Pitcher Fred Frankhouse of the Braves. But the Braves' perspective in dealing with the Cubs was knocked cockeyed in the Rogers Hornsby and Lester Bell deals in the golden era, and they were not inclined to be reasonable.

Manager Grimm and the vast Cub retinue of officials plan to attend the major league meetings in New York Dec. 11, 12, and 13, where it is possible severel more swaps will be effected.

While here Manager Grimm took time out from his several successful maneuvers to attempt to unload First Baseman Don Hurst, but he failed to find a minor league team that craved the young man's services. In discussing Hurst it was brought out that there is some possibility of Jim Bottomley coming to the Cubs, providing the Cardinals transfer John Mize from Rochester, one of the Card farms, to the Cincinnati Reds.

Sox Are Satisfied.

The satisfaction of the Sox was based on the fact that they had purchased Vernon Washington, slugging outfielder of Indianapolis, whom they have been trying to get for three years. They also placed three players, Catcher Eddie Madjeski, Pitcher Harry Kinzy, and Pitcher Hugo Klaerner, with the Dallas club, and Catcher Johnny Pasek with the St. Paul team.

The Sox are still trying to obtain Catcher Luke Sewell from the Washington Senators and may announce the acquisition within the next ten days.

70,000 TO WATCH CALIFORNIA PLAY STANFORD TODAY

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 23.—(AP)—Stanford and California, football rivals since 1892, meet at Berkely tomorrow in a contest expected to give undefeated Stanford at least a tie for the coast conference championship and the bid to represent the west in the Pasadena Rose Bowl game, New Year's day.

The game will bring out a crowd of between 70,000 and 75,000, despite the fact Stanford is the west's only unbeaten major team and California's season has been one of defeat and disappointment.

Victory for Stanford will assure it a second trip in two years to the Rose Bowl but there is a possibility it may have to share the conference title with Washington State college.

At Seattle tomorrow, Washington State, with an unblemished conference record but twice loser on the outside, faces its keenest northern rival, Washington. The outcome is considered a tossup.

Washington State and Washington will decide the supremacy of the northwest and Oregon State meets the University of California at Los Angeles in a contest that winds up the conference season for the two. The four times defeated Beavers are expected to suffer another loss and finish the year at the bottom of the conference.

BOO BOO HOFF TOLD TO GET OUT OF LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 23.—(AP)—Max [Boo Boo] Hoff, Philadelphia fight manager, was warned today by Buron Fitts, district attorney, to leave town.

When informed that he was listed by the Los Angeles police as an undesirable, Hoff said he would leave within two weeks. He must remain here at least until next Friday for a boxing show.

While Hoff has been here with his boxing stable for almost a month, the police were not officially apprised of the fact until reports came from Philadelphia Tuesday stating that Hoff, named by a grand jury in 1928 as being the ruler of the underworld there, had fled from the city on fear of being kidnaped. Hoff, although indicted, was not convicted.

Stanford, California Clubs to Hear Game at Stevens

Chicago alumni of Stanford and California will gather in the west ballroom of the Stevens hotel today to hear a radio broadcast of the football game between the two universities, which will be played at Berkeley. The play by play description by direct wire will begin at 4:15 p. m. Following the game, there will be an alumni dinner at the hotel.

Talking It Over

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Eastern football critics rate Bob Stillman of the Army the best guard 1934 football has produced. . . . West Point folks tell you he is as good as Summerfelt. . . . Five members of the squad the Army will send against Notre Dame sing in the choir. . . . Jack Buckler and Joe Stancook, the Cadets' forward passing combination, are pistol experts. . . . The possibility of a clash between Henry Wadsworth Longfellow of Northwestern and William Shakespeare of Notre Dame last Saturday was widely publicized, but nobody knew that a fellow named Poe designed the cover for the program. . . . Yale and Harvard, who hold their annual battle at New Haven tomorrow, have played seven games each. . . . Yale has made 54 first downs and Harvard 52. . . . In net yardage Yale has gained 840 yards to 838 for Harvard. . . .

Knox College has won another gridiron distinction this fall. . . . It has not been considered for the Rose bowl. . . . The Dartmouth squad is spending tonight in New York. . . . Elmer Layden never has lost a game to the Army. . . . When he was a sophomore the Cadets held Notre Dame to a scoreless tie in the last game played at West Point. . . . Notre Dame won when the four Horsemen were juniors and seniors. . . . Marquette medical students are not permitted to participate in intercollegiate athletics. . . . Bob Swisher, Northwestern's leading half back, is the son of the Rev. Milton S. Swisher, Methodist minister of Peoria. . . .

Viktor Barna of Hungary, world's table tennis champion for the last three years, takes five minutes to select a ball at the start of a match. . . . Max Baer and his manager, Ancil Hoffman, were paid $5,000 and traveling expenses to participate in the opening of Jim Crofton's night club in Mexico City. . . . Baer also served as referee of a boxing match. . . . Harold Lloyd is a handball enthusiast. . . . The Pacific coast championships recently were held on his private courts in Beverly Hills. . . . The right name of Buddy Baer is Joseph Henry . . .

Joey Burman, who fought as a bantamweight twelve years ago, now weighs 158 pounds. . . . Art Lasky and King Levinsky were paid 25 per cent of the net receipts for their bout at Chicago Stadium. . . . Michigan's only victory of the season, the 9 to 2 verdict over Georgia Tech, not only is the one black mark in the ledger, but also keeps intact the Wolverines' record of having lost no intersectional games since 1926. . . . The Cincinnati Reds lost $229,161 last season. . . . George Burns, former Detroit, Philadelphia, and Cleveland player has applied for a job as umpire in the Coast league. . . . Jim Kelley of Sioux City, Ia., who won a tackle job on the Iowa eleven this fall, is a nephew of Bert McGrane, Des Moines sports writer. . . . Pug Lund, Minnesota captain, never eats ice cream, which accounts for the struggles among other players to get a place near him in the dining car. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today.—Knute Rockne, speaking before the City club of Chicago, said that brains win football games. . . . Tournament of Roses officials decided to let Notre Dame pick its Rose bowl opponent. . . . Tex Rickard barred all broadcasts of fights in Madison Square Garden. . . . The I. A. 3 Eye League Revived After 2 Year Lapse

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 23.—A group of sleepy baseball men from Illinois and Indiana came out of a hotel room early this morning after an all night session and announced that the Three-Eye league, one of the oldest minor league organizations in the United States, will resume operations next season after a lapse of two years.

It will be a six team circuit with four teams from Illinois and two from Indiana. The Illinois cities are Decatur, Peoria, Bloomington, and Springfield. The Indiana clubs will be Terre Haute and Evansville. League officers will be elected at a meeting in Bloomington Dec. 2.

The Evansville franchise was obtained by Bob Coleman, who last season managed the St. Paul club of the American association. Another former manager in the association, Bill Rogers, who was at Kansas City during the 1934 season, will operate the Springfield club.

Lute Boone was reëlected president of the Northern league. Boone, in addition to being head of the league, is owner, manager, and player on the Crookston, Minn., club. He played every position with the team last year.

Another minor league deal today sent Outfielder Paul Easterling of the Beaumont Texas league club to Atlanta of the Southern association. Officials of the Atlanta team did not disclose the amount paid for the hard hitting outfielder.

JUDGE, REFEREE SUSPENDED FOR FULLER VERDICT

New York, Nov. 23.—[Special.]—The New York state athletic commission set a precedent today when it announced the indefinite suspension of Harold Barnes, boxing judge, and Danny Ridge, referee, who officiated at Madison Square Garden last Friday night when Young Peter Jackson was awarded the decision over Sammy Fuller.

Barnes and Ridge voted for Jackson, using the new point system. The decision so irked the commissioners they voted the suspensions. The two officials have been on the commission's staf for many years.

While refusing to divulge the reason for their action, the commissioners made it plain that in the future other officials who prove incompetent will suffer the same fate.

The point system also was thrown out at today's meeting. Judging a fight now goes back to the old rounds system, but the commissioners have qualified this ruling by saying officials will be permitted to use their own judgment and common sense. If a fighter wins only four out of ten rounds, but inflicts the greater damage, he will be allowed to receive the decision, provided, of course, he has left no doubt about his superiority.

Judges also were informed they can not penalize a boxer for loss of a round because of a low blow, unless they are notified of such a violation of the rules by the referee.

Hawks Release Rookie Kenny to London Club

Manager Clem Loughlin of the Blackhawks yesterday announced that Ernie Kenny, rookie defense player obtained this season from the Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Canada league, had been sent to the London Tecumsehs of the International league. Kenny was regarded as a good prospect, but needed more seasoning.

The disposal of Kenny leaves the Hawks with only three defense players, Marty Burke, Art Coulter, and Art Wiebe. The Hawks' manager has in mind the conversion of one of his forwards, probably Paul Thompson, into a defense player, a position he was accustomed to playing during his amateur hocky days.

In the event of Thompson playing regularly on defense, Norman Locking would get the call for Thompson's position on the line, which also includes Mush March and Donnie McFadyen.

Lack of ice, due to the Levinsky-Lasky bout, kept the Blackhawks from practice yesterday. A new sheet will be in readiness, however, late this afternoon, and Manager Clem Loughlin has ordered practice for 6 o'clock.

CENTRAL BEATS WHITING, 20 TO 0; WINS PREP TITLE

Kazmareck scored the third touchdown late in the fourth period on a plunge from the four yard line. Lentsch again kicked the extra point. Central, which gained 282 yards from scrimmage to Whiting's 118, laid claim to the state championship by dint of the victory.

KLEES PLAY FLORALS.

Texas Victor Over Arkansas in Aerial Duel

Fayetteville, Ark., Nov. 23.—(AP)—The University of Texas defeated the University of Arkansas football team today, 19 to 12. After each team had scored twice on passes Hilliard made the third Longhorn touchdown on a 27 yard reverse.

The victory gave Texas a clear title to second place in the southwest conference and the defeat dropped the Razorbacks, uncrowned champions last year, still lower in the standings. Southern Methodist, in third place, can tie Texas by beating Baylor tomorrow.

Texas First to Score.

Texas opened the game with a rush and after an exchange of punts Pitzer, Hilliard and Gilbreath started a drive from their own 32 yard line to the Arkansas 24 yard line, where Hilliard passed over the goal to Gilbreath. Hilliard's kick for extra point was perfect.

The second quarter saw Arkansas score twice through aerials. Arkansas started its first goalward drive when Ray, substitute guard, pulled out of the line to pass 15 yards to Geiser of the Texas 20 yard line. Jordan added 11 yards on an off tackle play. After two line attempts failed Jordan passed over the goal to Geiser. Arkansas scoreh again on a 32 yard pass, Ray to P. Rucker.

Longhorns Regain Lead.

In the third period Jurecka, Texas half back, took the ball at midfield, passed 30 yards to Gray, and then shot another long spiral to Gray in the end zone. Hilliard made a one man 67 yard drive from his own 33 yard line for the third Texas touchdown in the fourth quarter. Lineup:

TEXAS [19].		ARKANSAS [12].
Gray	L. E.	Lake
Tolbert	L. T.	Haden
Chapman	L. G.	Spivey
Coates	C.	Newby
Pennington	R. G.	Measel
Beasley	R. T.	Benton
Sanger	R. E.	P. Rucker
Bacbel	Q. B.	Jordan
Hilliard	L. H.	C. Rucker
Gilbreath	R. H.	Geiser
Pitzer	F. B.	Criswell

GOPHERS GIVE UP HOPE OF PLAYING ROSE BOWL GAME

Washington, D. C., Nov. 23.—(AP)—Virtually all hope that Minnesota's unbeaten Gophers would play in the Rose bowl football game New Year's day vanished today as Gov. Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota said he felt a waiver of Western conference rules to permit such a contest was next to impossible.

Johnny McGovern, Washington attorney and former Minnesota player, said Olson had talked with Big Ten faculty committee men and was convinced the committee would not give the Gophers permission to play in the Rose bowl—should they receive an invitation—or to meet Ohio State in a post-season charity game.

The same Western conference rule against post-season games, which would prevent Minnesota from going to the Rose bowl also would block attempts to match the Gophers with Ohio State's team.

LAKOTA TO PLAY PIKES PALS.

Post-Season Games.

Refusal of Minnesota and Ohio State to play a post-season game was to be expected. Except to raise funds for charity, there was no reason for such a contest. Ohio State lost to Illinois and has no claim to the Big Ten title whether or not the Buckeyes are stronger than their 13-14 score against the Illini indicated.

If post-season contests were not against conference regulations, it would be more logical for Minnesota and Purdue to play off their championship tie, or for the Gophers to accept an invitation to the Rose bowl, where middle westerners think Minnesota this year would defeat anything the Pacific coast has to offer.

President of Yale Defends Rein on Sport

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 23.—[Special.]—Defending the strict regulation of college athletics, President James R. Angell of Yale insists those institutions which put athletics above education are traitors to their trust. His views were expressed in an article written for the official program of the Yale-Harvard football game tomorrow.

"In education sport has its proper place as recreation, as a basis for physical development, and as a method of moral discipline," Dr. Angell writes, "but in any college or university worthy of the name it must always be secondary.

"Varied and valuable as are the peculiar opportunities, privileges, and rewards of a member of a university team engaged in intercollegiate contests, these may be purchased at too high a price.

Traitor to Its Trust.

"The young man who wishes to give all his time and energy to sports is quite entitled to do so if he can afford it, but he has no place in a really reputable college where intellectual development is the primary concern. A collegiate institution of which this is not true is traitor to its trust."

"For the three-quarters of a century and more that intercollegiate sports have been developing in the United States, the leading institutions have, little by little, found themselves obliged to establish such regulations as now exist.

"This has been done partly to protect their strictly educational interests and partly to protect college sports itself from becoming hopelessly debased into a purely commercialized undertaking carried on by hired men, thus losing one of the finest things about it, which, under the best conditions, is its spontaneous and unselfish character.

"When men subject themselves for days and weeks to hard, self-sacrificing discipline for the joy of the game, for the prestige of the college, for the hope of victory, you have something of very high value and something untarnished by any thought of money, as was the laurel crown accorded the victor in the Grecian games."

YALE TO BATTLE HARVARD TODAY FOR 53D TIME

Iron Men to Start for Bulldog.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 23.—[Special.]—For the fifty-third time since 1875, the football teams of Yale and Harvard will meet tomorrow, and tonight this college city was beginning to take on the color and excitement that comes to it each year with big game day.

The Harvard team arrived during the afternoon, took a short workout in the huge bowl, where the game starts tomorrow at 2 o'clock, and departed in special buses for Choate school in Wallingford to spend the night. Yale finished its practice for the season a short while later, and huge tarpaulins were rolled back across the playing field, despite the lifting skies which promised fair weather for tomorrow.

Look for Hard Battle.

Wherever the observer turned today there was the same response, that the issue was clearly drawn and that prospects were even. What betting there was downtown was at even money, and some of the professional layers of odds in town today offered you your pick at four to five.

Neither of the rival coaches, Eddie Casey, Harvard, or Raymond Pond, Yale, would offer anything in the way of pre-game statements, except to join in the general chorus that hard fighting was in prospect.

Harvard Boys in Shape.

Yale, according to word on the eve of play, expects to start the same eleven iron men who played through the entire Princeton upset last week. but there is general feeling that the eleven starters will be relieved before the end of the contest. Harvard reported all hands in shape and ready to start.

The probable lineups:

YALE.		HARVARD.
Train	L. E.	Dubiel
Scott	L. T.	Burton
C. Curtin	L. G.	Brookings
De Angelis	C.	Comfort

Vines Beats Tilden to Win Wembley Pro Tourney

LONDON, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Ellsworth Vines, Pasadena, Cal., today won the professional round-robin tournament at Wembley stadium, defeating Bill Tilden, 9-7, 7-5, 6-2, in the final match. Earlier in the day, Martin Plaa, France, beat Bruce Barnes, Texas, 3-6, 2-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-0. Hans Nusslein, Germany, defeated Dan Maskell, England, 6-2, 6-1, 6-1, in a third match to take second place in the final standing. Vines won five matches in the tourney; Nusslein, four; Tilden, three; Plaa, two, and Barnes, one. Maskell failed to turn in a victory.

ARTHUR PINERO, FAMOUS BRITISH DRAMATIST, DIES

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Sir Arthur Pinero, famous actor-playwright, died today after an emergency operation following a sudden illness. He was 79 years old.

Pinero was known as the "enfant terrible" of the roaring nineties. He was credited with the authorship of four of the most popular plays of the last 40 years—"Second Mrs. Tanqueray," "Iris," "His House in Order" and "Trelawney of the Wells."

Mrs. Pat Campbell played in the "Second Mrs. Tanqueray" here and in the United States for years, and John Drew was playing in the all-star revival of "Trelawney of the Wells" at the time of his fatal illness in San Francisco in 1927.

Began Acting at 19.

In his youth Pinero studied law in his father's office, but he soon tired of it. When he was 19 years old he went to Edinburgh. There he appeared first in the rôle of an actor. In 1876 he made his first appearance in London as Mr. Darch in "Miss Gwilt." Later that year he joined the Lyceum company on the road.

He played Claudius to the Hamlet of Sir Henry Irving during Irving's first "Hamlet" tour. He was with Irving five years, appearing in "The Merchant of Venice," "Othello," and many other plays.

But Pinero did not care for the stage. He disliked speaking words written by other persons and took to writing his own plays and, for a time, appearing in them. His first ventures were one-act skits.

When he branched out as a dramatist, he produced his own plays. Every play was produced as if he himself would have acted every part. Even inflections of the voice were as if he would utter them.

Feared by Actors, Actresses.

Pinero was feared by actors and actresses. He sat in the front rows and barked out orders like a general directing an army.

The dramatist loathed interviews and became famous for his shyness. His favorite sport was cricket. He frequently appeared at games at the village greens, shunning the spectacles attended by the tens of thousands.

WHY BRIDE "FELL" IN RIVER STILL IS NOT VERY CLEAR

Mrs. Vivian Kaniff Wittine, 33 years old, 4512 North Ashland avenue, whose marriage celebration Thursday was climaxed with a plunge into the Chicago river near the Dearborn street bridge early yesterday, began her first day of housekeeping with a bad cold.

Her new husband, Albert, declined comment about the impromptu plunge when he took his bride from the county hospital yesterday, except to explain that "Vivian fell in." Likewise uncommunicative was Mrs. Viola O'Banion Carter, twin sister of Mrs. Wittine and widow of Dion O'Banion, one of the earliest victims of Chicago's gang warfare, who was a member of the wedding party.

Hospital attendants, however, said Mrs. Wittine had been drinking, and police made a similar report on Mrs. Carter. An hour before the plunge the party had left the Old Heidelberg café, 14 West Randolph street, apparently in high spirits, it was reported.

NECKLACE OF TIGER CLAWS USED IN SHRINE INITIATION CEREMONY

Dana Scott Williams of Lewiston, Me., imperial potentate of the Shrine, last night aided in the initiation of 100 members into the organization at a meeting held in the Medinah temple. During the ceremony Mr. Williams wore a necklace of gold and tiger claws, presented to the imperial council of the Shrine by Abou Saad temple of the Canal Zone. Altogether there are twenty-eight claws on the necklace, which is valued at several thousand dollars.

ANDREW RUSSEL FUNERAL RITES SET FOR SUNDAY

Jacksonville, Ill., Nov. 23.—(AP)—Private funeral services will be held here Sunday afternoon for Andrew Russel, 78, former Illinois state treasurer and auditor, who died last night in the hospital of the federal detention farm at Milan, Mich.

The body is scheduled to arrive in Jacksonville at 8 a. m. tomorrow and will be taken directly to the family residence.

Russel, for years a power in Illinois politics, was serving an 18 months' sentence for violation of the national banking act.

MAKES ARDENT PLEA, BUT CAN'T KEEP PATRICIA

Patricia, a Boston bulldog of regal lineage, had her day in court yesterday before Municipal Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in the Felony court. Edward A. Doyle, 45 East Walton place, who said he is a son of Master in Chancery William A. Doyle, charged that his neighbor on the floor above had alienated the affections of Patricia.

The neighbor, George Crook, a commercial artist, was taken into court with the dog on a charge of larceny by bailee. Complainant Doyle charged that he had lent Patricia to Crook and that the latter had refused to give the dog up. Crook held that Mrs. Doyle had given him the dog.

"I should be allowed to keep Patricia," Crook told the judge. "First, because I love her; second, because I nursed her back to health when she was ill, and third, because I have allowed her to eat my shoes, munch other clothing, and gnaw furniture. No man, your honor, would allow a dog other than his own to take such liberties."

In spite of the impassioned plea, Judge Hartigan ruled that Crook had no legal right to the dog and must surrender to Doyle.

Dr. Heckard, City's Health Statistician 40 Years, Dies

Dr. Martin O. Heckard, for nearly 40 years the registrar in the bureau of vital statistics for the city health department, died yesterday in the Illinois Masonic hospital, where he had been ill for more than six weeks. Dr. Heckard was 71 years old. He is survived by his widow, Lenore, 4717 North Lincoln street, and a sister, Mrs. Laura E. Overton of Smithfield, Ill. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock on Monday afternoon at the Scottish Rite cathedral at 935 North Dearborn street. Burial will be in Graceland cemetery.

Burglar Hides His Loot in Rag Picker's Cart

A burglar who disguised himself as a rag picker and who pushed his evening's loot through the street in a cart was captured last night by Sergt. Edwin Fiala of the Fillmore street police. The captured man, who attracted the policeman's attention by the lateness of the hour he was pushing his cart along Congress street, gave his name as Henry Lipuma, 19 years old, 4307 West Congress street. Loot from a robbery was found beneath the rags in his cart and he confessed to having burglarized 15 apartments in the last two months.

His Initials on Watch Cause Arrest for Murder

Edward A. Nemacek, a truck operator, of 4304 Blanchan avenue, Congress Park, was being held last night at the detective bureau as a suspect in the murder of William A. Solamon, 29 years old, a salesman, in Evansville, Ind., on Nov. 17. A watch marked "E. A. N." was stolen from Solamon at the time of the murder, and a similar watch, with similar initials, was pawned in Chicago a week ago by Nemacek. The prisoner insists that the watch he pawned had been in his possession for 11 years.

Harley P. Wilson, 61, Dies; Public Utilities Executive

Washington, D. C., Nov. 23.—(AP)—Harley Peyton Wilson, 61, one time bond salesman who rose to power as a public utilities executive, died today in Alexandria, Va., after a long illness. Wilson was a director of the Western Power corporation of California, the North American company, the Washington Railway and Electric company, and the Potomac Electric Power company. He also was principal owner and director of the Washington Rapid Transit company.

Sir Ernest Budge, Famous Egyptologist, Dies at 78

LONDON, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Sir Ernest A. Wallis Budge, famous Egyptologist, died here today. He was 78 years old. For many years he was keeper of Egyptian and Assyrian antiquities in the British museum. He made many excavations in Egypt, in the Sudan, at Nineveh, and at Der in Mesopotamia. He was knighted in 1920. Sir Ernest was the author of many volumes concerning antiquity and life in the regions in which he worked.

DROP ROOSEVELT SON FROM SOCIAL REGISTER IN N. Y.

New York, Nov. 23.—[Special.]—The Social Register for 1935, now being distributed to subscribers, has its customary quota of omissions and several of the "notable" class.

Along with a number of society personages who have fallen into disrepute—at least with the editors of the Social Register—are Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, son and daughter-in-law of President and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

All other members of the presidential family are listed, including the daughter, Mrs. Anna Dall, who obtained a Reno divorce from Curtis B. Dall several months ago. She is listed as Mrs. Roosevelt Dall and her address given as the White House.

The omission of the Elliott Roosevelts caused special comment, owing to the fact that the 1934 edition carried their names and their marriage at Burlington, Ia., July 22, 1933, despite the fact that Elliott had just been divorced at Reno from the former Elizabeth Donner of Philadelphia.

Less surprise was created by the omission this year of the name of Mrs. Madeleine Force Dick Astor Fiermonte. The remnants of the old "400" of society expected Mrs. Fiermonte to be dropped because of her marriage to the Italian pugilist, who already had flown the family coop and landed in Hollywood. All the other Astors, however, including Mrs. Fiermonte's son, John Jacob Astor, and his recent bride, Tucky French, are duly listed.

MRS. HEMINGWAY DIES AT 84; HURT IN A RECENT FALL

Mrs. Mary J. Hemingway, 84 years old, 1737 West 104th place, died yesterday in the Roseland Community hospital of complications that developed from a leg fracture a month ago. Burial will be in Oakridge cemetery Monday after services at 1:30 o'clock in the chapel at 3400 South Ashland avenue.

Mrs. Hemingway moved to Chicago in 1891, following her marriage to Herbert H. Hemingway in Oswego, N. Y. Her husband died four years ago. She is survived by two children, Herbert and Miss Mary Etta, both of whom live in Chicago. Another daughter, Mrs. Eleanor H. Friel, died a month ago.

Mrs. Ruth Terrill Byrne's Divorce in June Revealed

Mrs. Ruth Leone Terrill Byrne, former Oak Park society woman, won a default divorce from her husband, LeRoy Richard Byrne of Lynn, Mass., in the Superior court of Judge Rudolph F. Desort last June, it became known yesterday. Mrs. Byrne was permitted to resume her maiden name of Terrill. In 1923 she was arrested with James H. [Rolls Royce] Murphy, wealthy grain dealer, in a police raid on an apartment at 446 North Austin boulevard instigated by Murphy's wife, who named the then Miss Terrill in her divorce suit. Byrne was the Oak Park woman's third husband.

CHICAGO NURSE AND 2 INTERNS KILLED IN CRASH

4 Others Injured When Auto Hits Tree.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 23.—[Special.]—A young Chicago nurse and two interns at the University hospital were killed and four companions injured early today while returning from a party when their automobile left the highway near Dexter and crashed into a tree. The dead:

Miss Violet Swanson, 21, who graduated from St. Luke's hospital in Chicago last June and was employed at the University hospital.

Dr. Robert B. Meyer, 26, of Oak Harbor, O., an assistant resident physician of the University hospital. He was president of the 1933 graduating class of the University of Michigan medical school.

Three nurses and an intern were injured. They are Dr. Fred Delp, 28, of Richmond, Va.; Miss Gertrude Shuler, 23, of Lake Odessa, Mich.; Miss Virginia Collins, 23, of Winter, S. D., and Miss Thelma Boltinghouse, 23, of Lenox, Ia.

LEAPS TO SAFETY

Edward Sailor, 50 years old, 4739 Ash street, Hammond, escaped death yesterday by leaping from his stalled automobile as a South Shore electric train demolished it on the Oak street tracks near his home. Sailor was slightly injured.

Three deaths increased the Cook county automobile toll for the year to 1,122. The victims:

Miss Mary A. Dresen, 65 years old, 117 South Clinton avenue, Oak Park. Died in the Oak Park hospital after she was struck at Washington boulevard and Harlem avenue by an automobile driven by Hugh McSharry, 902 Wenonah avenue, Oak Park.

John Menzenberger, 72 years old, 5937 Princeton avenue. Died in St. Bernard's hospital of injuries incurred at Wentworth avenue and 58th street, where he was struck by an automobile which failed to stop.

Michael Zahlos, 4 years old, 1161 West Harrison street. Died at the Mother Cabrini hospital early this morning of injuries sustained on Oct. 6 when he was struck by an automobile driven by Jack Romera, 38 years old, 940 West 11th street, Gary, Ind., at Racine avenue and Harrison street.

BLAME CHEMICAL FOR VARIED HUES OF WOMAN'S SKIN

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 23.—(AP)—The rainbow skin of Mrs. Edith Perry did not make its usual change of color today, and doctors at the General hospital said she was "better."

Mrs. Perry, who had changed color daily since entering the hospital a week ago, remained a shade of red today. This, physicians said, definitly indicated a chemical poisoning. They had not yet, however, determined the exact chemical which poisoned Mrs. Perry and caused her skin to turn blue, then purple, red, brown, and red again.

The office of the hospital superintendent said the failure to determine the chemical is due in part to "the noncoöperatio of the patient, who, we feel, has not fully informed her doctors of all the facts."

Convinced of the truth of their theory that she was poisoned by some chemical, either taken internally or contacted externally, physicians continued various skin and blood tests to determine if possible what the chemical was.

Seize Woman in Sale of Mortgaged Equipment

Mrs. Dorothy Barr, 45 years old, of the Embassy Apartment hotel, 2756 Pine Grove avenue, sold a filling station at Wood and 69th streets two weeks ago to Paul Wright, 2836 Merrimac avenue, but neglected to inform him that there was a mortgage of $300 on the pumping equipment. She was arrested last night on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses and will be given a hearing today in the Woman's court.

Policeman Dies Suddenly After Ending Day's Work

After a day spent in guarding a relief station at 1575 Milwaukee avenue Policeman George Castleberry, attached to the Racine avenue station, returned to his home at 6813 Castello avenue. Last night he complained of a pain in his lungs and a few minutes later he died, apparently of a heart attack. He is survived by his widow, Helen, and two children.

CABELL NAMED NEW HEAD OF ARMOUR & CO.

Brought from Post with British Unit.

Robert H. Cabell, London representative of Armour & Co. for the last twenty years, was named head of the company yesterday to succeed T. G. Lee, former president, who died three weeks ago. At the same time Frederick H. Prince was elected chairman of the board, a position which has been vacant since the death of J. Ogden Armour in 1927. Mr. Prince retains his position as chairman of the finance committee.

Mr. Cabell was known to have been Mr. Prince's choice. His election marks a further strengthening in the control of the packing company by the Boston capitalist. Mr. Cabell was not mentioned before his election as a possible choice. It had been generally expected in Chicago that the job would go to either Philip D. Armour, director and former vice president, or to Philip L. Reed, vice president and treasurer.

Named General Manager.

The title conferred on Mr. Cabell was that of general manager. By resolution of directors he is to assume all the duties of the president. This unusual procedure was due to the fact Cabell is not now a director of the company, which is a necessary qualification for the presidency. It is expected that he will be named to the board at the annual meeting of stockholders early next year, following which he will be given the title of president.

The new Armour head is 64 years old and has been in the organization for the last 43 years. Most of his time has been spent in the merchandising end of the business. He joined the company in 1891 as a salesman in the Baltimore office. The following year he was transferred to the general office in Chicago, where he stayed until 1910. He served in various capacities in Chicago, including that of department manager.

Went to Toledo in 1910.

In 1910 he went to Toledo as district manager and a year later was transferred to take charge of the company's operations in the Philadelphia area. He became managing director of Armour & Co., Ltd., British subsidiary, in 1913 and has remained in London since that time.

The European organization which he headed employs between 1,500 and 2,000 persons and handles the distribution of the products of six of the company's packing plants in South America. It also distributes provisions and other products of the company's American plants. The British subsidiary operates packing plants on a small scale, though most of its business is one of merchandising and distributing.

Mr. Cabell was born in Brunswick, Mo., in 1870. He had a high school and business college education when he entered the employ of Armour.

No Radical Change Planned.

In an interview Mr. Cabell asserted that he had no radical ideas for changing the management policies of the company. He expressed himself as optimistic over the business outlook. In answer to a query he said that he believed distribution to be the primary problem of the packing industry and added that it would be his chief concern in his new office.

Mr. Cabell will remain in Chicago for the next several days, returning to London for the Christmas holidays. He arrived in this country earlier this week in company with Mr. Prince, who was sojourning in France when President Lee died.

The position on the finance committee which was left vacant by the death of Mr. Lee will be filled by Mr. Reed, the directors decided.

An operating committee was appointed by the directors to advise Mr. Cabell. The committee includes the following vice presidents: Mr. Reed, Warren W. Shoemaker, George A. Eastwood, I. M. Hoagland, Harry G. Mills, Frank A. Benson, William S. Clithero, Edward L. Lalumier and Charles J. Faulkner Jr., general counsel.

At its meeting yesterday the board also declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share on the $6 prior preferred stock and $1.75 a share on the preferred stock of Armour of Delaware. The dividends are payable Jan. 1 to stockholders of record Dec. 10.

Freight Trafic Below Week and Year Ago

Washington, D. C., Nov. 23.—[Special.]—Car loadings last week showed a seasonal decline of 10,407 cars, or 1.8 per cent, from the preceding week or a total of 584,524 cars, according to figures released today by the Association of American Railroads.

The total for the week was 18,183 cars, or 2.9 per cent, under the corresponding week of last year, when loadings amounted to 602,707 cars, but was 11,902 above the aggregate for the 1932 period, when 572,622 cars of freight were moved. The comparison with a year ago was apparently affected by the holiday in the week this year.

In the preceding week of this year there was a gain of 1.8 per cent over a year ago, the first week since June that showed an increase. The total for the year to date amounts to 27,632,201 cars, compared with 26,047,077 in the corresponding period of 1933 and 25,203,351 in 1932.

MISSOURI PACIFIC ARGUES AGAINST GOLD PAYMENTS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 23.—(AP)—A brief in support of the contention that holders of gold bonds can not compel payment in gold or an equivalent amount of currency was filed today in the Supreme court by the Missouri Pacific railroad. It was presented in preparation for oral arguments on Jan. 8 on validity of the legislation abrogating provisions of contracts requiring payment in gold.

Holders of bonds contend that since revaluation of the gold dollar, payment in currency of the present value deprives them of constitutional rights.

The brief supported the decision of the Federal District court at St. Louis that holders of first mortgage gold bonds issued by the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern railway, a subsidiary of the Missouri Pacific, can not compel gold payment.

HINT CRIMINAL CHARGE AGAINST S. W. STRAUS & CO.

New York, Nov. 23.—[Special.]—Testimony of a 76 year old dressmaker that S. W. Straus & Co. wiped out her $2,000 life savings by investing them in worthless securities, which it represented to be gilt-edged first mortgage bonds, was forwarded to District Attorney William C. Dodge today by Referee Harry A. Gordon.

This is the first official indication of possible criminal charges since the Straus company closed its doors early in 1933. Referee Gordon, who was designated by Supreme Court Justice Charles C. Lockwood to pass on 700 claims of bondholders and other creditors, allowed the whole $2,000 claim in this case.

BANKERS JOIN MOVE TO BOOST FOREIGN TRADE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 23.—[Special.]—Carrying forward the pledge of coöperation it gave the administration at a recent convention here, the American Bankers association inaugurated today a program of action to use to the fullest the possibilities of the Export-Import bank as a means of restoring foreign trade.

Following a two day meeting with George N. Peek, president of the bank, and other officers, an advisory committee of the association agreed with the government representatives on a plan of procedure designed to stimulate joint federal and private participation in the underwriting of export credits.

Details of the plan of procedure, the highlights of which were given in a statement by Robert F. Maddox, director of the First National Bank of Atlanta, will be sent to members of the association next Monday and be made public at the same time.

Mr. Maddox said in his statement:

"Briefly, the plan provides for commercial banks that are not equipped to handle foreign business to assist in directing interested parties to banks that are, and that these banks give such transactions and all others that come to them direct careful study, assist in getting them into bankable shape and then consider and determine whether they themselves shall take all or part of the transactions presented.

Canada's Loan Success, Says Finance Minister

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 22.—Canada's $250,000,000 refunding loan was oversubscribed within two weeks, Finance Minister E. N. Rhodes announces. With the new securities paying only 3½ per cent, the Dominion saves three million dollars in interest annually.

Consolidated Gas Utilities Plan Is Dated from Aug. 1

The plan for reorganization of the Consolidated Gas Utilities company is dated Aug. 1, 1934, and not Aug. 17, as was announced Thursday, according to a correction made yesterday by William W. Battles, chairman of the bondholders' protective committee.

Chicago Fabric Preview Will Be Held in January

The second Chicago fabric show, sponsored by the Chicago Wholesale Market council, will be held on Jan. 8 and 9 instead of Dec. 4 and 5, as previously scheduled, it was announced yesterday.

CHICAGO LOSES LAKE TRAFIC DUE TO HIGH SWITCHING CHARGES

Chicago rail switching charges are diverting lake trafic to other cities, it was revealed yesterday. A cargo of 200,000 bushels of Pacific coast wheat, consigned to the B. A. Eckhart Milling company of Chicago, arrived here yesterday after having been shipped through the Panama canal, St. Lawrence river, and the Great Lakes, but unloaded at Milwaukee and sent to Chicago by rail.

Freight rates from Milwaukee to Chicago are 5 cents per hundred pounds, but this charge is absorbed by eastern railroads when the processed grain is shipped out. The switching rate from local elevators to the processing plant ranges from 3½ to 4 cents a hundred, which the miller would have to pay.

The unusual situation is said to account for a Chicago concern finding it profitable to buy cash corn at other terminal markets at a higher price than that prevailing in the Chicago market.

GASOLINE GOES UP 2 CENTS IN CHICAGO TODAY

Retail gasoline prices will be raised 2 cents a gallon at service stations today, it was learned yesterday. While neither major companies nor independents would admit having posted the change, a reliable authority declared the reports to be true.

Under the new schedule the price of third grade gasoline would be 13.9 cents a gallon; regular, 14.8, and ethyl, 18.8 cents. Reluctance to discuss the change lies in the disinclination of either group to have the onus for the move placed upon it. Each has shunned responsibility for the recent price war.

L. M. Foster, president of the Independent Brands Petroleum association, flatly denied any increase was in prospect. Major company officials declined to discuss the increase for publication, but declared "they had heard such a move was under way by independents and that they would match any advance."

Harvey Rathman, business manager for the Chicago Service Station Operators' association, an organization of 600 independent dealers selling advertised brands, admitted he had unofficial knowledge of the hike, but insisted independents in his organization did not initiate the move but were merely following it.

PAPER USE SIGN OF CIVILIZATION, SAYS DR. KRESS

A nation may be judged by the amount of paper it uses, Dr. Otto Kress, Appleton, Wis., technical director of the Institute of Paper Chemistry, told the Chicago section of the American Chemical society, assembled in the Stevens hotel, last night. He declared that the most highly civilized nations have the highest per capita consumption of paper, which in the United States varies from 175 to 225 pounds a year.

One of the fundamental problems facing the pulp and paper industry is the development of wood pulps suitable for chemical conversion of cellulose to products like artificial silk, cellophane, and lacquers, he said. The industry, the sixth largest in the United States, is studying the utilization of wood species not being employed at present, he said.

STOCKS SPURT ON GOOD NEWS; TRADE EXPANDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 23.—Optimistic business news and reports from important sources today set the stock market off on a rally which carried prices forward anywhere from 1 to more than 3 points. Many industrial issues rose to the highest levels since last April, and a scattering of new price peaks for the year was recorded.

The movement was general in scope and trading was at the fastest clip in weeks, the ticker being distanced for several minutes at one time. Turnover for the day approximated 1,130,000 shares. All groups participated in the advance but the best showings were made by the building, tobacco, and merchandising shares. Low priced stocks were conspicuously active and various specialties and preferreds distinguished themselves by smart performances.

Several Bullish Factors.

Among the bullish factors figuring in the upturn were an increase in retail sales figures for the week; reports of a stiffening steel scrap market; a rise in cigaret consumption, and reports of an impending price boost; predictions of "good times" for the building and steel industries as a result of the concerted efforts of business leaders and the government to expand construction operations and reports of heavy foreign buying of American railroad and utility shares, which are said to be regarded in European speculative circles as being decidedly on the "bargain counter" at their current levels.

Some of the rails were well bought in spite of the decline in the weekly car loadings report, a decrease which was looked upon as largely seasonal and therefore not to be held too strongly against the carrier shares as a group.

The tobacco division did especially well, American Tobacco, Liggett, Helme, and Universal all rising to new high levels on advances of fractions to 2 points.

A. T. & T. Up One and One-Half Points.

American Telephone gave fresh heart to the utilities by spurting more than a point and a half before profit taking sales began to slow it up. American Water Works preferred jumped 4 points on a single sale. Consolidated Gas moved across the 23 level.

Specialties were led to the fore by Coca Cola, which climbed nearly three points to the best price in about three years.

One of the sharpest advances of the active list was that of Allied Chemical, which rose 3½ points on a few sales. Air Reduction planted itself in the spotlight in the building share division by spurting 2 points to a new high for the year. Another new 1934 high to claim attention was that of Armour preferred, which rose 1½ points.

Good demand appeared for some of the airplane stocks, Wright Aeronautical benefiting to the extent of a couple of points.

The steel group edged a notch or so higher and the motors did better on the whole than they have for some time.

BARS CREDITORS' SUITS AGAINST OLD DAWES BANK

A temporary injunction restraining creditors of the Central Republic Trust company from filing suits against the bank or its stockholders pending determination of stockholders' liabilities, was issued yesterday by Federal Judge John P. Barnes.

The order was entered following agreement by attorneys for the bank and the Reconstruction Finance corporation to its terms. A temporary restraining order issued last Monday would have terminated within ten days of its issuance, necessitating the institution of an injunction. Central Republic was sued by the RFC as an outgrowth of an 90 million dollar loan made to the bank in 1932.

Attorney Karl E. Seyfarth, representing the bank, told Judge Barnes the order for a temporary injunction would have to be revised and he would not agree to it until changes were made.

"I will not enter this order," Judge Barnes said, "until both sides agree to it. Inasmuch as my son works for Mr. Seyfarth, you understand my attitude."

Ford of Canada Pays 75 Cents; Borg-Warner Declares Extra

A dividend of 75 cents a share was declared by the Ford Motor Company of Canada yesterday. The payment will total $1,244,220. With the 50 cent distribution May 28, payments in 1934 total $1.25 a share, involving distribution of $2,073,700, the largest since 1930. The dividend is payable Dec. 17 to stockholders of record Nov. 30.

The dividend reflects the gradual improvement in business since the depth of the depression, it was said. In 1930 the stock paid $2.10 a share; in 1931, 60 cents; in 1932, nothing; in 1933, $1.

Borg-Warner corporation voted an extra dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock in addition to the usual quarterly payments of $1.75 on the preferred and 25 cents on the common. The payments will be made Jan. 2 to stock of record Dec. 14.

Directors of the General Electric company declared a dividend of 15 cents on the common stock and the regular quarterly dividend of 15 cents on the special stock, both payable Jan. 25 to stock of record Dec. 28.

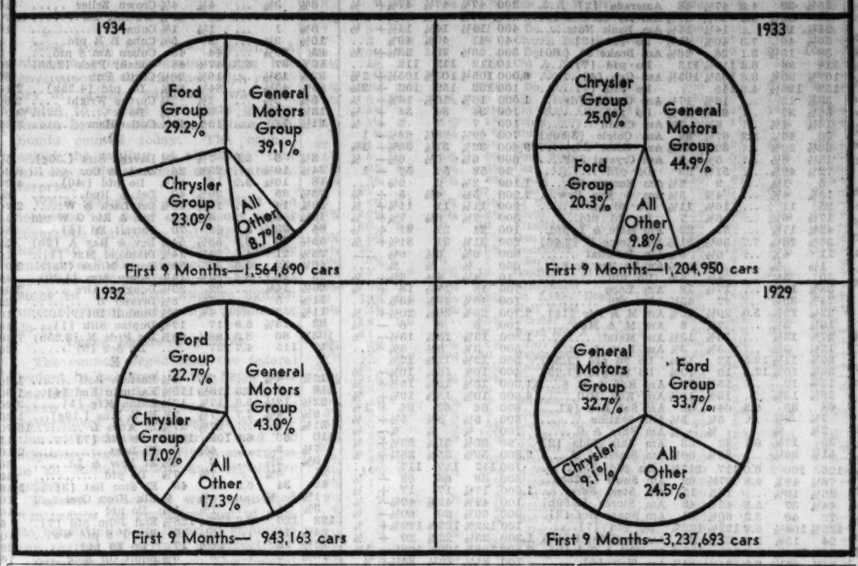
The Tide Water Associated Oil company voted $2 a share on the 6 per cent preferred, payable Dec. 15. The dividend is in liquidation of the unpaid balance of $1 a share due July 1 and on account of the $1.50 quarterly dividend due Oct. 1.

The Indiana Hydro Electric company declared the regular quarterly payment of 87½ cents a share on the 7 per cent preferred stock, payable Dec. 15 to stock of record Nov. 30.

The Iowa Electric Light and Power company voted dividends of 87½ cents a share on the 7 per cent preferred stock, 81¼ cents on the 6½ per cent preferred, and 75 cents on the 6 per cent preferred, payable Dec. 20 to stock of record Nov. 30.

Kelvinator corporation declared an extra dividend of 20 cents a share, payable Jan. 2. Empire State Insurance company voted an initial dividend of $1 a share on the common, payable Dec. 1. Northern Canada Mining corporation, Ltd., declared an initial dividend of 2 cents payable Jan. 2.

New Passenger Car Registrations in the First Nine Months of Each Year



JUDGES UPHOLD C. & E. I. PLEA TO RETAIN TRAFIC

Efforts of the Louisville and Nashville and Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroads to divert through passenger trains from the south between Evansville, Ind., and Chicago from the route of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois to the "Big Four," subsidiary of the New York Central, received another setback in federal court here yesterday.

Three federal judges—Evan A. Evans, John P. Barnes and Philip L. Sullivan—upheld the order of Joseph B. Eastman, federal coördinator of transportation, in refusing to sanction the transfer.

The Big Four sought to upset an operating arrangement of nearly a half century, by which Florida trains of the L. & N. entered Chicago over the C. & E. I. tracks. The L. & N. also wanted to break the old agreement. It complained the C. & E. I., now in federal receivership, was not a strong partner, and said that it preferred the Big Four.

Court Decision Outlined.

The regional coördinating committee reported in favor of the change but Coördinator Eastman reversed this opinion with a charge that the committee "failed to act." The complaining roads sought a federal injunction restraining Eastman's reversal. Following the ruling the C. & E. I. obtained an injunction to prevent the Big Four and L. & N. from putting their arrangement into effect.

Yesterday's opinion held that: [1] The controversy has not reached a judicial stage entitled to injunctive relief; [2] the order of the federal coordinator was entered within the scope of his authority; [3] it is necessary for the plaintifs to apply to the interstate commerce commission for review of the order before seeking aid of the court; [4] that the suit is therefore dismissed.

In a memorandum accompany the finding of fact the judges declared it unjust to hold the coördinator acted outside his authority. The plaintifs questioned the validity of Eastman's authority under the transportation act of 1933. The memorandum added that the roads should have applied to the interstate commerce commission rather than to the courts.

Feared Ruin of C. & E. I.

To issue the injunction requested, the court ruled, would "surely eliminate the Chicago and Eastern Illinois as a unit in the Dixie Limited chain" and would be "a body blow to the C. & E. I." The decision read, in part:

"The act was intended, at least in part, to save certain roads from bankruptcy and perpetuate an efficient transportation system in the United States. Its tone forbids the conclusion that the stronger carriers might exterminate the weaker competitor. Rather, it was the announced policy to keep the heads of all above water until calmer times appear. . . .

"To eliminate [the C. & E. I.] from this important chain of carriers might be fatal to its existence."

NRA COAL WAGE HEARING AWAITS COURT RULING

Washington, D. C., Nov. 23.—(AP)—NRA officials said today a petition from a group of western Kentucky coal operators for a hearing on their basic wage rate had been rejected until after the United States Circuit Court of Appeals acts on the government's appeal from a district court injunction obtained by the operators.

The injunction halted effectiveness of the $4.60 basic wage rate ordered for the area under the coal code and operators in the field have been paying a basic wage of $4, the same as that paid in Alabama.

The fight to make the higher wage rate applicable in the western Kentucky field has been led by Illinois operators who claim the competition of the Kentucky operators affects them rather than the operators farther south.

Steel Concerns Reported Buying Big Scrap Tonnage

New York, Nov. 23.—(AP)—It was reported in steel trade circles today that Republic Steel corporation has bought approximately 50,000 tons of steel scrap during the last ten days. Other companies also were mentioned as recent buyers and estimates in the trade are the purchases have reached a total of 125,000 to 150,000 tons in the last two weeks. The United States Steel corporation and the Bethlehem Steel corporation are understood to have been buyers of heavy good sized tonnages.

Bank Changes Viewed as Short Cut to Full Federal Control

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Reports that bank supervising agencies in Washington are to be revamped to extend greater federal control over all banks in the country yesterday caused little surprise in banking circles.

This move has long been expected and is generally regarded as the natural consequence of the banking tangle at the time of the moratorium.

The next move, according to Washington dispatches, is the consolidation of the functions of the controller of the currency, who supervises the national banks, with those of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation which, in a general way, has been supervising all banks, both state and national, which are members of that corporation.

* *

This is a backhanded way of accomplishing in a short time an end which otherwise would become involved in the delays that always attend the enactment of amendment to the banking laws.

With the federal government tightening its hold on the state banks through the FDIC, the state banking departments in the 48 states will gradually be shorn of their powers. The state officials, however, will probably still be able to function, appointing receivers and dispensing jobs and other political patronage, at least until legislation is passed making the federal control of state banks complete.

This shift of power to Washington will treble the power and importance of the feedral banking supervisory of the federal banking supervisory authorities.

The sterilization of the state banking authorities is a gradual development which has been under way since the founding of the federal reserve system twenty years ago. When the reserve system was set up national banks were required to join. State banks were permitted to join by qualifying. Most of the larger state banks have belonged to the reserve system for years. This did not remove them from the supervision of the state authorities, but placed them at the same time partially under the control of the federal government through the federal reserve board, a politically appointed agency in Washington.

Then came the moratorium. All the banks in the country were closed, and bankers and bank examiners were working twenty-four hours a day to reopen them. Tremendous difficulties were encountered in the case of state banks in many states, because some states had such a poor check on the condition of their banks that they actually did not know the condition of these banks and lacked adequate organizations to ascertain their condition. This was particularly true of some southern states.

Reopenings were delayed while checkups were in progress and even then some states had to permit their banks to reopen before they were certain that they were in condition to reopen.

This presented a serious problem for the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation. Once reopened, banks could not be closed again in large numbers for political as well as economic reasons, because the President himself had assured the depositors that the banks were sound and their money safe.

The Deposit Insurance corporation therefore, began making the banks sound by pumping into them large quantities of government funds through the Reconstruction Finance corporation in the form of loans or preferred stock and capital note purchases.

The Reconstruction Finance corporation is still doing this job, although now the task is apparently almost completed. The RFC now owns and controls 25 per cent of the capital of all the banks in the country.

* *

Having practically completed the work of making the banks sound, the government now, according to Washington dispatches, is about to take the second step and tighten its control not only over the national banks but over the state banks as well.

Through its ownership of a quarter of the bank capital of the nation and through the additional supervisory powers that it is getting through the FDIC the government is rapidly getting into a position where it will be able to dictate loaning and other credit policies of all the banks and make its order stick.

Nor is the government forgetting the federal reserve system. Marriner S. Eccles, staunch New Dealer, has just been made governor of the federal reserve board. Almost his first official act was to talk turkey to the federal advisory council, that body of leading bankers from each of the twelve reserve districts. The council recently made news by severely criticising administration economic and monetary policies and demanding a stabilized currency and a balanced budget.

Chief worry of the bankers in the movement toward centralizing all bank control in Washington is the fear that spoils politics may creep into the national bank examining system. Until recently bank examiners have been kept out of politics. An examiner was chosen on the basis of merit and nobody asked him what his politics were. Such has not been the case with the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation. Applicants for jobs say that they have been told to see their precinct committeemen.

GLOBE & RUTGERS INSURANCE CO. TO RESUME SHORTLY

New York, Nov. 23.—[Special.]—The Globe & Rutgers Fire Insurance company will resume business within a week or ten days as a result of an order signed today by Supreme Court Justice Frankenthaler declaring the company's rehabilitation plan operative. The company, which has been in the control of George S. Van Schaick, superintendent of insurance, for the last twenty months, will start business with a capital and surplus of more than $6,000,000.

The improved financial condition of the company is due in part to action by the court in directing the sales of securities in the company's portfolio in a rising market, as a result of which its creditors have been either paid or protected.

Counsel for the company told Justice Frankenthaler that sufficient consents have been received from all creditors to call for the issuance of not less than 35,981 shares of second preferred stock to those creditors, and 35,000 shares of first preferred stock to the RFC for a loan. A fund of $6,000,000 has been set aside to pay in full the claims of creditors of less than $500 and half the claims over that sum in cash and half in second preferred.

FOREIGN GOLD MONEYS FIRMER AGAINST DOLLAR

New York, Nov. 23.—[Special.]—Foreign gold currencies were steady to slightly improved against the dollar in trading here today, with the French franc rising ¼ point to 6.59¼ cents. The British pound lost ⅛ cent to close at $4.99¼.

At the closing quotation of the franc, the dollar, based on the old par of the franc, was worth 59.43 cents, against 59.45 cents yesterday. Calculated on the new par of the franc, the dollar was valued at $1.0063, compared with $1.0066. With the franc at 6.59¼ cents the possibility of further gold imports from Franc diminshed.

The Dutch florin gained 3 points to close at 67.63 cents, while the Italian lire was unchanged at 3.53 cents, the Belgian belga at 23.33 cents and the Swiss franc at 32.43 cents. The German mark was up one point at 40.23 cents, while the Canadian dollar dipped ⅛ point to $1.0268¾.

Bullion brokers in London advanced the price of gold 2 pence to 139 shillings 4 pence a fine ounce, equivalent to $34.79, based on the opening of sterling at $4.99⅜. Bars valued at $104,389 were purchased.

NRA Orders Hardwood Minimum Price Reduced

HEAD OF FDIC TO BE MADE U. S. BANKING CZAR

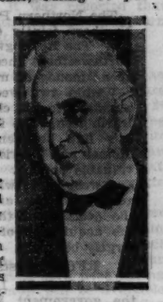
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 23.—A new federal banking czar, ruling 90 per cent of the country's banks, will be set up within the next month, and Leo T. Crowley of Wisconsin, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, will take over the post.



LEO T. CROWLEY.

Elevation of Mr. Crowley will be arranged by having him assume the position of controler of the currency as soon as it is vacated by J. F. T. O'Connor. At the same time Crowley will keep his leadership of the FDIC, thus consolidating 14,000 state and national banks under his supervision, the broadest ever enjoyed by any federal banking official.

Change Title to Circumvent Law.

To get around a provision of law which prevents him from being both chairman of the FDIC and controler at the same time, Mr. Crowley will take a newly created title, that of "governor" of the FDIC. Some other FDIC director will be made chairman, but the real power will remain with Mr. Crowley as governor.

More than 35 billion dollars in bank deposits and nine out of every ten banks in the country will come under Crowley's sway by the proposed arrangement.

His promotion will be part of a general shakeup of federal banking personnel in which Representative Charles West, lame duck Democrat from Ohio, and John McKee, chief examiner of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, will be made directors of the FDIC. West may assume the hollow title of chairman when Crowley becomes governor and controler.

Concentrate Examining Power.

Behind Crowley's elevation is his desire to concentrate in his hands the examining power over all banks which in any way come under federal supervision. This desire, in turn, is prompted by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau's drive to simplify federal bank control.

As conditions now stand the FDIC can examine only about ⅓ of the banks which are under the protection of its insurance. The controler of the currency examines and controls the nearly 6,000 national banks, all of which are in the FDIC but which the FDIC cannot touch. Similar control over the 900 state banks which are federal reserve members is exercised by the federal reserve board.

The FDIC, therefore, although it insures 14,000 or more banks, is left with examining and control powers over only those 7,000 which are outside the controler's and the reserve board's jurisdictions.

Crowley Wants Full Control.

Crowley insists that, to protect the insurance risk it has in the 14,000 banks, the FDIC must be able to examine them all. To accomplish this end he is prepared to assume the dual rôle of controler and head of the FDIC. He will then be able to examine the nearly 6,000 national as well as the 7,000 state banks in the FDIC. The comparatively minor matter of the 900 state banks under reserve board control will be worked out by agreement.

Crowley intends to ask congress to pass laws making permanent this FDIC controler consolidation.

In addition to this explanation of Crowley's plans, there is the fact that bad blood exists between J. F. T. O'Connor, present controler, and Crowley. O'Connor is being shunted to the post of Federal Reserve agent at San Francisco to clear the way for Crowley's plans.

RFC Makes Loan to Road for Buying Minority Stock

Washington, D. C., Nov. 23.—(AP)—The Reconstruction Finance corporation said today it had loaned $3,132,150 to the Denver, Salt Lake and Western railway for the purchase of minority stock in the Denver and Salt Lake railway. The Denver, Salt Lake and Western is a subsidiary of the Denver and Rio Grande.

BURLINGTON MAY BUY BEST PART OF M. & ST. L. LINE

Only Road to Respond to RFC Suggestion.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 23.—[Special.]—The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad will investigate the advisability of acquiring about 700 miles of the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad, it was disclosed today following a conference between Ralph Budd, president of the Burlington, and Jesse H. Jones, head of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

The RFC recently asked railways competitive to the M. & St. L. to determine whether they could use all or parts of the line, which has been in receivership for more than ten years. The Northern Pacific expressed disinterest and the Burlington is the first line to take a definite step.

Burlington Able to Buy.

The Northern Pacific and the Great Northern jointly control the Burlington. The Burlington is one of the few northwestern lines in a position to spend money on mergers at this time.

Within two weeks, R. T. Scholes, assistant to the chief engineer of the Burlington, is to inspect the M. & St. L.'s line between Minneapolis, Des Moines and Peoria. This is the most valuable portion. It provides an east and west route which avoids the congested Chicago area. On his report the decision of the Burlington as to the acquisition of this property will largely be based.

RFC Suggests Sale of Road.

The M. & St. L., which still owes the government $3,000,000 for loans advanced shortly after the war, readvanced shortly after the RFC lend another $4,750,000 to enable it to reorganize. After considering this suggestion, the RFC called in rival railroads and asked if they would be interested in acquiring the line either as a whole or piecemeal.

The committees representing M. & St. L. security holders oppose this action on the ground that the property would attract a better price if it were reorganized before sale. Conversely, the Burlington would obtain better terms if it purchased the line now than if it awaited reorganization.

GENERAL FOODS EMPLOYES JOIN PENSION SYSTEM

All employés of the western division of the General Foods Sales company have signed up under the coöperative annuity plan which has been extended to workers of the General Foods corporation, Arthur C. Unger, divisional vice president, announced yesterday.

Affected by the plan, which provides for old age retirement incomes, are workers in forty-fiive plants and twenty-nine sales divisions and districts in the country and Canada. Mr. Unger stated that plan was received with unanimous enthusiasm favorable.

SOCONY CALLS $28,197,000 OF 4½-5 PCT. BONDS

Finances Move by Loans; Saves Interest.

New York, Nov. 23.—The Socony-Vacuum Oil Company, Inc., has called for redemption on Feb. 15 two bond issues totaling $28,197,000, F. S. Fales, treasurer, announced today. It was stated that the amount necessary to finance the transaction will be provided by bank loans. The move substantially reduces interest rates.

All of the outstanding 4½ per cent debentures of the Standard Oil Company of New York, dated Feb. 15, 1928, due Aug. 15, 1940, have been called for payment at 102 plus accrued interest. These bonds were originally outstanding in the amount of $20,000,000, but have been reduced to $14,000,000, of which $1,000,000 will mature on Feb. 15.

Calls 5 Per Cent Issue.

The first mortgage 5 per cent sinking fund bonds of the General Petroleum corporation, a subsidiary on the Pacific coast, amounting to $14,197,000, will be retired at 102½ plus accrued interest. These bonds, having a maturity date of Aug. 15, 1940, are dated Aug. 15, 1925. They were assumed by the Standard Oil Company of New York at the time of its acquisition of General Petroleum in 1926. They originally totaled $18,000,000.

On the retirement of these issues Socony-Vacuum will have outstanding funded debt of $50,000,000, representing one issue of that amount brought out in 1926 and maturing Dec. 15, 1951. It is redeemable, in whole or in part, at any time on 60 days' notice at 101 and interest to Dec. 15, 1936, and thereafter at par and accrued interest. On Aug. 15 last the company called for redemption of $1,500,000 of 4½ per cent debentures of the Magnolia Petroleum company, another subsidiary, which left that subsidiary free of funded debt.

Cuts Debt Rapidly.

The policy of Socony-Vacuum in recent years has been to reduce its funded debt as rapidly as possible. From a total of $95,427,843 at the close of 1931, the company's funded debt had been reduced to $82,458,500 at the close of last year. In view of its strong current position, the belief is that the company will take some steps toward the retirement of its $50,000,000 issue soon.

At the close of last year the company had cash of $23,556,794 and marketable securities of $56,890,534, of which a substantial amount was in government bonds.

Late last week the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey announced the retirement of $90,000,000 of its funded debt, partly through the aid of bank loans.

RFC GETS BIG PREMIUMS ON BOND OFFERINGS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 23.—[Special.]—Offers of substantial premiums on $7,167,000 of municipal bonds pledged as collateral for loans by the Public Works administration were received by the Reconstruction Finance corporation today on issues put up for public sale to the highest bidders.

The largest premium, $78.10 per thousand, was offered on $22,000 of 4 per cent municipal public works general obligation bonds of Rockmart, Ga. The offer was from the Trust Company of Georgia, Atlanta.

A few days ago PWA officials announced that more than a third of a million dollars profit had been taken through sale of bonds that had cost the government less than $20,000,000. The operating profit to date on such sales has been 1.84 per cent.

Woodstock, Ill., 4 per cent water works bonds totaling $46,000 received five bids ranging from $1,005 to $1,029.16 per thousand.

HARRIMAN ASKS UNITED FIGHT ON DEPRESSION

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 23.—[Special.]—A plea for "both of the great political parties to join hands for the common good," was made here today by Henry I. Harriman, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, speaking before Iowa chamber of commerce officials. "Business, agriculture and labor should willingly unite to coöperate with President Roosevelt in the working out of a program which will be of lasting benefit to the country," he said.

Such a program, he said, should include a new alignment of the industrial workers who should have homes and gardens to insure subsistence during periods of industrial uncertainty. Harriman advocated the setting up of reserves by industry for the benefit of workers in case of sickness, accident, unemployment and old age, but warned that he did not favor unemployment insurance.

DENIES STEEL FIRM DOMINATES WAGE BARGAINING

A denial that his company dominated its employés' representation plan in the Chicago area was made yesterday by L. H. Underwood, district manager of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company at a hearing of the National Steel Labor Relations board in the United States courthouse.

Underwood appeared as a company witness in the hearing ordered in answer to a demand by the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers for an election under the board's supervision to determine whether the association or the present labor representatives should act for the workers in collective bargaining.

The Amalgamated presented its side last month. Underwood said a majority of the employés were satisfied with the present representation plan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 23.—Although there was no material increase in trading volume the advance in bond prices today broadened to include investment types and speculative issues.

Government securities advanced 1-32 to 8-32 point. The advance in Home Owners Loan 4s carried the price up close to 101, reflecting popular belief that the issue will not be called on december 1. One other factor contributing to the strength of the 4s is the current talk of a possible offering in December, giving holders preferential treatment in allotments on a treasury note issue.

Best Grades Gain Slightly.

Gains by gilt-edged railroad, utility, fractions except in a few instances. Coincidentally with improvement in the and industrial bonds were limited to stock market, bonds of lower grades were in better demand and showed numerous advances of one to two points on limited dealings.

The notable beneficiaries of this demand were American Chain 6s, American Writing Paper 6s, American Water Works 5 and 6s, Baltimore and Ohio refunding 5s, Chicago & North Western 4½s, Great Northern 5½s, Goodrich 6s, Interlake Iron 5s, Mercantile Marine 6s, Sharon Steel Hoop, 5½s, and Frisco prior lien 4s. There was a large volume of trading in Frisco.

Utility Tone Improves.

There was a noticeably better feeling toward public utility bonds, as confidence has been bolstered by recent developments.

In the foreign list bonds of Denmark rose to new highs for the year. The Argentines and Chileans were moderately higher. Germans issues were easier. Japanese government 5½s fell 1⅛ to 79⅝ and French 7s dipped 1¼ at 186¾.

The turnover was $11,362,000, or about even with the preceding day.

Rock Island Can't Pay Interest, Trustees Say

New York, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Announcement was made today by the trustees for the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway that the company's cash position will not permit the payment of interest due last July 1, on the general mortgage 4 per cent bonds.

Under the terms of the indenture the management has until Dec. 31 to pay the July interest without putting the issue in default.

[Copyright: 1934: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Investors' Guide: Will you please give me the names of several carbon companies? One thing I wish you would clear up for me is the difference between "Un. Carbide" and "Unit. Carbon," both of which are listed on the New York Stock exchange at about the same price. What connection is there between the two?—N. S.

Answer—There is no corporate connection between United Carbon company and Union Carbide and Carbon corporation.

Union Carbide and Carbon corporation is the leading carbon manufacturer in the United States. It is a $306,000,000 corporation, which during the last 12 years has earned profits ranging from a high of $35,427,000 [1929] to a low of $8,781,000 [1932]. The company has 160 plants in the United States, Norway and Canada. Some of its subsidiaries are Prest-O-Lite Company, Inc., Union Carbide company, and Oxweld Acetylene company.

The company occupies a leading position in the calcium carbide, oxy-acetylene gas, cutting and welding equipment, electric furnace ferro-alloys and synthetic organic chemical industries.

United Carbon company, an entirely different concern, occupies second position in the domestic carbon industry, turning out about 27 per cent of the domestic consumption. Its factories are in Louisiana, Montana, Utah and Texas. The company has total assets of $22,767,000. During the last eight years the high point of earnings was in 1929, when net income of $970,000 was reported, and the low point in 1931, when loss of $436,000 was sustained. The company also sells natural gas.

Columbian Carbon company has total assets of $46,000,000. It has 24 plants, one in England and the remainder in Louisiana, Texas, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and West Virginia. During the last ten years its earnings ranged from a peak of $3,665,000 in 1929 to a low of $954,000 in 1932. Natural gas is a by-product.

International Carbon corporation, a subsidiary of Atlas Powder corporation, is a relatively small unit in the industry, having assets of only $2,500,000. It manufactures a special type of carbon ["Darco"] used for decolorizing foods, drugs, chemicals, etc. It has one plant, at Marshall, Tex. The company lost money regularly from 1931 through 1933.

HELP WANTED—MEN.

MEN—SATURDAY AT 11 A. M. SHARP!

Men selected Saturday morning at 11 o'clock will be earning money next week. By the end of December, they will be on a sound income basis. By the end of next March, they will be making an amount that few men without long training can hope to realize today! Their commission checks will come as promptly as any great corporation can insure. But—they must be men living on the West Side or in Western Suburbs—with good characters—men who have business experience or who have been in the trades for at least 5 years—between young manhood and middle age, neat, vigorous, agressive!

The men who walk into this office on Saturday morning will come here to spend sufficient time to get acquainted with us and to give us a chance to know something about them. In this leading electrical unit and service company, we build men and help multiply their earnings. If you have the grasp of simple facts and a desire to excel, there is absolutely no reasonable limit to your income possibilities.

As truly as you wish to succeed, as you desire to get the things for your families that they want, without putting a dollar into this splendid successful business, made to order for you, that surely will you be here not a second later than 11 Saturday morning, Nov. 24, in Suite 329 at 9 So. Kedzie-av. Come with a success idea in your mind and we will do our part without loss of time!

A PERMANENT POSITION

OFFERS OPPORTUNITIES FOUND ONLY AT BURNHAM'S.
WORLD'S LARGEST BEAUTY SCHOOL.

When you visit Burnham's you'll understand why more girls enroll in this school than in any other, and you'll be amazed at the unexpected and exclusive advantages which our 63 year record of turning out the best operators enables us to pass on to you —such as positions on ocean liners, positions with the best shops which DEMAND Burnham graduates, the opportunity of earning while learning, free tools, unlimited practice on living models, easy terms, and many other advantages.

Once explained, you'll see how Burnham teaching methods will enable you to master Beauty Culture quicker, easier, and better—why these methods develop the type of operator shop owners want.

If you ACT now you can arrange to pay for most of your tuition after you graduate. Call, phone, or write for FREE BEAUTY BOOK.
